Senator Borah's Secret.
Just Down the Street.
Go West, of Course.
Foolish Things Not Said.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THERE IS a Borah mystery and it is about politics. The able senator from Idaho has made his choice for president and will not tell the name of his choice. It is not Hoover, not Roosevelt, and not Upshaw, the Prohibition candidate. Of course it is not Thomas, Socialist candidate, although Thomas used to be a clergyman, is extremely intelligent and absolutely honest.

Senator Borah is hard on the platform work of his Republican conferees, saying:

"I don't think any more of its economic planks than I do of its prohibition plank."

You must for yourself, guess his choice for president.

MR. KNUDSEN, of Detroit, head of the Chevrolet Company, and Aylesworth, boss of National Broadcasting, eating tete de veau a la vinaigrette at New York's Ritz Carlton hotel yesterday, decided that better times are coming back, NOT around the corner, but marching up the street.

W. R. HEARST, who publishes newspapers, agrees with them. He says 1933 will be a good year.

This writer shares the reticence of B'rer Tarbaby, but hopes for the best. It is a fact that the news is more hopeful than it has been in two years past.

ONE THING is sure and there is comfort in it. The depression has not depressed American athletes, for they are smashing records and allowing competing visiting foreigners to see what they have not seen in war, the backs of many Americans.

If you can arrange it, attend those Olympic games at Los Angeles. This is written on the way there, via Chicago, Oakland and San Francisco. All in one trip, this summer, you may see six thousand miles of your country, going and coming, see the games, the Pacific Ocean, and, as Mr. Westbrook Pegler justly observes, investigate many marvelous opportunities for real estate investment.

ON SUCH a trip you may learn much about politics and form opinions as to what will happen in November.

This column deals with facts, not opinions, so you will be spared any reading of the future.

John H. Perry, who is on this Twentieth Century train, says:

"It all depends a good deal on foolish things that the candidates do NOT say. In three months a candidate can talk himself out of a 100-to-1 shot."

So says Mr. Perry, who owns newspapers in many places, including Jacksonville, Fla., and other cities.

He adds, by the way, that Jacksonville hopes to make enough out of its publicly-owned light and power plant and other natural monopolies, to free Jacksonville of taxation, as has been done in various cities of Kansas and some other states.

PRESIDENT HOOVER is preparing plans for promotion of the five-day working week, the "flexible week," it is called. It is believed that the five-day plan would provide jobs for three million men now idle.

At the beginning, of course, the five-day man would get a five-day salary. But once the five-day week is established, it will be a week as well paid as the six-day week used to be, just as the eight-hour day is as well and better paid in good times now than the old ten-hour day.

IF YOU ARE short of money, occasionally, your Uncle Sam can sympathize with you. In July he took in $263,290,620 less than the amount he needed and his deficit for the month was $62,000,000 greater than in July last year.

We are running an expensive country, expensive state, city and village governments. Eventually, Americans will be compelled to take a real interest in their government. Germany, with half our population, casts as many votes as are cast in the United States. That tells the story of American indifference.

IMPORTANT NEWS for railroad men. Victor A. Miller, Denver lawyer, asks the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to accept a 185-mile railway that cost $3,000,000 and is given to him by the Burlington road for nothing.

That giving for nothing is not the news, for others might be glad to give away railroads.

The lawyer, Mr. Miller, will run light automobiles instead of heavy locomotives and 100,000-pound passenger cars over his line. That is big news and foreshadows the future.

The time is not far away when surface passenger travel will be moved in cars of duraluminum, weighing less than their load of passengers, utilizing the railroads' priceless right-of-way, at 150 miles an hour and faster, AND THE RAILROADS WILL PAY.

CALVIN COOLIDGE says he favors a general sales tax, and also that relying on heavy taxation on large incomes will either make depression chronic, or put the government into the hands of the "wealthy."

It was in their hands pretty thoroughly while our boom and our "wealthy" were still with us. At present they remind you of the "Destruction of Sennacherib."

"The might of the Gentile, unsmote by the sword,

OUR "WEALTHY" have melted like snow in the glance of the MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 3.—In the trial of Capt. Lancaster I am just a witness. Both the state and defense have me under subpena.

I realized that I shall, in a sense, be a defendant because necessarily the irregularities of my private life must be exposed to the public gaze.

I have always considered my affairs and my liquor-drinking my own business, but when the life of as fine a man as Bill Lancaster is at stake I must not let any reticence on my part prevent his vindication.

I know him better than almost anybody else and I know he is innocent. He ought never to have been accused nor indicted, but since he has been indicted and since he must be tried, his inno-

Seabury Sends Reply To Walker's Defense

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee, announced today he expected to have his rebuttal to Mayor Walker's reply to charges against him in the hands of Gov. Roosevelt some time this afternoon.

The rebuttal will go to Albany by special messenger.

ARMED MEN TRAP 60 IN MINE

Fire Renewed After Slaying; Woman Among Besieged

BULLETIN.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Gov. Harry G. Leslie, at 12:45 this afternoon ordered out the Indiana National Guard to relieve the seige of the Dixie Bee mine near Terre Haute.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The siege of the Dixie Bee Mine in southern Vigo County was continued today with desultory firing.

Sixty nonunion workmen, hemmed in by a ring of union pickets, exchanged bursts of fire at daybreak and then the attackers and defenders settled down to cautious sniping tactics.

The siege began late yesterday One picket has been killed and four wounded. Four defenders of the mine have been wounded. The latter are still at the shaft without medical attention. Pickets last night turned back ambulances sent to bring out the wounded miners.

TELEPHONE LINES CUT

The pickets directed their fire at the besieged miners from a corn field about a quarter of a mile from the shaft and from a railroad embankment.

Most of the nonunion men apparently were concentrated in the mine tipple, while others were in smaller buildings near the pit mouth.

There was no means of communication with the beleaguered men. Telephone lines to the mine had been cut.

Observers estimated that there were at least 5,000 union men surrounding the mine and others continued to arrive.

Confirmation of the presence of one woman in the mine was made by officials of the Dixie Bee Coal Corporation today. The woman is Mrs. Thelma Thompson, young wife of Herman Thompson, barn boss at the mine.

Third Bonus Marcher Dies, Hurt in Riot

BALTIMORE, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—William Dunn, a bonus marcher, of Youngstown, O., died tody in Marine Hospital and an inquest has been ordered to determine the cause of his death.

Dunn was among the marchers who were driven out of Washington last Thursday. He claimed to have been struck with a brick.

Camp Leaders Break With McCloskey And Waters

BULLETIN.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The Mayor of Johnstown and leaders of the bonus expedition visited the bonus seeking veterans' camp today to tell them they must move on.

Doak Carter, the veterans' chief of staff, told the veterans he has resigned.

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 3.—Evacuation of the Bonus Army from Camp McCloskey, their haven after being driven out of Washington, will be begun tomorrow morning. Mayor Eddie McCloskey, who invited the army here after its rout, this afternoon said he would obtain trucks to carry the 8,000 men, women and children from the camp. Their destination was undetermined.

The decision to move came this afternoon after a stormy session between McCloskey and camp leaders, attended by Eddie Atwell, commander of Camp Marks, Washington, who came here to represent Commander Walter W. Waters.

STORMY MEETING

There had been a stormy session this morning, at which the Mayor demanded a showdown. Final decision was left until word was received from Waters.

Before the afternoon meeting, Chief of Staff Doak E. Carter addressed the main body of veterans. He urged them to stick together no matter what the prize-fighting Mayor, Commander Waters or anyone else had to say.

Hs remarks were receved with rousing cheers and a determination to keep the bonus army intact.

This afternoon's decision to move the camp indicates a split

NEW LIGHT CUT OFFER MADE

After months of bickering for better light rates, the Duquesne Light Company has finally offered rate reductions which appear to be favorable to city officials.

This was learned today after City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt had told members of Council of the new offer in a closed conference.

What the rates were, Waldschmidt refused to reveal. After the conference John S. Herron, president of Council, said:

"Mr. Waldschmidt has submitted a propostion that is considered much better than any previously offered. The reduction is more equitably distributed, including all of the consumers. Council is studying the offer."

In its first offer the light company, whose record profit last year was more than $14,000,000, would have given the mass of domestic consumers a reduction of an average of 10 cents a month.

Free Staters Again Snub King's Envoy

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Gen. James McNeill, who threatened to resign last month because of snubs by officials of the Free State government, was slighted again today when he arrived at the famous Dublin horse show.

The Free State military band did not play the national anthem, "A Soldier's Song," as is the custom, when he arrived.

His Land of Promise Gave Hushka Promises—And Death

Came to Land of Liberty Filled With Hope; Fought, Starved Only to Die With B. E. F.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

BILL HUSHKA'S dead. And they buried him in Arlington yesterday.

Not much of a story? Maybe not. Certainly not more than a dozen people out of our hundred and twenty million would have cared, a week ago, whether Bill Hushka lived or died. Bill, himself, had come to the point where even he didn't particularly care.

Just one of those yarns that you hear everywhere now. A yarn that began miles away from America . . . in a little village in Lithuania . . . in a poor boy's dream of liberty and equality.

Liberty and equality—that ragged boy with the towsled head and the dumb eyes hadn't known much about them. Nor his father nor his father's father before him, drudging hopelessly through the bitter, burdened years. Liberty. Equality. They were just names, that was all. Beautiful, brave names that belonged to America only . . .

America——

The place where a poor man had a chance——

AMERICA!

PRESENTLY THAT name was moving with the boy as he waked or slept. Looking out of the dark hovel where he worked—big hands hanging empty, dull eyes staring vacant—he saw that name flaming against the darkened panes, against the darkened years——

MISS ROBINSON

Began to dream . . . saw a chance . . . dared to hope . . . started to save. So young Bill came to America.

Not much of a story? Maybe not. A ragged boy, stumbling clumsily down the gang plank from the steerage—his eyes fixed on that tall, white symbol rising from the muddy waters of New York harbor——

AND SOMETHING LEAPING IN ANSWER LIKE A SALUTE—IN THE BOY'S DULL EYES.

And then the beginning. That first loneliness and terror . . . the panic closing in as he groped his way down tunneled streets, listening to the wild jabber of a strange tongue——

YOU COULD ALMOST write that chapter yourself, couldn't you? So often you've heard it. Heard it perhaps from the lips of an old father or mother—saw the memory of it still cowering, still flaming, in their faded eyes. Just "another of them foreigners" to the citizens they passed——

BUT, TO THEMSELVES, CRUSADERS AND ARGONAUTS—DARING TO SEEK, BURNING TO BUILD A NEW WORLD.

So Bill came to America. Started in. Slow

Albie Booth, of Yale, Wed Secretly July 4

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Albert James Booth, Jr., dynamic football star of Yale University, and Miss Marion Noble, of New Haven, were married on July 4, it was made known today.

Booth is now on the Pacific Coast as a member of a cast making a football movie.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas J. Murray, of St. Mary's Church, Branford. Booth, in applying for a marriage license, gave his age as 24 and his occupation as salesman. Miss Noble's age is 23 and she is a secretary.

STATE'S AID SOUGHT IN GANG HUNT

Sleuths Push Search In Cleveland; New Arrest Looms

The identity of one of the three slayers of the three racketeering Volpe brothers is known to police, Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the homicide squad, declared today as these developments attended the investigation:

1—Lieut. Ferris hurried to Cleveland, where he gained information which caused him to name one M. Pagano, alias M. Pagarro, as one of the killers.

2—In Harrisburg Gov. Pinchot was considering a request to send State Police into Pittsburgh to search for the killers.

3—An important arrest was expected at Homicide Squad's headquarters late this afternoon.

Ferris and Detectives Tom Mulvihill and Nick Spudich hunted through Cleveland's "jungle" today for Pagano, but he was missing from his usual haunts, Ferris said:

TRACE AUTO PURCHASE

Ferris' confidence was based partly on the purchase of the killers' car in Pagano's name in May, 1931. The Pittsburgh detectives discovered that Pagano had paid $280 for the machine, buying it from a Cleveland agency, had in

VETS' RETURN PROVIDED FOR

Allegheny County relief organizations today prepared for a rush of calls for aid with the probable early return of bonus marchers to their homes in this district.

Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh, said Welfare Fund organizations would do their best to aid the returning marchers.

He said:

"We shall try to feed and shelter them to the best of our ability, try to re-establish family life among them.

"We will not set up a camp for them."

Miss Eleanor Hanson, of the Family Welfare Association, said:

"The Red Cross will take care of the disabled veterans among them. The able-bodied men with families will be helped by us as best we can. The single men will be well cared for by other agencies."

Spanked by Doctor, Girl Gets $1,235

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—For the pain, embarrassment and humiliation of being spanked over a comparative stranger's knee, Agnes Trafzer was awarded damages of $1,235 in Superior Court.

Last Halloween, the 15-year-old high school girl soaped the windows of Dr. Bernard G. Trauger's home. She said he turned her over his knee and "beat" her, injuring her spine.

2 Rattlers Enjoy Petting by Baby

BLACK MOUNTAIN, N. C., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Because they allowed themselves to be fondled instead of biting her 2-year-old son, Mrs. Lillian Michael Ledbetter is going to keep two rattlesnakes she found playing with the child.

Her brother, John, captured both reptiles. One had 15 rattles, the other 18. The man said neither show any inclination to harm the baby.

UTILITIES CORRUPTED P. S. C., PINCHOT INDICATES

GOVERNOR SEES GUILT IN AINEY RESIGNATION

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 3.—Charging that public utilities had corrupted the Public Service Commission, Gov. Pinchot today accepted the resignation of its chairman, W. D. B. Ainey. The Governor's letter to Ainey, the shortest of his public career, read:

"Your resignation is accepted."

But in an accompanying statement the Governor said of Ainey's action:

"It is conclusive proof that the charges made against him were sound, and it rids the Public Service Commission of a member known to be unfaithful and unfit."

'DEFENSE CHILDISH'

Scoring Ainey's defense of not knowing who had paid his hospital bills as "childish," the Governor declared:

"Truly Ainey must have believed in Santa Claus."

The Governor added:

"Ainey's resignation by itself does not show how far the public utilities have carried the evil system of which he was a representative, nor how far it has tainted the commission. It does not show how far the public utilities have used or are using corruption to secure and maintain their present iniquitious rates and charges.

"The people of Pennsylvania are entitled to a complete answer to these questions. And until they do know they will rightly believe that the public utilities have deliberately corrupted the commission and used it as their cat's paw to pull their chestnuts out of the fire."

Ainey, it was stated today, will receive an annual pension of $2,96s.75 from the State Employes' Retirement Fund.

DENIES CHARGES

Ainey resigned yesterday afternoon after his attorney, John P. Connelly, had conferred with the Senate committee named to bring Ainey to trial on charges by Pinchot that the chairman had accepted gifts from various utility corporations and their officers.

Ainey denied his guilt completely, and pleaded ill health as a reason for not making a public defense.

FURTHER QUIZ UNLIKELY

Questioned as to whether his statement meant he would demand of the Senate a thorough investigation of alleged elations of utilities with commissioners, the Governor declined to amplify his statement.

Sentiment in the Senate is against any further inquiry. The committee named to hear the charges of "graft" against Ainey was discharged last night after presenting a report that he had resigned. The tenor of the resolution discharging the committee indicated that the Senate would not proceed further, no matter how great the insistence by Pinchot.

The Governor today said he had not decided who would succeed Ainey as chairman, but expectation is that it will be Commissioner George W. Woodruff, Attorney General in the first Pinchot administration.

Pinchot reviewed the charges that the late A. W. Thompson, when head of the Philadelphia Company, Pittsburgh utility holding company, had paid Ainey's bills in a Baltimore Hospital, that he had been paid $150,000 by the late Thomas E. Mitten, Philadelphia traction magnate, and had from the same source received the expenses of a trip to Europe.

Woman, 70, Injured As Automobile Skids

Mrs. Priscilla Worall, 70, of 614 Pacific avenue, McKeesport, was injured seriously today when the automobile in which she was a passenger skidded on the McKeesport-East Pittsburgh boulevard and collided with another machine. She was taken to McKeesport Hospital.

the purchase papers used the name Pagarro an din registering the machine with the state signed Pagano.

A Cleveland automobile merchant, Joseph Sirl, described Pagano as well dressed and aged about 35.

Ferris also revealed in Clevcland to a Sun-Telegraph reporter that a price-cutting war started by the Volpes may have been the cause of the massacre.

From their headquarters in the coffee shop at 704 Wylie avenue, where they were mowed down by gangsters' guns last Friday, the Volpes had sent out word they were selling whisky for $31 a case.

NEW ARREST HINTED

Other racketeers resented this low price and asked the Volpes to boost their charges.

The Volpes not only refused but threatened a second price cut, according to Ferris.

In Cleveland Ferris was told over the telephone by Detective Frank Morgan, of Pittsburgh, that an important prisoner probably could be arrested late today.

Ferris planned to leave Cleveland for Pittsburgh at once to take part in the questioning of the suspect.

Before he left for Cleveland Ferris said he had learned that Johnny Volpe and his slain brothers, Arthur and Jim, were short of ready cash, if not almost "busted." Volpe real estate in Wilmerding has been heavily mortgaged, Ferris said.

Ferris saw one of his two prisoners—Sam Lakin—released on $1,000 bond last night. The homicide lieutenant had ordered Lakin, bootlegger, arrested after Lakin had denied being in the Rome Coffee Shop at 704 Wylie avenue—headquarters for Volpe booze and numbers rackets—when the three brothers were riddled with bullets.

THREE GRILLED

Lakin was one of three questioned yesterday by the homicide squad. The others were Joe Tito, alleged Soho beer boss and numbers baron, and Charles Modarelli, who, Ferris said, went "broke" in the numbers racket.

Both admitted talking with Johnny Volpe in a barber shop near Fifth and Wylie avenues shortly before the massacre, but they convinced Ferris they knew nothing of the killings. Modarelli said he tried to "make a touch" on Volpe and failed. Tito said he paid Johnny's barber check, Johnny being in a hurry.

Lakin was arrested because Ferris said he believed Lakin was not telling the truth.

In Wilmerding, where 7,000 or more saw the Volpes carried to their graves Monday, the Borough Council met, draped the chair of their departed colleague—Jim—in black and agreed on a resolution of sympathy to Jim's family.

SEARCHERS FIND GIRL SLAIN

LUDINGTON, Mich., Aug. 3.—(INS.)—The body of Evelyn Sanford, 17-year-old high school graduate, who disappeared while en route to her home last Saturday night, was found today in an abandoned farmhouse. It was buried in the basement in two feet of sand.

The house in which the body was found is located 150 feet from the home of Francis (Rusty) Nash, Free Soil, Mich., recluse held for questioning in connection with her disappearance.

The body was found a short time after 16-year-old Calvin Edwards admitted to police that his original story about he and Nash fishing all day Sunday, the day after the girl disappeared, was untrue.

Rubini, Violinist, Denied Alimony Cut

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—A petition of Jan Rubini, violinist, for a reduction of the $150 monthly alimony he pays his former wife, Diane D'Aubrey, for the support of their two children, has been denied in Superior Court.

Rubini was accompanied to court by his present wife, Adele Crane, actress, as is his former mate. He testified he lives in a $30,000 home and spends $100 a month on clothes and the same amount for entertainment, but said it was necessary in his business.

Reds Jailed in Ohio For Court Hilarity

LISBON, O., Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Nine Communists, four of them women, were jailed for contempt of court after a scene of wild disorder in Judge W. S. Lones' courtroom during a habeas corpus action for four other Communist demonstrators.

Spectators laughed, clapped, shouted and sang at intervals. Judge Lones picked out nine ringleaders and called them to the bar on contempt charges.

Rabinoff, Ex-Opera Manger, in Crash

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Max Rabinoff, former manager of the Boston Opera Company, was injured severely in an automobile accident at Spark Hill, N. Y., it was learned today.

Rabinoff said he drove his automobile off the road to avoid hitting two women in another auto. The car turned over and Rabinoff was pinned underneath.

CLARK LEADING IN MISSOURI

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Bennett Champ Clark, son of the late Speaker of the House, today held a comfortable lead in the race for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Returns from 706 of the state's 4,205 precincts gave Clark 30,472 votes and his nearest opponent, Charles M. Howell, 17,949. Charles M. Hay was third with 17,031. Henry W. Kiel, former St. Louis Mayor, was leading in the Republican senatorial contest.

Both Clark and Kiel are ardent wets.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Kansas apparently still is dry, results of yesterday's state primary election indicated today. Repealist and submissionist candidates failed in their bids for congressional and state office nominations.

In the senatorial race George McGill, Democratic incumbent and an avowed dry, led Chauncey B. Little, former Congressman and dripping wet, 13,697 to 6,785, with 799 of the total 2,676 precincts reporting.

Ben S. Paulen, banker and former Governor, appeared certain of the Republican senatorial nominatoin, having a lead of 11,000 over his nearest opponent, Joseph H. Mercer.

Penna. Missionary Dies in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Miss Lulu Patton, of Warriors Mark, and Altoona, Pa., who spent 24 years in China as a missionary, died here today.

She was in recent years principal of the Normal School of the American Northern Presbyterian Missionary Society at Canton.

AVIATRIX TELLS OF SUICIDE GIFT 'PLOT'

Lancaster Planned to End Life to Finance Wedding, She Says

International News Service.

COURTHOUSE, MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 3.—Capt. William N. Lancaster loved "Chubbie"—Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller—so much that he planned to commit suicide in an airplane crash so she might have his insurance funds as a wedding gift with which to marry Haden Clarke.

This was the testimony today of the Australian aviatrix in the trial of her British flying companion for the murder of Clarke, her fiance.

Lancaster carried $1,000 insurance in an airplane pilots' insurance association. His intention, she testified, was to kill himself so that she would have the funds as his beneficiary.

UNSELFISH DEVOTION

"Your happiness is foremost with me whatever happens."

Thus spoke Capt. Lancaster's unselfish devotion in the face of the approaching marriage of his intimate companion for five years to the young writer, according to Mrs. Keith-Miller's declaration from the witness stand.

She testified as the "court's witness," so designated when she was called by State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne.

Her answers bore out the state's contention that she would in every way possible aid the defendant.

PROMISED GIFT

She testified that Capt. Lancaster seemed anxious only to know whether she knew her own mind, whether Clarke would be able to provide for her and make her happy, and when she said her fiance assured him their minds were made up, he promised them the wedding gift of $1,000 which only his death could bring them.

Ironically, the insurance company had failed that day.

That was the day when Capt. Lancaster flew back to Miami, arriving the afternoon of the night when Clarke was shot to death.

Mrs. Keith-Miller admitted Capt. Lancaster and Clarke quarreled at dinner that night in the strange household where all three lived, but said there was no serious trouble, and that all three were on friendly terms when they went to bed.

The aviatrix was still being questioned by the state's attorney when Judge Atkinson ordered a recess.

SECOND BLAZE AT VILLANOVA

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Fire broke out again today in the monastery of Villanova College, scene of a million dollar fire yesterday.

Today's blaze started in the priests' chapel. It was extinguished after a half hour's battle by Bryn Mawr firemen. Mass being conducted in St. Thomas' Chapel in one end of the ruined building was not disturbed.

Eight of the 60 firemen injured combatting yesterday's blaze were still in Bryn Mawr Hospital today.

Miss Scripps, Sister Of Publisher, Dies

LA JOLLA, Cal., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Miss Ellen Browning Scripps, 95, philanthropist and sister of the late E. W. Scripps, founder of a newspaper chain, died at her home here early today. Her death was due to old age and a lung congestion which developed recently.

SUSPECT HELD IN BANK HOAX

CLIFTON FORGE, Va., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—W. J. Pender, charged with taking $56,000 from the Chemical Bank and Trust Company of New York on July 16, was under arrest here today.

Police said he confessed to the crime and promised to return all of the money except about $700, which he said he had spent. He was arrested at the home of relatives.

Pender, a fortmer employe of the United States Distributing Corporation, which transfers money from banks in armored cars, walked into the bank and asked for the money for that company. The teller said later he recognized the man as one to whom he had given money before and so handed it to him without question.

Farmer-Laborites To Draft Bookhart

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Roy M. Harrop, Council Bluffs, national chairman, announced today that the Farmer-Labor party would draft Senator Smith W. Brookhart, defeated for renomination as Iowa's Republican candidate for the United States Senate, for that office on the Farmer-Labor party ticket.

Harrop today was busy making plans for the western tour of Jacob S. Coxey, mayor of Massillon, O., and candidate for president of the Farmer-Labor ticket.

COAL MEN FIGHT TRUST CHARGE

ASHVILLE, N. C., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The defense, contending a selling agency formed by 132 Appalachian coal field operators was an effort to save the industry from chaotic conditions and not a step in restraint of trade, sought today to tear down evidence presented by the government in its anti-trust action before a three-judge Federal Court.

Defense witnesses, offered after the government rested its case yesterday, testified the agency, known as Appalachian Coals, Inc., was organized in an effort to halt a system which has resulted in driving the price of coal below the cost of productions, decreasing the wages of labor below a fair living scale and causing unemployment.

Before it rested, the government had produced nine large coal consumers in its effort to show the selling agency is a monopoly in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Graves, Film Actor, Divorced by Wife

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Virginia Graves was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Ralph Graves, film actor, here yesterday. The judge awarded her $400 monthly allowance and custody of their 3-year-old son, Jerry. They were married four years ago.

depression. Labor may as well know that until we raise a new crop of rich men to start labor-employing enterprises, times will be bad under our system, and we are not prepared for the Russian system yet.

Also, the "wealthy," if we ever get them back, will not put their money into enterprises that employ labor as long as the government continues to take 55 per cent of the PROFITS, if they win, and leave them all of the LOSSES, if they lose.

AVIATRIX TELLS 'ALL' TO SAVE LANCASTER

TELLS OF RELATIONS

I flew as a passenger, with Bill Lancaster as pilot, on the first flight ever made from England to Australia. Our relations at first were the ordinarily friendly relations of partners in a hazardous enterprise. We were almost constantly together until March 6 of this year when Bill took employment with the Latin American Airways in order to try and make some money for himself and for me.

Bill knew when he left that it was dangerous to my discretion for me to drink too much liquor, but he thought that since Haden Clarke and I were busy writing a book which we thought would be our financial salvation, he could leave us together with me under Haden's protection.

We did not do as well at writing as we did at drinking. Haden and I fell madly in love with each other and began planning our future life together, though I must admit that my happiness was tinged with remorse because of the way I was treating as fine a man as Bill Lancaster during his absence.

My love for Haden seemed to be too much for me and also seemed to exclude the possibility of our doing any work on the book we were supposed to be writing.

All this time our financial position was desperate. Bill would send a dollar or $5 and sometimes even more, which I knew he needed himself. He even wired $5 which he got by pawning Ernest Huston's pistol in El Paso. Haden and I did all we could to raise money, but we simply could not concentrate on writing or on anything else except each other.

BOTH WORRIED

We were both worried about how to break the news of our engagement to Bill and the worry prevented us from doing any work on the book.

Bill called up on the telephone from Hollywood, Cal., one night and asked Haden Clarke about some scandal that had reached him in California about us in Miami. We had company at the house and they all could hear the telephone conversation so Haden simply denied everything in the talk to Bill. We both were ashamed of that and soon afterwards we wrote to Bill and told him of our love for each other and of our intention to be married.

He had gone to St. Louis to try to raise money. During the whole six weeks of his trip he had suffered from lack of money and had actually gon without food for two days and he had to buy a pistol to replace the pistol of Huston which he had pawned. So he flew to St. Louis, borrowed a hundred dollars, wired us to wait until he got home so that he could be best man at the wedding, took the rest of the money and flew to Miami.

The three of us, Haden and Bill and I, talked for hours. Bill wanted us to wait a month before we were married and I finally decided that we would wait a month, although Haden objected to any postponement.

After my decision for a delay, Bill gave us his blessing and we all, one at a time, went upstairs to bed. I went to bed in my own room, read a story and went to sleep. After 2 o'clock Bill waked me, saying that Haden had shot himself. I was put in jail and then released. Then later Bill was indicted.

"HE IS NOT GUILTY"

I know him. I admire him. I respect him and I know he is not guilty of the murder of Haden Clarke because Haden Clarke committed suicide.

I have some troubles of my own. The immigration authorities have a deportation warrant against me. But my own troubles are not important as compared with the necessity of seeing that the truth in the Lancaster case is brought out and that Bill shall be acquitted.

Of course, I regret that my own sins should be exposed to the public gaze, but it seems to be necessary and I shall not complain about the harm that will be done to me.

When this nightmare is over I shall have time to think about my future. I am only 30 years old, and I have the rest of my life to plan. When I plan it I am sure I shall not include an irresponsible, Bohemian, headstrong course of conduct. My drinking days are over.

VILLANOVA'S MONASTERY IN FLAMES

Old Montreal Theater Burns, 300 Escape

MONTREAL, Quebec, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The old Theater Francais was destroyed yesterday by fire from which a motion picture audience of 300 escaped.

A sound apparatus engineer averted a panic by increasing the volume of the talkies so that the audience could not hear fire apparatus arriving outside.

Nearly two score firemen were overcome by smoke. Three firemen and a district chief required hospital treatment.

Fire broke out in the back of the theater. L. C. Kniffen, the engineer, who was inspecting the equipment, increased the sound from the talkie apparatus.

The manager, two ushers and two passersby from the street led the audience to safety as the arriving firemen went to work. It was a three-alarm fire and tied up traffic for blocks around.

Friend of Czar Builds His Own Sepulchre

ANSONIA, Conn., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Nekketa Radzevich Sutkovoy, who last year dug his own grave, is now putting the finishing touches on a sepulchre and monument built with his own hands.

Sutkovoy, 67, claims friendship with the late Czar Nicholas. He was chief jurist of a province near Kieve, Russia, was considered wealthy and entitled to be addressed as "Mister." A desire to travel brought him to this country.

He was employed in a brass foundry for 25 years, and retired on a pension about five years ago. Being in poor health, his thoughts turned to the grave and he decided to prepare all his own resting place. An Orthodox Russian, he turned to the Three Saints Cemetery as the burial place.

Sutkovoy's wife and two sons are living. One son is in Boston, the other has returned to Russia to be postmaster in the same town where his father once lived.

On retirement Sutkovoy sent his wife $10,000 and had built for her a two-story brick house. The Soviet government confiscated the money and property, he said.

Contemplating his handiwork today he said,

ELUDE PURSUIT IN DOWNTOWN STREETS

Shoe Store Employes Taped by Pair; Cash Looted

Two young holdup men who obtained between $75 and $100 in Chapin's Restaurant, 310 Diamond street, escaped after a chase of over five blocks early today.

Charles C. Blaisdell, 35, manager of the restaurant, of 1521 Dormont avenue, and two porters, chased the men down Diamond street to Market street and to Fifth avenue and into Liberty avenue, where they escaped.

Blaisdell told police that he was in the back of the restaurant when the pair entered and, after ordering something to eat, pointed revolvers at Miss Martha Fownes, cashier, of 2111 Holmes avenue.

Two bandits who taped two clerks in the Thom McAn shoe store, at 243 Fifth avenue, locked them in a closet and then looted the cash register of $30 during the rush hour last night, were being sought by police today.

CRASH WRECKS SHIP, 3 LOST

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Three members of the crew of the Milton S. Lankford, a small schooner, today were believed to have been drowned after a collision with the Old Bay liner State of Maryland. Four others of the crew of seven were rescued.

The crash occurred around midnight off the mouth of the Potomac River. The schooner was rolled under the larger vessel's keel and smashed into shapeless wreckage. It was raining and a heavy sea was running. The State of Maryland, only slightly damaged, reached here today.

TUNNEY SCORES ON STUMP

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney is going to be right out among the most popular speakers on behalf of the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt this summer, Robert Jackson, newly-appointed chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, said today.

Jackson, whose appointment was announced by National Chairman James A. Farley, said he had had more demands for Tunney so far than for any other Democratic speaker.

So far, Tunney's speeches have been made only near home. One of his recent talks was before a gathering of women voters.

Hoover Notification To Be Gala Affair

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—President Hoover's formal notification of his renomination is to be made a gala event under plans being worked out today by Everett Sanders, national chairman, with White House secretaries.

The notification ceremonies will take place at night, but during the afternoon there will be a garden party in the White House grounds for party notables. Buffet refreshments will be served, and there will be music by the U. S. Marine Band.

Pinchot Opposes State Vet Camps

HARRISBURG, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today said that in a telephonic conversation with W. W. Waters, commander of the bonus marchers army, he had disapproved of Waters' proposal for a cantonment for the marchers in each state.

He did not discuss the matter further.

V. F. W. PALLBEARERS CONDUCTING THE HUSHKA FUNERAL

REUNION FAILS, TAKES POISON

Failing to effect a reconciliation with her husband after an estrangement, Mrs. Fern Talangio, 25, early today left her rooming house in Arch street, near West Ohio street, and walked to a nearby garage, where, police say, she swallowed poison. Taken to Allegheny Hospital, she was reported in serious condition. After taking the poison, police say, Mrs. Talangio walked several blocks before she collapsed. She was followed by the husband, Philip, who summoned police to remove her to the hospital.

The husband told police they had been separated for several weeks and he visited his wife to bring about a reconciliation. At the hospital, Mrs. Talangio told police and physicians that she did not want to live and was tired of life without domestic happiness.

Gassed Bonus Baby Shows Improvement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Eleven weeks old Bernard Myers, only son of an Ephrata (Pa.) bonus marcher, continued to indicate slight improvement as his parents, John Henry and Gertrude Myers, visited their babe at Gallinger Hospital today.

The child is suffering from the results of the gas attack upon Camp Marks last week, when federal troopers drove the bonus marchers from the great Anacostia concentration camp.

Man Missing Days Found Dead in Bed

Police called by neighbors broke into the home of Alex Mulheron, 66, at 22 Magnet street, early today and found him dead in his bed. At the county morgue it was said that Mulheron, a recluse, died from a heart attack. J. J. Riley, who lives nearby, called police when he had not seen Mulheron for several days.

BONUS BRIGADE QUITTING CAMP IN MARYLAND

Waters Deeds Back Property Donated By Widow

International News Service.

WATERBURY, Md., Aug. 3.—Complete collapse of the bonus army's dream of establishing a permanent camp here in Maryland came today when the state police ordered the camp site evacuated at 6 p. m.

Accompanied by a squad of state troopers, Capt. Edward M. Johnson visited the camp shortly before noon and informed the 56-odd marchers they would have to get out. The state, he said, would provide 150 gallons of gasoline for those who had battered flivvers and that trucks would be furnished for the rest.

The campers accepted the dictum and immediately began preparations to leave.

Capt. Johnson said that Walter W. Waters, commander of the B. E. F., had deeded back the 25 acres which Mrs. Maude Edgell, of Catonsville, had given the bonus marchers, and that it was all over so far as Maryland was concerned.

CAMPS IN EACH STATE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Abandonment of the national cantonment project for members of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces was announced today by Commander Walter W. Waters, of Portland, Ore. The announcement was made after Waters was assured by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, that his state was opposed to the completion of the temporary national camp at Waterbury, Md.

As a result of the Maryland Governor's decision, the bonus marchers now encamped at Johnstown, Pa., have been advised by Waters to return to their various states, while the national headquarters of the B. E. F. perfects plans for the establishment of a chain of 48 state units.

FEW IN NEW CAMP

There are less than 100 on the Edgell estate at Waterbury. They will be informed of Waters' decision today.

Waters' final decision was made after the Johnstown camp veterans objected strenuously to returning to their various homes. His statement in reply said:

"After careful consideration, I hereby advise members of the B. E. F. to return to their respective states, because I fully realize that our battleground is there.

"An active organization in each state composed of B. E. F. veterans will do more to promote our cause than any concentration camp away from Washington."

Detectives Check Stories of Suspects

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 3.—Detectives today are checking confessions they said were made by four suspects, who on July 16 held up a crowded roadstand of George Sweeney, near West Newton, and escaped after securing $95 cash and jewelry. Those who confessed, according to police, are David Lewis, 29, of Duquesne; Jack Williamson, 29; William, 45, and Ralph Simpson, 18, of McKeesport.

'Workers' Beaten, Arrested in Ottawa

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Fourteen arrests and a number of broken heads, black eyes and bloody noses served considerably to discourage the enthusiasts at Ottawa's Workers' Economic Conference, and early today the exodus from this unhospitable capital began.

SOUTH AMERICA NEARING WAR

(International News Service)

War between Bolivia and Paraguay in the bitterly contested Chaco area moved closer today as the Bolivian government flatly rejected an appeal of the Pan-American Union's neutral committee for immediate cessation of hostilities.

Simultaneously with this rejection, Bolivia called upon the reserves of 1930 and 1931, believing these troops would be sufficient "to reply adequately to any Paraguayan aggression."

Meanwhile, the League of Nations and the Pan-American Union continued their seemingly ineffectual efforts to stave off open hostilities, which it is feared may lead to a general South American conflagration.

RIOTS RENEWED IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Rioting, with guns, knives and clubs for weapons, has suddenly flared anew in Germany. Three men are dead and several others severely injured.

At Koenigsberg, Communists retaliated for the attacks by National Socialists last Monday which resulted in the death of the Communist leader and another man in the party councils. They fired a volley into a Nazi meeting, killing one.

Four were stabbed or shot during the riot which followed.

A Socialist laborer, father of 10 children, was killed at Zweibruecken when a squad of Nazis leaped from a group of pedestrians, some of whom had been taunting them. The Nazis beat the crowd with clubs, spades and stones.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that is producing the showery conditions over this section this morning is centered north of Lake Huron and extends down over the Upper Ohio Valley. Showers and thunderstorms were general over the lake region, the Ohio Valley states and eastward to the coast, but the amount of rainfall was mostly light except in scattered localities. The heaviest amounts reported were Cincinnati, 3.18 inches; Indianapolis, 1.08, and Louisville, 1.66. West of the Mississippi River the skies are clear as a result of high pressure, which extends from the Washington coast southeastward to the Mississippi River. It is cooler than yesterday morning over the Mississippi Valley states; elsewhere temperature changes were slight. High maximum temperatures yesterday occurred only in Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana, where the temperatures ranged from 100 to 106.

River Conditions.

Good rains occurred at several points in the district since yesterday morning. Parkers Landing, 1.15 inches; Punxsutawney, .74; Johnstown, .53, and Philippi, .32. These rains caused slight rises in the rivers locally, but generally the rivers are falling.

6 ROADHOUSES RAIDED BY DRYS

Whisky, Beer Seized; Liquor Found in Automobile

Visiting the western end of the county during the night, prohibition agents raided six roadhouses and barbecue stands, arrested a motorist and reported confiscating quantities of liquor. In several cases the raiders confiscated furniture and equipment.

The raiders visited the Green Ball Inn, near Imperial, where they arrested Robert Wendell and Claud McGinnis. One hundred and eighty pints of beer were reported confiscated. Domonick Pagiluca, alleged proprietor of a barbecue at Oakdale was arrested when beer and wine were found, agents say, in his establishment.

SEIZE FURNITURE

Joseph and William Venturini were taken into custody when agents raided the Sunset Inn on the Steubenville pike, North Fayette Township. Beer, whisky and wine were reported confiscated and agents removed the furniture in the place.

The Pike Hotel at Tyre, near Imperial, and the North Star Hotel at Santiago were visited by raiders who also reported confiscating liquor. Complete reports on the two raids were not made at headquarters as the raiders were still busy today removing furniture from the Santiago establishment.

Leonard Scalise, of Carnegie, was arrested when agents visited his combined confectionery and barbecue during the night. They reported a small quantity of liquor was confiscated. The establishment is located on route 19 just outside the borough.

MOTORIST ARRESTED

The agents also arrested a motorist. He was Thomas Boscoe, of 1604 Prince street, Pittsburgh, picked up in his car on the highway near the Allegheny and Washington county line. Fourteen pints of whisky were reported found in his machine.

The prohibition agents also made a raid late yesterday in the northern end of the county, visiting the old Bradford Gun Club in Marshall Township, where liquor was reported seized and John Smith, of Arch street, North Side, arrested.

In five raids in the city agents reported arresting Walter Ray, of Clark street; George Jenler, of Penn avenue, East Liberty; John Capps, Moravian street, North Side; Tony Tropica, Independence street, and Samuel Berger and Regis Henry, of Soho street.

BRUNET BEAUTY QUEEN NAMED

Miss Rosaline Mundt, 18, of 114 Pinecastle street, Overbrook, was selected as the most beatuiful brunette in the city at a contest held last night at the marathon dance in Motor Square Garden. Red-haired beauties will compete tomorrow night. Friday night there will be a bathing beauty contest.

Monday night Miss Pittsburgh will be selected from among the group winners. Eleven couples are still in the race, which has passed its 1,368-hour mark.

Dreaming Man Hurt In Fall Out Window

MORNING SUN, Ia., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Donald Poggemiller, farmer, had a bad dream and has four fractured ribs and a bruised face to prove it.

He went to bed after a hard day in the harvest fields, dreamed of climbing down from a threshing machine, and climbed out of a window on the second floor. He woke up on a cement walk which broke his fall.

AUTO ACCIDENT LEADS TO ALTAR

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Miss Charlotte White, younger daughter of Gov. George White, becomes the bride today of Dr. Frank E. Hamilton, Columbus, as the climax of a romance which budded last January when Dr. Hamilton treated her for cuts and bruises received in an automobile collision.

The ceremonies were set for 4:30 p. m. in the garden of the executive mansion, with Dr. J. Harry Cotton, Presbyterian pastor, officiating. Miss Mary Louise White, Ohio's first lady, and sister of the bride, is the maid of honor.

The Governor was called upon to give his daughter in marriage, in what was only the second wedding ceremony ever held at the executive mansion. The previous marriage was of Miss Margaret Donahey, daughter of former Gov. Vic Donahey, to James W. Huffman.

ROWE ESTATE MANAGER DIES

Francis Armstrong, Jr., 70, secretary of the Wallace H. Rowe estate and connected with Paulson Brothers Company, is dead at his home, 2205 Shady avenue. He died last night in West Penn Hospital following a short illness. Born in Oswego, N. Y., he came to Pittsburgh in his boyhood. He was a member of St. John's Lodge, F. & A. M., the Shrine and Consistory. He also was a member of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Sons of American Revolution and of the Credit Men's Association.

He leaves his widow, Emma Coyle Armstrong; a daughter, Harriet Coyle Armstrong, and two sisters, Mrs. S. Lincoln Smith, Lisbon, O., and Miss Helen F. Armstrong, San Francisco. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at H. Samson's, 537 Neville street.

War Vet Robbed In Downtown Hotel

John V. Blackstone, a war veteran stopping at the Argonne Hotel in Third avenue, reported to police today that a pickpocket had stolen his wallet containing his discharge papers and $16. He said that he discovered his loss while walking in East Stockton avenue at East Diamond street.

5 AUTO VICTIMS SEEN BY CROWD

A throng estimated at 3,000 last night viewed the bodies of five victims of an automobile and train crash Saturday near Williamsport, as they lay in the Schellhaas and Son funeral home, 707 East street, North Side.

From early in the evening until midnight, a line of men, women and children, filed through the flower decorated room where the bodies lay.

Victims of the accident, which terminated a vacation trip, were the Rev. and Mrs. William Schwirian, of Montgomery, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Wendell and their son, Edwin J. Jr., of 1617 Howard street, North Side.

$2 Opera Proposed, With Percentage for Stars

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. — (AP.) — Grand opera at vaudeville show prices, with the patrons arriving by trolley and the performers depending strictly on the box office for salaries, appeared today as a possibility for Chicago's 1932-33 season.

The city's skyscraper opera house has been closed and the Civic Opera is liquidating. Cash to finance grand opera on a grand scale is lacking.

But there appeared today two impresarios with plans for opera on a "pay cash as you go" basis.

Briefly, plans call for a 12 weeks' season, performances in the old Auditorium, opera stars appearing for a percentage of the box office receipts, a minimum deficit insured by efficient business practices and protected by a guarantee from civic leaders not exceeding $200,000—and orchestra seats for $2.

It was pointed out that in former years orchestra seats sold for $7, prima donnas were paid thousands of dollars a night, additional thousands went for rent, and a deficit of millions resulted.

One of the ambitious impresarios is Isaac Van Grove, conductor of the Chicago Civic Opera last winter. The other is Max Rabinoff, former piano salesman, who has presented opera in the United States, Canada and South America.

Many artists from the Chicago Civic Opera are appearing in Cincinnati, others are in New York, and some are in Europe. All would be willing to return, their associates say, if opera in Chicago were assured. Under Van Grove's plan, American artists would be given preference and some operas in English presented.

Chicago Song Writers Bury Tommy Malie

Armless but tuneful Tommy Malie, writer of such popular songs as "Jealous," "Because They All Love You," "Where's My Sweetie Hiding" and countless others, was borne to his grave today by Chicago song writers.

His divorced wife, Miss Dorothy Ness, whom he wooed by song, attended the funeral.

Malie, orphaned soon after his birth in Pittsburgh, was reared by a wealthy brewer here. In his short life he made and squandered a fortune. He died Monday in a charity ward of a Chicago hospital.

St. Vincent Director Undergoes Operation

Following an operation at Mercy Hospital, Mrs. Mary A. McCoy, layman retreat director at St. Vincent College, Latrobe, today was reported recovering. Mrs. McCoy has been ill for several weeks.

BONUS BRIGADE TO EVACUATE JOHNSTOWN

between Waters and the leaders of the local camp.

Carter told the rank and file of the army that Mayor McCloskey would talk to them later. He added that it had been suggested that they go home, and said that if they did so, they probably would not reassemble again. Concerning the Mayor's proposed visit he said:

"We are his guests and I hope you receive him orderly. What you think is your affair."

M'CLOSKEY'S ULTIMATUM

Summoning Carter and other members of the staff to his office this morning, McCloskey said:

"I'm getting sick and tired of this monkey business. First I hear reports that Waters says to disband the army, then you say he says 'Stick.'

"Why doesn't he communicate with me? I am the Mayor, and I was good enough to invite you here."

When the decision to move was announced work of making the hazard of disease was going forward. One case of typhoid was reported, the patient being taken to Memorial Hospital, and five cases of dysentery were treated.

Confusion over Commander Waters' attitude following his conference with Gov. Ritchie in Maryland, reached its peak with verification at field headquarters here of Waters' announcement to the army to disband. Chief of Staff Doak E. Carter talked to Waters by telephone. He refused point-blank to carry out the orders, declaring:

"I will repeat your message to the army, but I will not order them to disperse."

WATERS DEFIED

National Contact Officer R. N. Ellison, second in command here, also refused to convey the order to the bonus forces.

To a hastily called conference of unit commanders, Capt. Ellison broke the news of Waters' announcement. In the dim-lit headquarters tent on the mud-soaked baseball diamond at Ideal Park, Ellison asked:

"Do you men want to go home?"

A chorus of "noes" was his answer.

The unit commanders, with upraised hands, took a solemn oath to "carry on until death." They went back to their individual groups to break the news quietly. Demonstrations were banned by official order.

Two hours later, after another telephone conversation, Ellison announced Waters' reversal of policy.

The latest statement attributed to Waters read:

"Since returning from Annapolis, I have been assured by responsible persons that property can be placed at my disposal in every state of the union to care for veterans who are B. E. F. members. Meanwhile, I advise the men at Johnstown to sit tight until they hear from me further."

McCLOSKEY ENRAGED

Mayor Eddie McCloskey became infuriated at the idea of the veterans breaking up here. He said:

"If Waters will give me authority to take over that Maryland site, I'll lead the army there myself."

At the height of last night's trouble one of the members of the contingent was reported to have publicly announced himself as "a Red." He then tried to run out of camp, but was brought back by the M. P.'s and turned over to headquarters officers, who checked him out of the B. E. F. and turned him loose.

Earlier in the day, a Ukranian Catholic priest denounced by Mayor McCloskey as a radical, was escorted from camp by the veterans and told not to come back. The pastor identified himself as the Rev. Father Elias Szkwarek, of Russellton, near Pittsburgh. He left Johnstown on the midnight train, protesting his innocence.

Father Szkwarek said:

"I have always been in sympathy with the ex-service man and believe that the government should pay the bonus. I went to Johnstown because some of the men in camp suggested that I arrange a field mass at the Eddie McCloskey camp. I am an American citizen, a Republican in politics, and never was associated with any radical organization for the last 24 years since I am in this country.

LOYAL TO FLAG

"I have always tried to uphold the United States law and be loyal to our government and the American flag. I would be glad if I could help in any way to have those boys get a bonus.

"As to Mr. McCloskey himself, he knows very well that before he was elected Mayor of Johnstown, I worked day and night in order to bring about his election. The trouble with Mayor McCloskey is that if someone does not agree with him on one policy, he either calls him radical or Red. I am willing to submit myself to any scrutiny as to my loyalty to the United States, and to the boys who have been fighting in the World War for the rights of mankind."

A mobile laboratory was being moved into Johnstown by the State Department of Health which today undertook the work of improving sanitary conditions under the direction of Maj. Coleman B. Mark, of Harrisburg. A corps of sanitary experts is co-operating with Maj. Mark and work of rearranging the facilities of the camp was being done by squads of veterans.

Government agents left here last night after an unsuccessful attempt to seize 32 tents, allegedly taken away from the District of Columbia by the veterans, driven out of the capital by troops last week. Deputy United States Marshal J. G. Lowers, armed with search warrants, writs of replevin and informations charging theft of government property against three veterans, returned to Pittsburgh emptyhanded.

COUNCIL COOL TO ESTEP'S WHARF PLAN

The question of borrowing money from the United States Reconstruction Finance Corporation for river front improvements has been referred by City Council to the controller, solicitor and Director of the Department of Public Works.

Congressman Harry A. Estep, who suggested that the funds be borrowed from the federal government, argued yesterday for an effort to obtain government funds. He told Council such a plan would give work, increase the values of downtown property and pay for itself in 20 years.

Members of Council expressed doubt that the wharf improvements would pay for themselves. President John S. Herron pointed out that revenue from all the wharves last month was only $4,900 and that the net earnings of the wharves from parking were less than $3,500.

The chief advantage, according to Estep, in borrowing from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be an interest rate of 3½ per cent as against the current 4¼ per cent interest rate on bonds. He said river interests had been so well treated by the government in the improvement of waterways that they would have no right to object to a waterfront improvement in Pittsburgh.

N. Y. Society Woman, British Etcher Wed

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dorothy Cumming Dakin, who played the "Blessed Virgin" in the motion picture passion play, "King of Kings," and Duncan Alan McNab, English etcher, are en route to Europe on their honeymoon, following their marriage here last Wednesday.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Victor Cumming, society matron of New York and Southampton, L. I., announced the marriage.

MacDonald Quits Holiday for Work

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald returned to London today from Lossiemouth, Scotland, where he has been vacationing at home, and immediately plunged into a series of conferences dealing with the Anglo-Irish economic war, the imperial conference at Ottawa, and Indian affairs.

The conferences were preliminary to an important cabinet meeting to be held tomorrow.

OUTING OF 28TH AT MT. GRETNA

Veterans of the 28th Division, A. E. F., will hold their annual reunion at Mt. Gretna, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Societe of the 28th Division, as the veterans' organization is known, will muster about 10,000. Brig. Gen. Albert J. Logan, Pittsburgh's only war time general officer, will be among the honor guests, which will include Maj. Gen. C. H. Muir, wartime commander of the outfit; Brig. Gen. William Weigel, Col. Dennis Nolan, and Maj. James Denson.

The Pittsburgh delegation, in charge of Maj. John H. Shenkel, will make the trip by automobile and trucks, the first detachment leaving the Gen. Logan Armory, Bayard street, and the 107th Field Artillery Armory, Emerson and Alder streets, at noon Friday.

The entertainment program, in charge of Ronald G. Thompson, includes an elimination baseball series, mushball, horseshoes, quoits and other sports. Herb James will be in charge of community music.

Assisting Maj. Shenkel in transporting the local outfits will be William S. Blough, George V. Murray, Martin Henning, Drs. E. M. Illand and W. J. Sterrett; Don Kimmel, French Ammons, James Trainor, George W. Cooper, Samuel D. Foster and Regis M. Welsh.

His Land of Promise Gave Hushka Promises—and Death

feet stumbling—clumsy hands fumbling. Just another big lunkhead, sitting on the edge of the gutter, chewing garlic sausage and black bread . . . trying to figure it all out . . .

So different this place from the thing he had imagined in that dark Lithuanian shop—so vast and swift and bewildering—how could a stupid lunkhead get the hang of it? No wonder people laughed and jeered as they passed him by, sitting there in the gutter——

BUT BILL DID NOT HEAR THEIR LAUGHTER. HIS HEAD WHIRLED. HIS EYES STARED. HIS FEET STUMBLED. BUT DEEP IN BILL'S HEART SOMETHING BURNED STEADY AND STRONG AND BRIGHT AS AN ALTAR CANDLE——

A VISION——
A WORD——
THE WORD "AMERICA."
BILL CLUNG TO THAT WORD.

IN SPITE OF ALL bewilderment, this was America and Bill was here . . . and some day he would be part of it all. Some day he, too, would know what liberty meant—would share equality—some day! That was enough for Bill.

One year. Two years. Jobs. Many jobs. Hard jobs. Dirty jobs. Cheap jobs. But steadily Bill forged ahead . . . hugging that flame, under all the weariness and dullness. Three years. Four. At last he had made his start. Gotten a stake. Bought a little butcher shop in St. Louis. Married. Had a baby——

Flame burning brighter now. Burning so clear you could see it in his eyes——

Then suddenly, out of that dark, whirling chaos he couldn't yet understand, came the war. Bill wasn't a citizen yet. Naturalization—that was one of the things he hadn't gotten the hang of. But that didn't matter. One thing he saw straight—AMERICA WAS IN TROUBLE.

THIS COUNTRY OF HIS DREAM—THIS COUNTRY, THAT STOOD FOR LIBERTY AND EQUALITY FOR THE POOR MAN—WAS IN TROUBLE. NEEDED HELP.

That was enough for Bill. He didn't investigate. He didn't make speeches. He didn't wait to be persuaded or drafted. As stolidly, as dumbly as he had walked out of the shop in Lithuania, he walked out of the butcher shop in St. Louis. Sold it. Turned the money over to his wife—to keep her while he was gone. Kissed the baby goodbye. Went down and enlisted.

A FEW DAYS LATER, at Camp Funston, Kan., they made a citizen of Bill at a camp ceremony. Bill, at last, was part of America.

Strange months. People smiling when he passed. People calling him a hero. Long articles in the paper—which Bill spelled out slowly—telling him that a grateful country would never forget.

Like a dream. Did he sometimes wake from that dream in terror—thinking what it might mean to lose one's life at twenty-one? Probably not. Bill Hushka was a simple soul. If America needed him—needed even his life—that was jake with Bill.

Then the armistice. And Bill came back home, marching through a nation laughing and sobbing and screaming and praying in a glad madness. Flowers. Promises.

But flowers wouldn't feed the family. Promises wouldn't buy back the little butcher shop. Somebody else had all the jobs.

BILL STILL BELIEVED IN AMERICA. SOMETHING WAS WRONG—BILL KNEW THAT. SOMETHING WAS DAMN WRONG. BUT IT WASN'T AMERICA.

So the bad years began. And stayed bad. Other men got jobs. Found their way back into the current. But Bill didn't. A lot of Bills didn't. And each year there were more. And more. Wandering around . . . looking for something. Willing to take anything. But nothing doing. Bad, bad years.

THEN CAME 1932. Everything gone. Even the wife and kid gone. No money. Bill was hungry. Bill, with millions more, was hungry. Bill was cold. Only one thought—deep inside—kept Bill warm.

BILL WASN'T ENTIRELY BUSTED—YET. BILL STILL OWNED AMERICA. AND AMERICA OWED BILL A BONUS.

BILL HADN'T ASKED FOR THAT BONUS. HE HADN'T GONE TO WAR TO GET IT. HE HADN'T EVEN EXPECTED IT. BUT IT HAD BEEN PROMISED TO HIM IN THOSE FIRST DAYS OF MAD ENTHUSIASM. HE WAS TOLD HE WOULD GET IT IN 1945.

BUT IF THIS WENT ON, BILL HUSHKA WOULDN'T BE ALIVE IN 1945. BILL WOULD BE DEAD FROM STARVATION. FOR THESE WEREN'T REGULAR TIMES. BUT BILL HAD DONE THINGS FOR AMERICA WHEN TIMES WEREN'T REGULAR. AND IT NEVER OCCURRED TO BILL THAT AMERICA WOULDN'T DO THE SAME FOR HIM.

So nine weeks ago, Bill Hushka marched to Washington, D. C., with the B. E. F. Made himself a dug-out. Settled down, with his feet in the mud, to starve and wait . . . to wait for America to get around to remembering those promises she'd made to Bill.

AND FOR NINE WEEKS Bill waited. Waited quietly—with his friendly eyes looking up at the big shots as they rolled by—without any bitterness. Not even any questioning.

EVER PASS A STARVING DOG IN YOUR SPEEDING CAR? REMEMBER THE LOOK IN THOSE HUNGRY EYES—THE PATIENCE AND HUMILITY OF THAT TREMBLING BODY? WITH THE POOR, THIN TAIL STILL WAGGING, TRYING TO JOKE?

That's how Bill looked. That's how 20,000 starving Bills looked—camping there—huddled on the capitol steps—waiting. Six hundred women among those starving men. Three hundred little children. Some of them died while they waited. Others were born—to gaunt, dazed mothers too weak to labor. Born in the mud of Washington, D. C.!

So Bill waited. Waited even after the bonus bill was rejected. Couldn't believe. Wouldn't believe that America wouldn't remember——

IT WAS A NUISANCE, seeing him sitting around like that. Seeing those dumb, expectant eyes—those rags over that starving flesh. It was disgusting to see Bill looking like that, as you flashed by in your shiny uniform and your shiny car on your way to some banquet—or as you sat, cool and comfortable, writing a speech. Disgusting and embarrassing! Something had to be done about Bill.

So something was.

LAST THURSDAY THE WASHINGTON POLICE, ACTING TO CLEAR FEDERAL PROPERTY AT THE INSISTENCE OF THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WENT OUT AND KILLED BILL HUSHKA.

HE had believed that America would help him when he was in a jam as he had helped America when she was in a jam. And he made a nuisance of himself by his believing——

So they killed Bill Hushka——

FOR BILL GOT WISE AT LAST.

And they buried Bill in Arlington. But will Bill stay buried?

I wonder.

DRIVE AGAINST 'RED' VETERANS COLLAPSES

14 Radicals Held for Deportation Freed By Government

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. — The bonus army will disband, but the aftermath of its eviction from the capital today led into the courts, the campaign and toward a congressional investigation.

The federal government planned to intensify its drive to send alleged rioters to jail while counsel for the bonus marchers redoubled their efforts to prove the veterans blameless of the disturbance which was followed by President Hoover's call for regular army troops.

POLICEMEN CLEARED

Two police privates, George Shinault and Miles Znamaneck, stood exonerated by a coroner's jury of blame for the fatal shooting of William J. Hushka and Eric Carlson, bonus veterans, in the first clash last Thursday.

Jesse C. Duke, counsel for the Civil Liberties Union, however, asserted that testimony at the inquest definitely showed there was no riot which justified the killings, and no excuse for President Hoover to call out soldiers.

Thus far the legal battles growing out of the situation have, for the most part, ended victoriously for the veterans and allied forces.

The "red drive" collapsed when 14 of 15 alleged radicals, held without charge for possible deportation, were released by police and immigration authorities. The group included Emmanuel Levin of the Workers Ex-Service Men's League. The release came as action on a writ of habeas corpus was pending.

8 TO BE TRIED

Eight "left wingers" of the bonus army, including John Pace and Walter Eicher, were to be tried on various charges growing out of their demonstration near the White House July 25.

Duke filed a motion for new trial in the cases of three veterans who were sentenced on charges growing out of the brickbat battle when police attempted to evict veterans from government property.

He charged in his motion that the veterans were not informed of their right of counsel, were not offered a jury trial and that the trial was held when the court knew that the witnesses in the bonus army "had been driven from this jurisdiction at the point of bayonets of the United States Army and with policemen's clubs and were not available to be called as witnesses for the defense of the defendant."

Village Frees Dog War Hero From License Fee

For the remainder of the dog's life neither the animal nor its owner, William McKeighan, Jr., will have to worry about a license for Goldberg.

This is because the village board of suburban Wilmette last night officially declared that Goldberg, mascot of the 122nd Field Artillery during the World War, could have a license without charge for the remainder of its life in recognition of its war record.

Goldberg was gassed in the Meuse offensive.

2D SLAIN VET'S RITES PLANNED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—A military grave in Arlington National Cemetery awaits Eric Carlson, of Oakland, Cal., second veteran fatally shot by police during the bonus trouble last week, if his family desires, the capital posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars announced today.

"We will arrange the same military funeral for Carlson that we did for William J. Hushka, of Chicago, if the family will send us permission to do so," said Harry F. Volkman, commander of the Front Line Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"He deserves a soldier's funeral and we would like to give it to him, but we cannot do so unless his family first makes a request by wire or through our California headquarters."

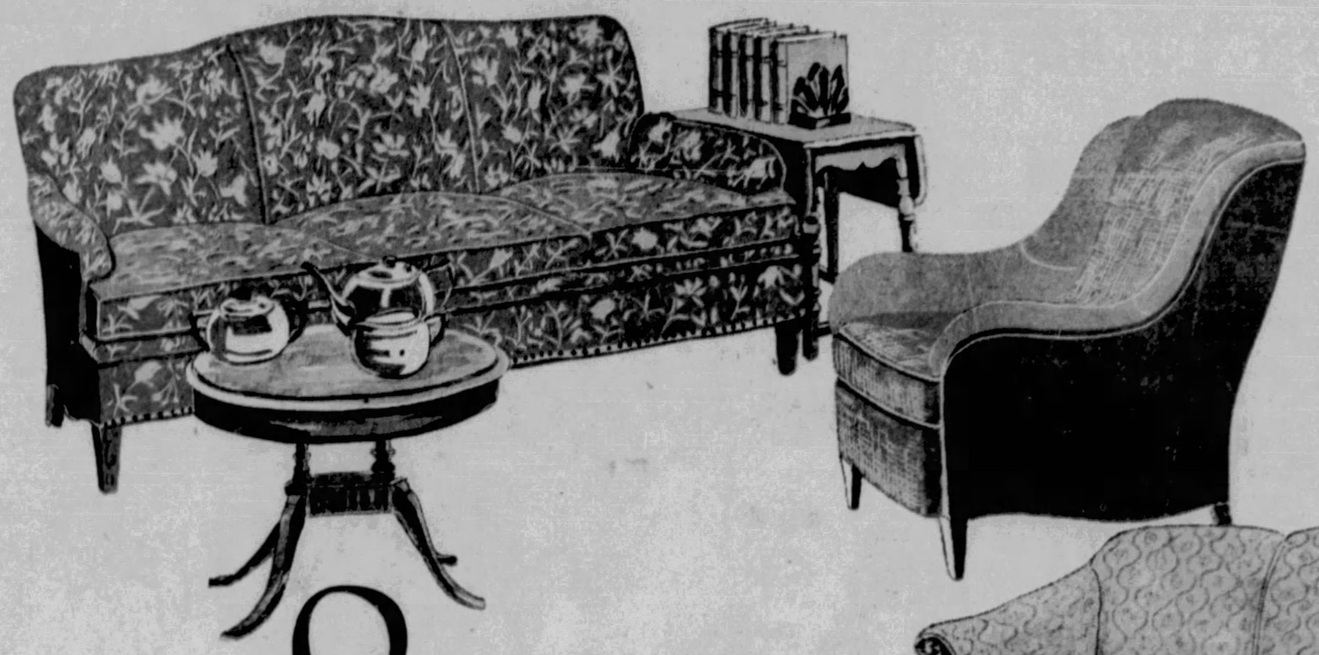
Now, As Ever, Quality Is the Watchword of Horne Furniture

DURING AUGUST EVERY PIECE IS OFFERED AT



15% LESS

QUALITY and beauty have so long been descriptive of Horne furniture that the expressions border on redundancy . . . but with these two attributes being so freely sacrificed nowadays to achieve the very cheapest prices, we feel that everyone interested in a beautiful home will be glad to know that dependability is still the keynote at Horne's.

Every single piece of furniture in our stock—from the lowest priced item to the most expensive—had to satisfy very definite standards of quality and beauty before admission to our store. Prices were very closely marked, so that the advantages of lower 1932 prices could be passed on to our customers. Selections were made so that every home—from a kitchenette-living room apartment to the most luxurious home—could be appropriately furnished with Horne furniture.

And as a climax to these provisions—during August a discount of 15% has been made on every piece of furniture in stock. No matter what your furniture needs . . . it's worth your while to see what we have to offer!

Convenient Payments May Be Arranged

IRWIN ROOMS

Come, see these rooms for yourself . . . and discover that their unusual beauty and striking originality can be translated to your own home! The furniture, for example, is surprisingly inexpensive . . . and you'll notice that it is scaled to the proportions of the modern home. Ideas galore are to be had from the hangings and draperies which were designed for each particular room. Floor coverings are part of the color scheme of each room, and dovetail with the period furniture used in every instance. We invite you to come as often as you wish, and bring as many friends as you want . . . ask all the questions you can think of . . . we'll be glad to give you all possible information about these remarkable rooms.

Your Choice of

$140

The focal point of your living room is the sofa . . . and this group of correctly designed English 18th Century pieces affords a selection worthy of the best homes. The three sofas illustrated—the sturdy Hardwick design at top, the slightly Victorian Deerfield at center, and the graceful Hackett model at bottom—may be chosen in practically any fashionable coloring and covering—tapestries, friezes, damasks or velvets. Another kidney-shaped sofa of the same period is also included in this group which is, undoubtedly, the most remarkable illustration of fine, lovely furniture this August Sale features at unbelievably low prices.

Lounge Chairs

$93.50

The same English feeling dominates the chairs illustrated above—which combine with any of the sofas. They were built for comfort—with deep, slanting seats, restful high backs and luxurious, soft filling. Coverings similar to the sofas may be chosen.

Ottoman to match, $14.50.

Be Friendly if You Really Want to Make Friends

Are you starved for friends, but frightened out of your wits at the idea of letting folks know it?

That's what has Beverly all snarled up.

She's young enough and pretty enough to never be lonely, but for all the good it does her, she might as well be cross-eyed and have black teeth. For—

"I just can't make up to people," she moans. "I want to, but I'm afraid they'll think I'm being 'forward.' And I am so sensitive that it simply paralyzes me."

Ever have that feelin'? Likely you have. There's nothing new or original about it. But what's the cure?

Dear Sally:

I hope you can give me some help, because I am so lonely and unhappy that I just can't stand it, and I don't know what on earth to do.

TRIES TO BE FRIENDLY

I am 20. I am blonde, and quite attractive, but it doesn't do me any good, because I am very backward when I am in company, especially if I have to meet new people.

I long to be friendly, but I just can't because I feel that if I try to be, folks will think I am being too "forward," and as I am very sensitive, I can't push myself. That seems to make people think I am snobbish, for which they don't seem to like me. They seem to think I am being "standoffish" on purpose. But oh, I am not! I do want to be friendly. But I don't seem to be able to believe that people really want me.

I like to go out and have fun like other girls, but I very seldom get a chance, because boys don't take to me; and if one does ask me out he wants to pet, and I won't do that, so they never take me out a second time.

SEEKS ADVICE

What can I do to get over feeling the way I do, and have some fun like other girls? Life is so terribly unhappy when it goes this way.

How can I learn to be a good mixer, especially with people I have not met before? Please help me, won't you? You help so many people that I feel you have some ideas that will solve this problem of mine. It is getting to be too much for me. I will be looking for your answer. I need advice so badly! What is wrong? BEVERLY.

What is wrong that you can't make friends?

Just one thing, Sissy—too much Beverly! Does that sound queer to you? It isn't. It is the truth. You don't get on with folks because your whole time is taken up thinking about yourself—about how you feel, and what kind of an impression you are making, instead of what others are thinking about or interested in or dreaming of.

You say you want friends. You don't, actually. You only want an audience—someone to flutter around you, and pat you on the back, and make life pleasant for you. And what inducement are you offering people to treat you that way? What reward, or sympathy, or stimulation, or jolly companionship? None!

FORGET ABOUT SELF

How'll you learn to be a "good mixer?" By being genuinely, warmly interested in other people, and forgetting Li'l Bev and her jetters. By remembering that other people are just as lonely and scared as you are, even if they don't look that way, and that they need the friendliness you can give them if you will.

No one will think you are "forward" because you offer them understanding and friendliness. They'll be pleased and cheered, and only too willing to reflect what you give to them. For we get back what we give in this world, little girl, and giving is the only way to get anything worth having.

So snap out of it! Stop worrying about yourself and your own "sensitiveness," and begin to be friendly if you want friendship.

By FAY KING

We think that we are very observing. But few of us are.

For instance, when we talk with a person we usually look at their eyes.

Yet if some one suddenly asks us the exact color of a person's eyes with whom we talk every day, how often we are in doubt, and perhaps wrong.

Too often we take it for granted that one who has light hair has light eyes, or that if the hair is dark the eyes must be dark also.

In making an identification nothing is more important than noting the color of the eyes for this cannot be changed.

Train yourself to be accurate in your observations. It will keep you alert, and become a valuable asset.

Madge Assures Dicky of Her Undying Love

"Oh! Dicky!"

I opened my door at his knock and drew him inside the room with hands that trembled. My husband caught them in his and drew me up to him.

"What's all this, sweetheart?" he said. "Has anything happened? Junior? Faith? No, or you'd be with them. What's up?"

The fear that had been with me ever since Hugh Grantland's code message, but which I had sternly repressed because I knew that my father expected us all to be soldierly in this crisis, rose to my lips.

"Is there nothing to worry me except the welfare of the children?" I asked, and realized that my voice was shaking as if with hysteria. "You're going out there tonight, and father himself says there is danger. Oh-h, I can't bear to have you go. Can't you stay here?"

"And let old Harry go without me. Perhaps I could send your father in my stead." Dicky's voice was suddenly stern, then it softened, and his arms clasped me closer.

"I shouldn't talk that way," he said, as he half lifted, half carried me to a big chair and sat down with me clasped closely in his arms.

"That's not my girl who was speaking just now. She's never been a coward, never failed to keep up her end of any load. You're just all in, darling, and I don't wonder. Lie still and rest for a few minutes. We don't have to go yet."

"I know, Dicky," I answered him brokenly. "I'm terribly ashamed for talking that way. It isn't that I'm afraid of danger. If I could go myself."

The clasp of his arms relaxed at once.

"Yes, I suppose it would be quite a thrill to go to the rescue of—" he said vehemently, all the tenderness gone from his voice, but I turned and put one hand gently over his lips, the while I clasped him 'round the neck tightly with my other arm.

DICKY APOLOGIZES

"Aren't you ashamed to say that to me?" I demanded. "You know, or ought to—that I had no thought of anyone or anything in the world except the wish to go into danger in your stead. Please, Dicky! You are going away from me in such a little while, and there is danger. Don't—don't be angry or cross with me for these few minutes. I—I—can't bear it."

He was crushing me to him now, lovingly, remorsefully, covering my face with tender kisses.

"My own girl!" he said "What a Gadarene swine I am—the whole herd of 'em! I'm possessed of seven devils every time I think of that man's coming here. And it's all because of what I told you before. He's the man who ought to be married to you. He's far fitter to be your husband than—"

I put my hand upon his lips again.

"That's why I asked you to come up here," I said. "I was afraid that utterly absurd thought was troubling you again, and before you go away tonight, I want to give you a little talisman against that false and ridiculous theory of yours. Will you listen?"

"Of course," and at the words I sprang to my feet drawing him up with me. Then I faced him, with my hands on his shoulders, and my eyes lifted to his.

"I love you better than anybody else in the world," I said copying Junior's invariable phrasing of his creed of affection. Then I added solemnly: "I never have loved any other man. I never shall love any other man, no matter what comes to us. Kiss me and tell me you believe me."

CALL FROM HARRY

With a little cry he caught me to him and for a brief wordless moment we "trod the stars." Then a knock at the door brought us back to earth, and with a muffled imprecation Dicky stepped aside while I opened the door. Lillian stood outside and her effect of casualness was beneficially steadying.

"Harry says you ought to be starting in 10 minutes, Dickybird, and I believe he wants to see you as soon as you can manage it. He's in his room."

She turned away upon the word and hurried toward the wing where the men of the family have their rooms.

"Tell him I'll be with him in 30 seconds," Dick called after her, then caught me to him in a last hurried embrace.

"So long, sweetheart," he said. "Don't you dare say 'good-bye' either here or downstairs. At that you'd better not be around when we go."

"Don't worry!" I told him. "I shan't be fussy—now. So long!"

But I had hard work to wait until I had safely locked the door after him before breaking into the storm of frightened sobs that I had been fighting for hours. It did me good, however, and in a few minutes I was able to wash my face, hide the ravages of my tears with cold cream and powder, and go downstairs to the kitchen where Harry and Dicky with the two men summoned by my father were preparing for the journey. Coils of new rope, specified by Hugh Grantland's coded telegram, lay upon the floor and each man's belt had a holster. I caught back sternly an impulse to beg once more that Dicky stay at home, and it seemed that the next minute the muffled purr of Harry Underwood's powerful motor car was receding along the driveway to the wood road.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Failure to Rid the Body of Poisons an Increasing Evil

Failure of elimination is one of the most common of all human complaints, and within recent years has become an increasing physical evil. It is believed that our modern methods of living are responsible for it.

Dr. Copeland

There are various types of constipation. The form met in young children is different from the faulty elimination of elderly individuals. In the young the disorder results from faulty habits and improper diet, and only rarely can be traced to an abnormal intestinal condition. There are other causes in the adult, among them lack of exercise, high pressure living and poor posture, while of course faulty eating is an important factor.

Health articles and the home magazines periodically publish advice about this disorder and give rules for its correction, but after all it is not easy to overcome it. It is true that diet, exercise and correct habit aid greatly in promoting elimination, but in spite of these many cases of constipation persist.

There is need of a thorough overhauling to determine the cause, yet many sufferers from obstinate constipation have never received the thorough physical examination by a physician that is necessary to find what is really wrong. This is of vital importance.

Many a case is caused by some definite disorder of the intestines, stomach, gallbladder or appendix, and can be cured only when such underlying cause has been removed. If the examination reveals no physical abnormality, the trouble may be classified as what the doctors call "spastic" or "atonic" constipation, the former frequently seen in children and the latter in adults.

In the atonic type of constipation diet is important. Usually there has been too little "roughage" in the diet, and benefit comes when lettuce, celery, spinach, carrots, beets, stringbeans, figs, dates, raisins and cooked fruits, prunes particularly, are added to the menu. All food should be slowly and carefully chewed, and meals eaten at definite and regular hours.

All constipated persons should drink six to eight glasses of water daily. Exercise is of value, its exact form to depend on the directions of the doctor. When exercise is not permissible, the abdominal walls should be massaged in the proper manner for 10 minutes each morning.

Laxatives and cathartics are of no value in the cure of constipation. Their use leads to an undesirable habit, and to take them habitually is harmful and prevents actual cure.

An enema should be taken whenever necessary, with only a pint of cool water. Larger amounts of water, especially if warm, may promote rather than help to overcome constipation. A teaspoonful of table salt or baking soda may be added to the water.

Answers to Health Queries

A. B. C. Q.—What causes a breaking out over the body like mosquito bites?

A.—This may be due to hives. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Q.—What is the cause of a pain I have in the left side of my stomach? It seems to be worse when I laugh or when I breathe quickly.

A.—This trouble is probably from indigestion. You should eat the simplest kind of food, avoiding tea and coffee. In place of white bread eat bran muffins or toast. Each day take systematic outdoor exercise and sleep in a well ventilated room.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Psychology and the Opening Lead

As contract bidding methods have developed, a great many players have added to their repertoire of bids the bidding of a suit which they do not hold, in order to prevent the lead of that suit when, with their holding and the cards they can place by their partner's opening bid, a game or slam seems certain if an unfavorable lead can be prevented.

However, defense in contract keeps abreast of the developments in attack, whether those developments are in the strategy of bidding or in the tactics of play. Some players make such frequent use of these bluff bids to prevent a lead that the opponents, who are familiar with their idiosyncrasies, refuse to believe them, and lead the suit anyhow. Probably the next development with this type of player will be to return to the original conception of bridge, which was bidding on the cards you hold, rather than those held by your opponents, and so the circle will have been completed.

Recently I saw an unsuccessful example of an inhibitory bid, because the opening leader saw just as far as his opponent, and through leading the suit which the bid was designed to inhibit, defeated a slam contract that would probably have been made, except for the inhibitory bid.

The bidding:

3 N T	Pass	6 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

West's choice of an opening lead was a difficult one. If North's diamond bid was based on real values, it might be the one lead to present the contract to the opposing partnership. On the other hand, the South player had a reputation for soundness, if lacking the effulgent brilliancy of his partner in the North. His bid was probably a sound one.

Thus reasoning, West decided to open with a lead of his fourth best diamond. East, of course, won with the Ace, and returned the suit, thereby defeating the slam contract 1 trick.

North's strategy had gone entirely awry, due to West's correct diagnosis of the psychology of bidding. While, as the cards lie, a slam cannot be made with a diamond lead, the diamond lead, considering the players, was made infinitely more probable by the attempt to prevent it than if North had followed the conventional procedure.

TODAY'S QUESTION

On what basis should the opening bidder raise partner's forcing takeout?

Answer—Opening bidder, in raising partner's forcing takeout, should revalue his hand on the basis of supporting tricks for his partner's suit, and if he has adequate trump support he should raise his partner's suit on the basis of one raise for every supporting-trick in excess of four playing-tricks indicated by the opening bid.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Place rouge high if you would brighten the eyes. The natural blush includes the ear lobes and the eyelids.

Face lifting can be a bungle or a grand success. Everything depends upon the skill of the surgeon. The hair at the temples is shaved away, incisions are made, tissue and muscles lifted, the wound stitched. For a time there may be a smooth, masklike natural appearance; after a few weeks the countenance takes on more natural expression. Tucks are taken in under-eye pouches, extra chins are deleted, flappy ears are strapped back close to the head where they belong. Oh! Wonders

In the past the medical profession curled up its honorable nose at complexion, hair and scalp ills. No man popped off because he was bald. No woman died of a harelip. Charlatans flourished, waxed fat and wealthy. Then came a change of heart. Now physicians and surgeons of high standing give time and attention to disease of scalp and skin. They treat acne, remove warts and moles. You can take your case of moulting hair to a specialist without fear of being kicked down stairs. Truth is, any woman can face a serious illness with greater courage than some defect that destroys a presentable appearance.

Household Hints

A teaspoonful of vinegar beaten into a dripping creamed for a cake will take away the fatty flavor and make the cake much lighter.

Keep silver bright by adding about three tablespoonfuls of borax to a bowl of hot water and leaving the silver in it for some hours.

Don't permit visitors to come in at bed time and play hard with baby, getting him laughing and excited. You will pay up for it later when baby spends a restless, fretful night.

Ink stains on the fingers can be removed by brushing with a soft nail brush dipped first in pure vinegar and then in salt.

When making a cake, add a tablespoonful of vinegar with a level teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in it instead of using eggs.

To prevent the colors in patterned materials from "running," and to revive and freshen them up, add a few drops of ordinary blue-black ink or vinegar to both washing and rinsing waters.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Letter of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I haven't been feeling well for a few months, and have sought the help of many doctors. After spending quite a deal of money and effort, none seemed to help. I then decided to turn to the country doctors for help. There I was taken care of by a Doctor Blank, and after examining me once, instantly found what the matter was and treated me accordingly.

Now, it has helped me, and I feel once again like a new person. I wonder if I should write him a letter of appreciation. Would that be necessary? Would that be the best of taste? Or in such a case where the doctor is not a family physician, should this go unmentioned? I would just like to tell him how much he has helped me.

I shall wait and see what you will say and then will be guided by your answer only. K.

Well do I realize how grateful you must feel, and I think that it is quite natural for you to wish to express your appreciation. It is, too, thoroughly proper and most gracious for you to do this, for all of us "human humans" enjoy being told when we have done good to another person.

You might begin something like this:

My dear Doctor Wells:

May I take the privilege, please, of telling you of my very deep gratitude and appreciation of what you have done for me? Before I came to you I had become so hopeless about ever being well, and it was like the sunshine through the blackest of clouds when you, through your genius, found the trouble and diagnosed my case so perfectly. I can't tell you how thankful I am to you.

The Correct Procedure

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the correct procedure to follow when one invites in-laws to dinner and they call at the time set for the dinner to say they are just leaving home. They arrive about two hours late, offering absolutely no apologies, nor any explanation of their act. I am very perplexed as to how to take this, and what attitude I should assume in the future. K.

I don't wonder that you were perplexed by such profound rudeness! A lateness of two hours is a terrible problem for a hostess. I hope that, if you had other guests, you did not wait that long for dinner . . . it is not required that a hostess wait more than a half hour, unless she wishes to.

I can't imagine the thoughtlessness of guests who are two hours late making no apologies or explanations. Is it their custom to be as impolite as this? If it is you probably, since they are in-laws, will have to accept this, with as polite a silence and understanding as you can summon to your aid.

If I were you, I should let this incident pass with no comment and with the graciousness that is always the characteristic of the perfect hostess. If it happens again, then you must adapt your invitation to this habit of tardiness . . that is, invite them to a buffet party where they may be late and still not inconvenience the other guests.

Fugitive for 6 Years Returned to W. Va.

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 3.—Calvin C. Lanhan, 49, of Clarksburg, W. Va., a fugitive for six years, arrested by members of the United States Bureau of Investigation, with aid of Canadian police at Montreal, Canada, as he was about to board a ship for Europe, was lodged in the county jail here yesterday. He will be arraigned before Judge William E. Baker, of the United States District Court, charged with robbing Baltimore and Ohio Railroad cars of merchandise.

P. O. TO ISSUE NEW CACHETS

Stamp collectors will be interested in a series of 12 commemorative cachets just announced by Postmaster General Brown and sponsored by the Postoffice Department. These are all identified with the New York City Washington bicentennial program and cover, in sequence, 12 dates of historic interest. The cachets will be applied to mail presented at the special substation now being set up in Federal Hall Building, Bryant Park, New York City.

The two first dates in the anniversary list of 12 are as follows:

August 7, 1789—The creation of the War Department by President Washington.

August 12, 1790—The final session of Congress held in the original Federal Hall, New York City.

The list containing the remaining 10 dates will be printed in the Stamp Collectors' department of next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph in ample time for collectors to apply for them.

Man Dies After Wife Bears Son

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 3.—Four hours after his wife had given birth to a son, John C. Walls, 20, former athlete at Brookfield and Sharpsville high schools, died after an operation yesterday in the same room at Buhl Hospital where his mother passed away a month ago. His brother, Grant, former assistant football coach at Danville, (Ill.) Nosmal underwent a blood transfusion in an effort to save the young man's life.

The Pittsburgh social world never seems to spffer from ennui, in spite of the depleting of the ranks by those bitten by the well-known travel bug. There is always golf or tennis at the country clubs, swimming at the Pittsburgh Field Club, the Little Sewickley Creek pool, or private pools, and the activities of the various organizations.

One of the few groups to continue meeting during the summer, is the Federation of Girls' School Societies. The next meeting will be on Wednesday, August 10, and instead of being in the Civic Club, as usual, this time the members will go to Harmarville Convalescent Home. Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, you know, is president of the Pittsburgh Federation. She has motored to Canada, but will return Friday, to attend the meeting.

To Return For Meet

Did you know that neither the Westmoreland Hunt nor the Pittsburgh Hunt will have horse shows this fall? The steeplechases of the Pittsburgh Hunt are being held instead of its show. As you already know the first is on August 27, and afterwards there will be a dinner dance in the new clubhouse.

More travelers include the Herbert A. Mays and the Theodore Smiths, who have been in Canada, as the guests of the Murray Flemings, of Toronto.

H. A. Mays In Canada

The William G. Costins are in Cape May for several weeks. The Lawrence D. Blairs have been joined in their motor trip to Canada by the C. M. Giles, of Maryland avenue. They'll all return in early September. Also attracted to Canada are the Ledlie W. Youngs, of Edgeworth, who have motored to Ahmic Lake, as the guests of the Finley Hall Lloyds, and later will visit the William P. Georges at their summer place in fashionable Beaumaris.

Anne Rose is to entertain with a house party at Ahmic Lake next week at the summer place of her parents.

Catherine Fawcett Weds Ray Steffey

M. L. Fawcett, of Linden street, Mercer, announces the marriage on Friday morning of his daughter, Miss Catherine Fawcett, to Ray Steffey.

Mrs. Steffey is a graduate of Grove City College, and the bridegroom, a graduate of the same college, is a member of the faculty of the Junior High School at Duquesne. After Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Steffey will reside in Duquesne.

South Hills Girl Wed at Church Ceremony

At 9 o'clock this morning in St. Canice's Roman Catholic Church, Miss Mary Louise Harmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Harmon, of the South Hills, became the bride of Daniel L. Daugherty. The altar was banked with ferns, palms and yellow roses and salmon colored gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory bridal satin, princess mode, having leghorn sleeves, puffed to the elbow, close-fitting to the wrist, tapering to a point. Her veil of ivory tulle cascaded from a cap of lattice-work tulle, with a chin strap. She carried lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Miss Dorothy Gremy, as maid of honor, wore yellow crepe with a black velvet turban and black lace, mitts, and carried yellow roses and garden flowers. Miss Helen Sullivan and Miss Mary Lyons, as bridesmaids, wore similar frock of peach crepe with black velvet turbans, black lace mitts and carried pink tea roses and garden flowers. The mother of the bride wore brown velvet with a matching hat and a corsage of roses and lilies of the valley.

Black Turbans

After breakfast in the Duquesne Council K. of C., Mr. Daugherty and his bride leave on a motor trip through Virginia. After August 15 they will be at home in Carrick.

Twentieth Century Club Lists Many Notables For Monday Lectures

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Noted authors, playwrights and lecturers as well as specialists in other fields, some of them strangers, and others who will be renewing an acquaintance of years with their audience, will appear at the Monday lectures of the Twentieth Century Club this season.

Such outstanding personalities as Clemence Dane, the playwright; Carleton Beals, the South American authority; Louis Anspacher, Bruno Roselli, Andre Morize, David Seabury, Henry Seidel Canby, V. Sackville West and Pittsburgh's own Andrey Avinoff have been booked for the season which begins November 7. Clemence Dane, whose new play Katherine Cornell is now reading, is the first speaker and will have "Writer and Reader" as her topic. Benjamin Adams, former associate editor of the Literary Digest, is booked for a current events talk the next week and Mark H. Haight, a young American, will give an illustrated talk on "The Romance of the English Inn." On the twenty-first, Mr. Beals following him with "What is Happening in South America."

Mr. Avinoff, speaking on "Art and Architecture of Russia"; Mr. Anspacher, speaking on "The Mob and the Movies" and Mr. Roselli (of Vassar) on "Art Along the Adriatic" will be December's speakers. Mr. Seabury, who was one of last season's most delightful visitors, will talk on "Our Undiscovered Resources." Mr. Morize will present the imposing title "Toward a New Order: Present Tendencies in French Literature;" William Starr Myers will have current events and Anita Block, play reader for the Theater Guild, will discuss significant plays —all in January.

'Art Along Adriatic'

The next month will bring Mr. Canby, Constance Rourke (to talk of American humor), James G. McDonald, president of the Foreign Policies Association; and Miss Sackville-West, the celebrated English author. In March "What Is Poetry?" will be answered by Oliver St. John Gogarty; Dr. Frank Bohn will discuss current events and Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, will talk of "Prisons and Prisoners."

English Author

April, with George Gordon Stuart's talk on "The Literary Relations Between England and the United States" and H. A. Overstreet's on "Prophets of the New Day" will conclude the season.

Another date has been preempted for an affair that is not altogether clubs, but partakes of society, too. The date is Wednesday, October 26, which has been set aside for the Edgewood Cot Club's annual bazaar. As usual, the affair will take place at the Edgewood Club and will be held both afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Chisholm Garland, who heads the general committee, is summering along Lake Erie, but is expected home shortly, when plans for the big event will rapidly be shaped up.

The first card party of the August series to be held at the Council House, of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, will be on Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Frank J. Boyle as general chairman. Mrs. Boyle will be assisted by Miss M. M. Cunningham, Mrs. M. M. Leith, Miss Ellen V. Young, Miss Tess Belanti, Miss Josephine McGovern, Miss J. J. Kinslough, Miss Alice Cunningham, Mrs. W. W. Maderia, Miss Grace Kelly, Miss Rose Danahey and Mrs. Catherine McGrath.

First in Series

Judging from the number of reservation cards being received daily at the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, the women's retreat movement recently launched for two summer retreats at Seton Hill College, Greensburg, promises success. Early reservations are asked by the chairman, Mrs. Mary T. Horan, for each retreat, the week-ends of August 25 and September 1.

City Hospital Head To Give Radio Talk

Dr. Joseph S. Baird, superintendent of the Municipal Hospital, will be the guest speaker for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women during the weekly radio hour tomorrow at 3:45 over KDKA. Dr. Baird's subject will be "Summertime Communcable Diseases."

State Federation Chairman Visits New Castle

Mrs. Charles S. Musser, of Lansdowne, State Federation chairman of county extension work, is in New Castle today contacting the Lawrence County Federation and is being entertained at luncheon by Mrs. S. G. Pearson, southwestern district chairman of conservation, in her home. The county board members are also luncheon guests.

Yesterday Mrs. Musser visited the Fayette County Federation in Uniontown. In addition to being state chairman, Mrs. Musser is vice chairman of county extension work in the general Federation.

Chester Johnstons Return Next Month

Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, former chairman of the drama department, Congress of Clubs, and Mr. Johnston and their daughters, Miss Helen Virginia and Miss Louise A. Johnston, will be home in September. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston left Pittsburgh early in June and have been guests of Walter W. Pollard, of "Millwood Farms," Tidewater, Va. They were joined there by their daughters at the close of Geneva College. The family is now at Ocean City, Md.

Margaret Patterson To Wed in Autumn

Miss Margaret Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Patterson, has chosen September 24 as the date for her marriage to William G. Johnstone, Jr., of Lancaster, Pa.

PEARLS AND POLISHED METALS LEAD NEW VOGUE FOR JEWELRY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 3. — Ever since some ingenious Parisienne tried wearing her jeweled clips in her hair about a year ago, fashionable French women have been taking up seriously the matter of jeweled headdress for theater wear. Practically every first night in the Paris theater these days brings out some new fashion in hair jewelry and in formal jewel fashions in general.

THERE SEEMS to be, among these fashionably dressed Paris audiences, a tendency toward jewelry of two types—pearls and polished metal. Bright gold and silver, as well as polished steel, make leaves and flowers that are worn as headdresses and necklaces. Little flat curls and curlyqueues of of metal are strung into odd formations to make jewelry pieces.

* * *

IN THE sketches, two types of metal leaves are shown as headdresses—the one a new way of wearing clips and the other a hair wreath. The clips are little gold leaves and are worn in pairs at either side of the part in the hair. The wreath, worn by Madame Agnes, the modiste, alternates silver leaves and flat silver curls.

MAGGY-ROUFF'S necklace, seen at a recent theatrical opening, makes use of discs and rectangles of steel, steel beads and little hollow cups—all mixed together in modernistic formation with bright red beads.

* * *

THE MEDIEVAL cap, with its two puffs at the back, is made entirely of little seed pearls. It is matched by a small vanity bag—also of seed pearls with emerald clasp.

An Important Statement by

Grabowsky's

ON THE PRESENT ECONOMIC SITUATION IN RELATION TO THIS YEAR'S

AUGUST SALE OF FURS

At the very outset, we wish to state that it is our unqualified opinion that the Low Point has been reached in the price of Fine Furs.

The great majority of retail establishments concentrated this year on the sale of real cheap fur coats, such as "Near Seal," and "French Seal"... coats that this store never has and never will handle. With the result that the finer furs are comparatively lower in price, and certainly better values.

We purchased our raw furs in January. Our judgment has been confirmed by events since then, for the fine, selected skins which we employ in manufacturing sold at that time at the lowest point in eighteen years. So that we are in a position to sell today

Hudson Seal Coats
in the advance new 1933 Styles at

$135 SIZES UP TO 36 . $145 SIZES UP TO 44

These coats are of identical quality with those we sold two years ago at $285

The August price will positively be withdrawn at the end of this month, when all our coats, both Fur and Cloth, will advance in price an average of 25%.

Women have learned during the past year that cheaply-made merchandise is not an economy, and it is certainly false economy to buy a cheap fur coat at any price. Fortunately, there is no need to buy an ordinary fur coat this year. All the fur coats in this establishment are now being sold at the lowest prices since 1914.

The entire store is equipped with
FRIGIDAIRE
Air-Conditioning and Cooling System

You can try on the new coats without discomfort no matter how warm or sultry the day in the

PINCHOT CALLS AINEY LETTER CHILDISH

HARRISBURG, Aug. 3.—Gov. Pinchot, in his statement to the Senate today accepting the resignation of W. D. B. Ainey, chairman of the Public Service Commission, said:

"W. D. B. Ainey's resignation, under fire, is good so far as it goes—very good indeed.

"It is conclusive proof that the charges made against him were sound, and it rids the Public Service Commission of a member known to be unfaithful and unfit.

"But Ainey's resignation by itself does not show how far the public utilities have carried the evil system of which he was a representative, nor how far it has tainted the commission.

"It does not show how far the public utilities have used or are using corruption to secure and maintain their present iniquitous rates and charges. The people of Pennsylvania are entitled to a complete answer to these questions.

'Defense Childish'

"Ainey's defense is childish. Does he expect any one to believe he did not know that A. W. Thompson, president of the Philadelphia Company, paid his hospital expenses at Johns Hopkins Hospital from December 23, 1925, to April 9, 1926?

"On the hospital reception card appear the words, 'Bill to A. W. Thompson, address, 435 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh.'

"Did those words get there without Ainey's knowledge?

"The hospital records show that Ainey's bill for his three and one-half months' stay was more than $3,100, and that Thompson paid all but $91 of it. Truly Ainey must have believed in Santa Claus.

"Ainey was well enough in January, 1926, to travel from Baltimore to Harrisburg (in a Pennsylvania Railroad private car) to vote in favor of Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company's 8-cent fare.

"If he was well enough to transact the business of the Public Service Commission, he was well enough to know who paid his bills.

Used Private Cars

"Ainey often used private cars on the Pennsylvania Railroad. In his reply to my first charges he swore that he had never accepted any favors from public utilities.

His statement of yesterday says:

"I have not received any favors from railroads. When I traveled on the railroads of this and other states I paid my railroad fares and the charges incident to the same."

Ainey says he is a poor man. Do poor men travel in private cars?

Ainey's statement of yesterday says, as to the Chapman charges:

"My answer as furnished to the Governor under date of July 11 is a complete refutation of these charges."

The Senate investigating committee found what was in effect a bill of indictment on the Chapman charges alone. Chapman charged that Millar gave Ainey money.

"Millar swore that he had not paid for Ainey's ticket to Europe in 1927. The original records of the steamship company, banks and ticket agents prove that he did.

"Ainey now expects the public to believe without the slightest offer of proof, that he paid the money back.

"And Millar has not explained how he used almost $16,000 from Mitten Management and Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to pay his (Millar's) expenses for a five-week trip abroad.

"Ainey was charged by Chapman with accepting from Mitten large amounts of money in cash.

"In 1928 Ainey bought $10,000 of preferred stock in a Harrisburg small loans company and paid for it in bills.

"Later he paid a large amount owing to a Harrisburg concern in $100 bills. In Boston, when he entered Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, a bank account was opened with $5,800 in bills.

"Legitimate transactions of this size are not carred on in cash, particularly when the payer has bank accounts in three or four cities.

Hotel $122 a Day

"Ainey pleads poverty. The Attorney General has in his possession accounts of a New York hotel showing that in January, 1930, Ainey's bill for himself and nurse for a single day was $122.20, and in October of the same year his bill for a single day was $65.16.

"Do poor men incur such charges?

"It is generally known that when Ainey became a Public Service Commissioner in 1915 he was penniless. During the years 1926 to 1931 he clipped coupons on more than $100,000 of bonds.

"On November 15, 1930, he purchased a home in Harrisburg for $30,000, subject to a mortgage which within 18 months he reduced by $15,750, the full amount of his salary for that period.

Cites Records

"Before me on July 11, in a written statement under oath, Ainey denied ever having been a guest at the Ambassador Hotel, New York. Photostatic copies of the hotel records were laid before the Senate committee which prove this assertion to be false.

"At the same hearing I invited Mr. Ainey to establish his innocence by laying before me his financial situation when he became a Public Service Commissioner and bringing it down to date. He flatly refused.

"Mr. Ainey is no older than I am, but he is not as well. It is, however, sheer nonsense to contend that to prove his innocence, if it exists, would overtax the strength of a man who is well enough actively to direct the affairs of the Public Service Commission.

"I repeat that Ainey's resignation is proof of guilt.

"But I repeat also that Ainey's guilt or innocence is comparatively insignificant. What the people of Pennsylvania want to know and what they have a right to know is the truth and the whole truth concerning the relations of the public utilities of this state and the Public Service Commission.

"They will not be satisfied until they do know. And until they do know they will rightly believe that the public utilities have deliberately corrupted the commission and used it as their cat's-paw to pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

AINEY ATTACKS HIS ENEMIES

HARRISBURG, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—After the resignation of W. D. B. Ainey as a member of the Public Service Commission had been announced to the Senate, John P. Connelly, counsel for Ainey issued the following statement for Ainey:

I am nearly 70 years of age and owing to my physical condition, which has grown steadily worse, I am advised by my physician, Dr. Shaw, that I cannot undertake to go through the arduous trial which now confronts me in view of the Senate investigation.

It is with keen regret that I am compelled to make this statement. I owe it to the public as well as to myself to face my accusers and to demonstrate my innocence. But my physical condition is such that I would not be able to stand up under the strain of a trial. I have come to this conclusion with a great deal of reluctance.

'I Am a Poor Man'

I am a poor man. I have no means of carrying on this trial, and were it not for the faithful and loyal devotion of my personal counsel I would not be able to go as far as I have.

In tendering my resignation to the Senate and the Governor I want to say to the people of this commonwealth and to the friends who have loyally stood by me in this matter that I am innocent of the various charges that have been made against me.

The Chapman charges were founded in blackmail and my answer as furnished to the Governor under date of July 11, 1932, is a complete refutation of these charges.

The Governor has seen fit to make additional charges and for which he has fixed a public hearing on August 8, 1932. As to these latter charges I want to deny each and every one of them.

Hospital Bills

I never directly or indirectly had any notice or knowledge that A. W. Thompson paid my hospital expenses at the Johns Hopkins Hospital if he did pay the same. Mr. Thompson had no authority from me directly or indirectly to pay these bills if they were paid by him. It was a distinct revelation to me when this charge was presented against me.

During the time that I was at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, I paid whatever bills were rendered to me and if my physical condition would permit, it was my intention to show the Senate of Pennsylvania or any committee thereof, the amounts of money that I paid to this hospital. This being so it is manifest that the Thompson story could not have been true.

I was a very ill man while I was in the Johns Hopkins Hospital and my life was despaired of and I am not familiar with what took place in the hospital owing to my condition.

I have asked no charity from anyone and this applies to Thompson as well as anyone else.

'Received No Favors'

I have not received any favors from railroads. When I traveled on the railroads of this and other states I paid my railroad fares and the charges incident to the same.

When I went abroad in 1927 on the Berengaria I paid Mr. Millar $940 or $960, representing the amount of my transportation, and neither the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, the Mitten Management Company, A. B. Millar or anyone else ever paid my expenses to Europe.

As to the allegations of the Governor that I am a rich man, I can only say that this charge is untrue and unfounded. When I came to Harrisburg from my native town of Montrose, Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania, I had by thrift and industry acquired some means. I had been a successful practicing attorney. My wants were few and my demands were simple. I leave public service today a poor man, broken in health and in spirit and my only regret is that I am not able to face the enemies who gather around to destroy my reputation in the twilight of my life. I bow to the inevitable for I have no control over my physical condition.

Cites Record

I have been a member of the Public Service Commission for 17 years. During that time I have endeavored to do my duty in accordance with my oath of office and of conscience.

In leaving the scenes of these activities, my delightful associations with the members of the commission, I do so with the keenest regret, but more so the fact that base imputations have been cast upon my fair name. I leave it to those who know me and who have had daily contact with me and those who had public relationship with me to judge whether or not the statements as made and widely broadcast without an opportunity of explanation on my part are true or false. I can say to those who knew me that they are false and so I rest my case.

(Signed William D. B. Ainey.)

BURDEN OF DULL PUPILS CITED

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, president of the State Teachers College at Slippery Rock, has found that backward children in one-room rural schools cost Pennsylvania many millions each year because they take 11 years to finish the eighth grade.

He told the public school teachers conference here today that there are 59,000 boys and girls who take the extra three years.

At a minimum cost of $75 a year, the added expense totals $13,275,000—what he called the annual retardation bill.

He advocated adoption in Pennsylvania of larger units of school administration and said one result would be cutting down this waste. Through it, he declared, there can be greater use of combined school facilities, better teachers and better instruction.

Walker Denies He Seeks Governorship

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—It was all a mistake, that report Mayor James J. Walker, if ousted from office by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, would be a candidate for Governor, the Mayor himself said today.

$8,000 to Fight Mine Flames Favored

An ordinance to provide $8,000 to continue to fight the mine fire at the Crafton Borough line was presented yesterday in City Council. Members indicated they favored spending the money provided Crafton continued to bear one-fourth the expense.

The fire is threatening to work around the end of a ditch dug to confine it.

SUMMER CLASS TO GRADUATE

Commencement exercises for the summer session at Duquesne University will be held Friday. Degrees will be conferred in the Campus Theater at 2:30 o'clock. The Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of the university, will award the diplomas.

Arrangements are being made both in the downtown division of the university, Fitzsimons Building, and on the uptown campus for the fall enrollment. A new department of the university this fall will be that of commercial education, in the school of education. Dr. Ray J. Worley, formerly of Langley High School, will be its director.

DUNN ASSERTS FAITH IN CITY

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, paid tribute to early industrial pioneers of the Pittsburgh district in a talk last night from KDKA. The address inaugurated a series of radio programs entitled "Pittsburgh Industries." He said:

"Nobody need worry about Pittsburgh's future. Pittsburgh is a synonym of power and it will always continue to be that in this age of giant power, all the more because our great power plants located right at the mouth of the mines make it possible for our industries to have inexhaustible supplies of the cheapest electrical power in the world. Pittsburgh has around it more population within 500 miles than any other large city in the United States."

Firemen Arrange Boat Trip Programs

River excursions to be given by Pittsburgh firemen August 27 and September 3 will include in their programs dancing and cards. The steamer Washington, engaged for the trip, will leave Wood street at 2 p. m. each day, returning at 7 p. m.

The August Sales of FURS

SAVINGS

Sales have come and gone! Values have reached new "highs"....prices have tumbled to new "lows!" Now comes a new chapter in Fashion's book of seasonable apparel—the August Fur Sales! Even in a period of extra-values such as we are experiencing today, these sales stand out for the Savings they afford every potential fur-buyer this August. Qualities have been kept up to their former high standard regardless of their sagging prices. That same fine seal coat with the detachable fur scarf collar which you coveted this time a year or two ago, is now at a price which puts it into the class of sound investments! And every coat appearing in these sales has the new 1932 Fall and Winter styling....apparent in the sleeve treatments and widening-above-the-waist. Consider carefully the new selections of furs which are on display now, and you will realize you are witnessing a chapter on the savings to be made on furs this season.

- Not only the larger department stores, but also the smaller specialty shops, have prepared their fur coat stocks to give you the most you have ever received for your money . . . and less money at that! There
- are a number of partial payment plans by means of which you may have and wear your fur coat while paying for it (something to remember as you look towards Fall and Winter). By keeping a lookout on
- the advertisements which appear in this newspaper you will find the fur coat sales which are best suited to your taste and purse!

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

TRAFFIC DEATHS SHOW DROP HERE

Traffic fatalities in Pittsburgh dropped more than 13 per cent during 1931, it is reported in the annual resume of the Bureau of Traffic Planning. The year's total deaths in traffic was 172, as compared with 198 for the previous year.

The bureau points out the safety record was established in spite of an increase of more than 5 per cent in traffic fatalities in the entire state.

DEVICES ERECTED

Preliminary reports for the first half of 1932 indicates the accident trend is downward, according to the bureau.

Safety precautions taken during the year included installation of 48 additional stop and go signals, construction of 47 new street car loading zones and placing eight additional pedestrian signals at intersections.

INVESTMENT HEAVY

Investment in traffic equipment in Pittsburgh, excepting maintenance, amounted to approximately $700,000, the report says.

The foreword to the report reads:

"As soon as one improvement has been made and one fault corrected, the improved condition makes possible increased traffic, and a new problem arises."

SNAKES BOTHER CUSTOMS MAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—If Congress had only seen fit to forget about a tariff on snakes, life would be much easier for Anthony Czarnecki, collector of the Port of Chicago.

Since Tuesday Czarnecki has had as his wards an assortment of five snakes and six lizards, consigned from Germany to Rudolf Patzig, who is traveling in Saxony with his own pet snake.

Czarnecki says he will no longer feed the snakes and anyone desiring to save them from the nearest museum, had better speak up.

Dates for Voters To Qualify for November Polls

Here are the dates on which residents of Allegheny County may qualify to vote for President and other offices at the November election:

September 7—Last day to be assessed for payment of poll taxes, a tax receipt being necessary to register.

September 8—First registration day in second and third-class cities, including Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton.

September 20—Second registration day.

October 8—Third and last registration day, also last day to pay poll taxes.

September 6 and 7—Register assessors will sit at polling places in boroughs and townships to list those who may have been omitted in house-to-house canvass.

SENATOR BORAH ON AIR -:- Herbert, Friml Gems on KDKA -:- TRIBUTE TO SOUSA

International Debts Topic Of Statesman's Address On WJAS Tonight

"International Debts, Other Foreign Problems, and the American Farmer" is the topic of an address by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, over a Columbia chain, including WJAS, tonight from 11 to 11:45. The broadcast originates at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, where Senator Borah will speak at a summer session convocation under the joint auspices of the University and the Minneapolis and St. Paul branches of the Foreign Policies Association.

Margaret Both Schotte, soprano, of Rotterdam, formerly of Pittsburgh, who is visiting here, is starred at 8:15 tonight on a program originating in the studios of KDKA to be rebroadcast in Holland by Station PH9 at Hulzen. The program is carried across the Atlantic through the short-wave facilities of W8XK.

Program Pointers

Tribute is paid to the late John Philip Sousa by Edwin Franko Goldman when a program of Sousa marches is broadcast over an NBC network including WCAE tonight at 8:30. During the program a baton once wielded by the "March King" will be presented to Goldman by Mrs. Sousa ... On the same station at 9, Countess Olga Albani returns for a second concert as guest artist with the Revelers and Victor Young's Orchestra. Her featured solo is "I'll See You Again," from Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet." A medley of hits from "Of Thee I Sing" also is included on the program.

Mr. Goldman

George Burns and Gracie Allen, who learned all about scenarios during their recent trip to Hollywood, enact the leading roles in a "detective" script on WJAS at 9 o'clock.

Music redolent of the South and of the plantations in Virginia comprises the Corn Cob Pipe Club program with Pat Binford and Buck Bannister, barnyard impersonator, on WCAE at 10 tonight.

Fan Fare

Slim, blonde and blue-eyed Utila Torgerson is the young dramatic actress who portrays the famous sirens of history on the Famous Loves programs on WCAE . . . She came from Sweden via Hollywood and Broadway to radio... Away from the microphone, Miss Torgerson is a polo enthusiast, owns her own pony and doesn't play a bad game . . . Leo Reisman commutes from Swampscott, Mass., for his Friday night programs . . . Tom Curtin, author of the cigaret hour police dramas, is a baseball fan. He once was a southpaw pitcher at Harvard and follows the destinies of the Boston Braves and the Red Sox. He hails from Boston.

Miss Torgerson

As a result of the increased postal rates, many radio fans are delivering their letters to artists in person. NBC has provided a special place on the hostess' desk as a local clearing house for such missives.

Joshua White, the blues-singing boy from South Carolina, obtains that wailing tone on his guitar by stringing it as loosely as possible and using a vibrato pressure with his left hand. He plucks the strings with his finger nails, which he keeps filed to the right length and point for his work, and disdains the use of artificial spurs.

The marriage of Harold Jackson, NBC engineer, to Edna Cunningham, of the Chicagoettes radio team, has added another "green" in the chain of coincidences. Jackson lived on Greenfield lane when he was in England. In Chicago, he lived on Greenwood avenue in the Greenbrier Hotel until after the wedding, when the couple took a home on Greenview avenue.

Chimes of the Millvale Lutheran Church ring at 7:45 tonight to announce the marriage of Lottie Lawson and Pete Weldy, WCAE artists.

REDS DISRUPT JOB RALLY

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Sponsors of the mass meeting on unemployment which was riotously interrupted by a Communist demonstration considered today holding another gathering in Town Hall to complete the unfinished rally.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell, chairman of the joint committee on unemployment, presided at the meeting. After a number of speakers were heard, Communists started a demonstration and captured the platform.

3D M'CORMICK WEDDING SEEN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Friends of Harold F. McCormick, multi-millionaire Chicago manufacturer, and Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, New York socialite, today understood they planned to be married soon. McCormick said:

"I have known Mrs. Doubleday for years. She is the most charming woman I have ever known. She is very fascinating. I'll not affirm or deny any reports. Ask Mrs. Doubleday."

Although she declared that the report was "absurd," Mrs. Doubleday declared:

"Mr. McCormick and I have been friends for years. I will say nothing further."

A relative explained that "any announcement will have to come from Mrs. Doubleday's mother, Mrs. J. J. Tanner."

Von Gronau Predicts Overseas Air Mail

How One Woman Lost 20 Pounds of Fat

Lost Her Prominent Hips, Double Chin, Sluggishness

Gained Physical Vigor—A Shapely Figure.

If you're fat—first remove the cause!

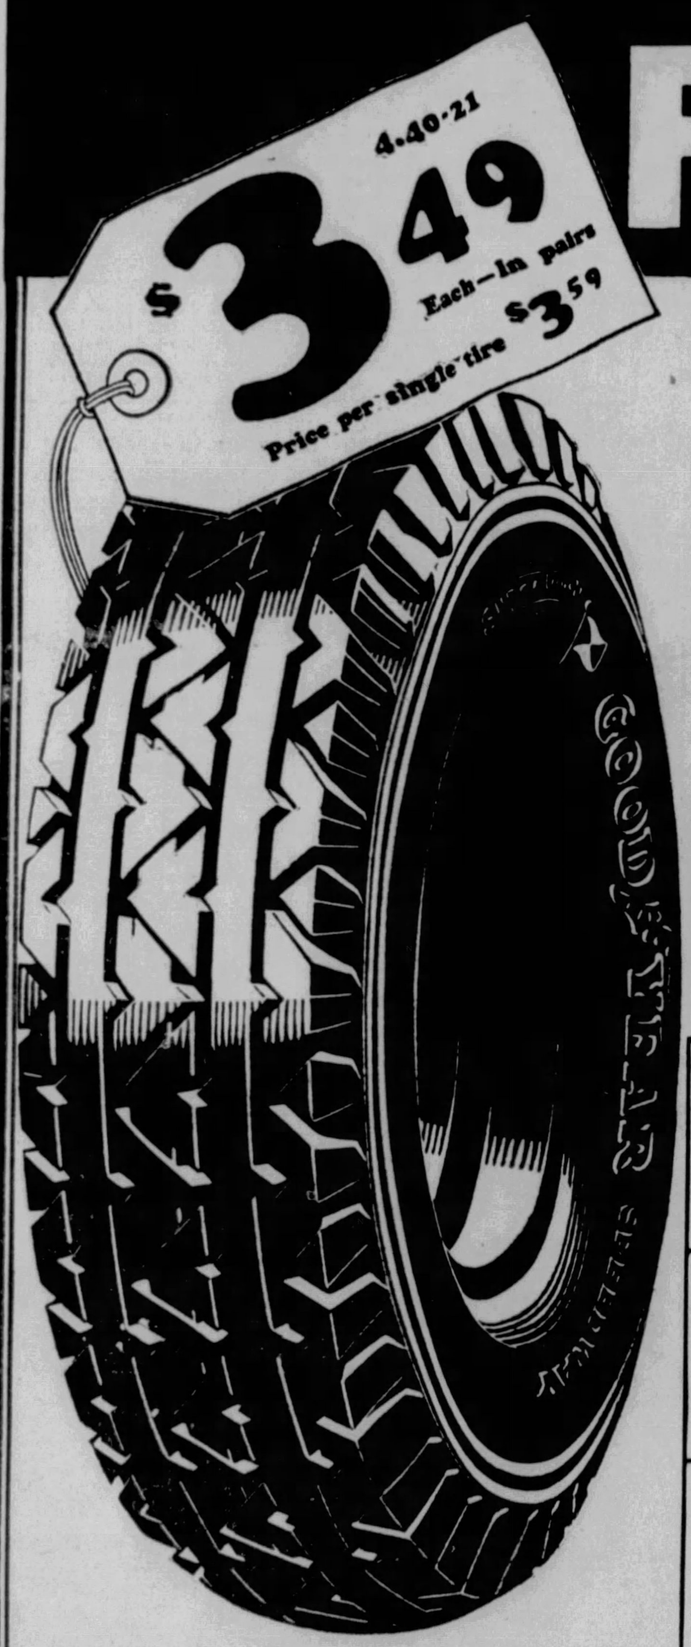
Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning—in 3 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—you feel younger in body—Kruschen will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

But be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—and SAFETY first is the Kruschen promise.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts from any leading druggist anywhere in America (lasts 4 weeks) and the cost is but little. If this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, SAFEST and surest way to lose fat—your money gladly returned.

YOU BET IT'S LOW PRICED



—but the greatest name in rubber is back of that price tag!

That's a bargain worth buying—as millions of car owners know by experience. When Goodyear Tires sell at prices like this, it certainly pays to say to yourself: "Why be satisfied with any second-choice tire? FIRST-CHOICE costs no more!"

Just save the DIMES

The dime bank is the 1932 way to save money. Small deposits that won't be missed, even under today's conditions . . . yet these small savings can run into thousands of dollars.

We have between 3,000 and 4,000 accounts here which were built up through dime banks. Come in; get a dime bank and start.

CITY-COUNTY HEADS CUT ALL PAY BUT THEIR OWN

POLITICS

Senate's Ainey Policy Proves Poor Strategy

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 3.—Politics rather than purity or piety dictated the action of the State Senate in forcing Chairman W. D. B. Ainey, of the Public Service Commission, to resign in the face of charges by Gov. Pinchot that he had been guilty of misconduct in office.

Mr. Shields

And it was a species of politics which limped and stumbled, as has so much of the strategy of the Republican state organization in recent months. Belatedly the Senate acted to save its face, but principally to prevent the Governor ramming home the evidence against Ainey. It did what smart politics dictated it should have done a week ago.

So soon as the Governor presented documentary evidence of alleged financial relations between Ainey and utility heads, notably Arthur W. Thompson, late president of the Philadelphia Company, Pittsburgh, the organization senators, for years supporters of Ainey in his wars with the Governor, were convinced the case could not be defended at an open hearing.

They, as well as many utility chiefs who were chagrined and alarmed at the revelations, wished Ainey to resign. Despite his invalidism, Ainey still was full of fight. He had defeated the Governor in hand-to-hand combats before, and could not realize that he now would be deprived of the Republican organization backing he had enjoyed in those controversies.

Wanted to Spike Guns But Didn't Dare

He stood pat and there was not in the organization leadership the strategic astuteness or backbone to force a showdown then through the same means the Senate adopted Monday night. There was every desire to spike the guns the Governor had loaded for another salvo, but no determination to go through with the business.

For a whole week the organization leadership staggered about, fearful of what the Governor might be holding in reserve. Not from within itself came the instructions and the impetus which finally brought the procedure which, adopted swiftly and brusquely, might have taken some of the heat out of the Governor's fire.

Now the question is to the fore as to what has been accomplished. Have the Governor and the Democratic state and national campaign management been deprived of a valuable issue in the presidential campaign? Has the state Republican organization so handled the situation as to be able to claim credit for eliminating a public official accused of receiving favors from corporations whose earnings were in great measure dependent upon his decision?

Probably not!

Pinchot Can Easily Show He Forced Issue

It will not be difficult for the Governor, with his flair for publicity, to point out that he forced the issue, even though the Senate in its belatedly militant resolution calling Ainey for trial completely ignored him.

That resolution was not without humor. The Governor had dug up all the charges against Ainey. His investigators had obtained the photostatic copies of bills at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, apparently showing that Thompson had paid Ainey's bills, and other photostats evidencing that Ainey's expenses to Europe had been paid by a representative of the Philadelphia Street Railway interests.

Yet the resolution ignored the name of the Governor entirely. A stranger reading it would not even have known that a man named Pinchot was Governor of Pennsylvania, and was responsible for all the flurry. The committee seemed to make it appear that it had dug up the evidence, and was pressing it to a conclusion in a furore of outraged virtue.

Knowing Mr. Pinchot, it is not conceivable that this subterfuge will prevail.

Thorough Utility Inquiry Headed Off

What the Senate has accomplished is to squelch any thorough inquiry into the utility situation. The Governor would have liked a public trial, that he might make public other allegations he is believed ready to lodge, and fear of which was in the back of the minds of organization senators and utility chiefs alike. Indeed, the senators were told quite frankly that a trial of Ainey might wreck more than one reputation.

Shutting off of the inquiry is not going to stop the Governor. He will find some means to write on the public record further accusations. They will be not so much against Ainey, a rather pitiable figure because of his probably fatal illness and the precipitancy with which he was deserted by those with whom he had stood so long. The accusations will be against the structure of utility organization, and they may attain weight because there will be no official opportunity to deny them.

The whole episode is but further evidence of the blind arrogance of a political organization, a repetition of the picture in Allegheny County, where politicians felt so assured in their tenure of office that they never suspected a day of reckoning would come.

2 HURT AS CAR HITS POLE

Frank Simons, and his wife, Flora Simons, 7507 Susquehanna street, were injured when Simons swerved his car to avoid hitting another machine and crashed against a pole at Frankstown avenue and Collier street late yesterday.

Mrs. Simons, suffering a probable skull fracture, was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital. Her husband was treated at the hospital and then taken to his home.

Hyman Ostrow, 51, of 930 North St. Clair street, was injured while riding in a car driven by his son, Isadore, when another machine struck the rear of their car at North Negley avenue and Broad street yesterday.

Swerving her automobile to avoid hitting a truck which stopped suddenly, Mrs. F. C. Shriver, of Morgantown, and Elizabeth Peaters, 32, of Star City, both of West Virginia, were injured when the car struck a pole at West Liberty avenue and Pauline street, yesterday. Both women were taken to Mercy Hospital.

PICCARD READY FOR NEW CLIMB

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Fully cognizant of the extreme hazard of his venture, Prof. August Piccard, noted scientist, who on Monday plans a new ascent into the stratosphere, today launched final preparations for his death-defying climb 10 miles above the surface of the earth.

Wearing the same battered panama hat which sat atop his curly, graying hair, on the first attempt, Prof. Piccard waved away scientific assistants and workers at the Dubendorf air field, preferring to do most of the preparatory work himself.

In explanation of his careful preparations he said:

"In the stratosphere one does not always know what might happen. The wind sometimes reaches a velocity of 120 miles an hour. It is quite conceivable we may be blown clear to Africa. For this reason, we shall have a radio."

OCCUPATION TAX LONE HOPE FOR STATE RELIEF

Bills' Passage Doubtful; Failure of Special Session Indicated

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 3.—A disguised income tax is the sole, doubtful and controversial hope of the Legislature for revenue with which to raise funds to finance unemployment relief.

Proposed excise taxes on soft drinks, cosmetics and cigarets, as well as a direct income tax, have been discarded by the House, their hope of passage dubious in that body and certain of defeat in the Senate.

The crisis in the relief session will come next week when an "occupational" tax bill, reported by the House Ways and Means Committee last night, will be up for final passage. It went through second reading in the House today, and then both branches of the Assembly adjourned for the week.

LONE REVENUE BILL

With the exception of this bill there is nothing before the Legislature with which to provide revenue for the $12,000,000 Talbot relief bill, which has passed the House and is in committee in the Senate. Efforts to provide relief revenue through economy have failed completely. The sums shorn from government expense by the Steedle bill are sufficient only to balance the budget and restore the abatements made necessary in appropriations to hospitals, mothers' assistance funds and state-aided institutions through passage of a $10,000,000 relief bill in the last special session.

The bill, starting with a projected saving of $27,000,000 has been pared until the net saving now authorized is $13,791,476. There is no legislation for salary cuts, the House yesterday even rebuffing a proposal by Representative George Williams, Tioga County, that as a gesture of good faith the members subscribe $100 of their special session pay to relief in their counties.

JOB TAX PROVISIONS

The occupational tax bill initiates a basic tax of one dollar, probably to be levied against housewives and wage earners in the lower classifications. A board consisting of the State Treasurer, the Auditor General, the Secretary of Revenue, the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee is created to establish various classifications

Ingram Celebrating Its Birthday

A SECTION OF INGRAM BOROUGH'S PARADE . . . . . THE TOWN'S THIRTY YEARS OLD!

INGRAM HONORS ANNIVERSARY

Ingram Borough celebrated its thirtieth birthday last night with a parade and a program of addresses and motion pictures. A parade through the principal streets of the borough opened the ceremonies. Burgess C. C. Ditmar was general chairman, aided by Council members.

The American Legion, the Volunteer Firemen, Boy and Girl Scouts and business men of the district were in the line of march, which ended at the borough building in Thorndale street. Speakers were J. D. Rex, first burgess; D. H. Hainer, first borough clerk; M. J. McMahon, first Council president; Burgess Ditmar and Garrett H. Geerlings.

A concert by the Firemen's Band and singing by the Ladies' Choral Club preceded the motion pictures.

Herron Thinks City Can Do Without Orchid Grower

A request from Supt. of Parks James N. Moore for an addition to the payroll an "orchid grower" at $2,100 a year, failed to make ay headway just prior to the economy session of City Council yesterday.

President John S. Herron said:

"An orchid grower may be all right, but in these times, with people starving, he might be misunderstood. Let this work be done in the regular way."

Assessing Is Needless Expense to City; Work Of County Duplicated

The taxpayers of Pittsburgh, carrying a huge burden now, could be saved $100,000 a year in reduced taxes if Mayor Kline and Council should abolish the department of assessors, and $8,000 by consolidating city and county departments of weights and measures.

The city assessment is declared to be unnecessary, and for the most part, a waste of taxpayers' money.

For that matter, every borough and township and third-class city in Allegheny County, governmental observers say, could abolish its assessors, by whatever name they operate.

In the county government structure, there is a bureau for the assessment and revision of taxes. For it, the taxpayers of the county (and city residents, too, pay a big part) are paying $599,000 this year.

Most important is this—the city department of the city assessors, simply do the same work that is done by the county. They are duplicating and the city taxpayers are paying the bill twice.

A small department of transcribing clerks, it is asserted, could get duplicate assessments of city property from the county department. The expenditure of the more than $100,000 permitted by city councilmen and the Mayor, is declared to be extravagance.

The same is true of the boroughs and townships. Duplicate copies of county assessments in their bailiwicks could be obtained. McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton could do likewise.

Assessment is apparently found to be one of the most flagrant violations of good government and economical government. But it does furnish many political jobs.

The county is compelled to make exclusive assessments in the cities, boroughs and townships. It records, or should, every citizen eligible to vote. And here it is noted that these records could eliminate, too, the registrars of the registration commission, whose job it is to duplicate these.

It is estimated the county is spending $220,000 to make city assessments this year. More than $150,000 of this total is for salaries of the assessors, board members, and subordinates. The remainder is for the work outside the city.

The salary list in the city departmentf or men who are doing the same job—less work, as a matter of fact—is $108,000.

Mayor and Councilmen can save almost $108,000, at least $100,000, for the taxpayers.

And while arranging to use the county's assessment records, the city might also eliminate the city division of weights and measures and let the county department do it. The county this year appropriated $30,615 to protect the people from dishonest merchants. The county has 10 agents. The city budgeted $16,763, of which $16,303 is for wages. The county salaries total $30,000.

ELIMINATE WASTE IN GOVERNMENT

And the state also has an inspection bureau, which checks over both these departments.

Suppose the city division transferred half of its men to the county, a saving of $8,000 would still be possible without any legitimate claim that efficiency and protection standards had been lowered.

The $108,000 saved in the abolition of two city departments might warm the hearts of the people. The theory of economy carried far enough would save a lot of citizens their homes and businesses, and possibly attract new ventures back to Pittsburgh.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 3.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Saw an event yesterday that took real nerve. Twenty-six army officers from 10 different countries had to ride four miles up and down hill over 22 jumps high and solid. If a horse hit 'em, they drew 'em just as they started. They started at five minute intervals. No one, including the three Americans, had ever seen the horses. He had to be his own judge of the speed his horse could stand up under. Now you talk about nerves (and no nation has any monopoly on it), they were all great, and our American army horses were fine. You would have been proud of 'em. Don't let Brisbane or anybody else who is going to fight the whole next war entirely with planes and poison gas, do away with the cavalry. There is certain things you can't replace the horse in, and war is one of 'em. Yours, WILL.

KLINE, COUNCIL STILL DRAWING BIG SALARIES

Commissioners Also Fail to Share in Economy Move

The heads of the city and county have made no move to reduce their own incomes, although they have fired, furloughed and cut wages among the rank and file of the payroll.

Records show that City Councilmen receiving $8,000 per year have taken no furlough this year, although even the forces of the city clerk's office, directly connected with Council's offices, have already accepted a pay reduction of three-eighths of a month.

KLINE DRAWS FULL PAY

Mayor Charles H. Kline has thus far in 1932 accepted no reduction in his $15,000 a year salary. The great mass of city employes have been docked one day out of every two weeks' pay.

The County Commissioners, with the chairman receiving $15,000 a year and the other two commissioners $12,000 each, have made no move to cut their own salaries, although they have "standardized," as they call it, in all sections of the county payroll.

The seven department heads of the county, known as directors, are paid $8,000 a year.

Controller Robert G. Woodside is the only county official to have volunteered to cut his own salary. Woodside said recently:

"I am not in favor of cutting salaries and wages. It simply adds to distress. But if it has to be done, I insist that my salary be cut in proportion to the employes of my department."

In the city, most employes have been following the plan adopted in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, where every two weeks a day's pay is withheld. At the end of the year this will amount to 24 days' pay. Six days will then be taken out at one time to complete the 30-day furlough.

PLANNED IN BUDGET

The understanding at the time the budget was closed was that the month furlough was to apply to all city employes with the exception of those who have received flat cuts in salary in the pruning of the budget.

Thus far this year, for 14 pays, members of Council have each received their full $333.33 every two weeks, while the Mayor on the same periods has drawn $625 each pay day. Council recently adjourned subject to special call. During the month of July two meetings were held.

This month is expected to be much more active, as the Mayor and Council combine to wrestle with the economy problem.

Last fall records show that Council took two weeks without pay. Should they take a month now in the emergency which confronts the city, a saving of $6,000 would be achieved.

Council President John S. Herron, asked yesterday when Council will reduce its own salaries, said:

"Council will act at the proper time, but it will not be forced into doing it."

Pinchot Vetoes Fees For 'Trick' Auto Tags

HARRISBURG, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Calling its provisions "inexcusable discrimination," Gov. Gifford Pinchot today vetoed the Turner bill which would have imposed additional fees on all applications for special automobile license numbers. The fee for tags with letters only would have been $5 and for all other letter and numeral combinations, specifically requested, $2.50.

If the Army Is Ours, Let's All Make Use of It

BURDEN OF HUGE PAYROLL LAID TO MAYOR

Clash Follows Report Urging $1,307,833 Economy Cuts

President of Council John S. Herron has firmly refused to allow Mayor Charles H. Kline to place the burden of city payroll and salary reductions entirely on the shoulders of City Council.

A sharp debate between the city's chief executive and the president of Council was settled late yesterday when it was agreed that both Council and the Mayor should meet today at 2 p. m. with department heads to discuss payroll slashes.

This action followed a report by Controller James P. Kerr showing a current city deficit of $1,259,119 and a written suggestion from A. E. Braun, head of the Mayor's finance committee, for payroll and fund eliminations totaling $1,307,833.

KLINE, HERRON CLASH

Heated debate between Kline and Herron, with City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt supporting the Mayor, was heard in silence by other members of Council. When the Mayor declared that the matter of payroll reductions was entirely up to Council, Herron interrupted. He said:

"As chief executive, it is your duty and ours too, of course, to keep within appropriations, Mayor, it is you, and you alone, that can make drastic changes."

Mayor Kline replied:

"You know I can not cut the salary of a living soul."

Here both men began to raise their voices and Herron asked:

"Are you going to argue with me or listen to me?"

"I'll listen, Your Honor."

CAN ELIMINATE JOBS

When Waldschmidt broke in to defend the Mayor's position, Herron said it was no wonder the Mayor had trouble. Herron admitted that the Mayor could not cut salaries but declared that Kline could act immediately to eliminate positions for which the city had no money to pay.

The Mayor blamed Herron for not asking him what to do about economy, and Herron declared he had done so in a letter from which he had never received a reply. It was then agreed to hold the conference today.

Controller Kerr, in announcing the large city deficit, served notice on all departments that they must observe the most rigid economies to avoid an even more alarming deficit.

Up until July 15, there was a total decrease in city revenues, as compared with last year, of $3,825,060. Of this amount, $2,592,544 was in current tax collections, but a substantial part of this decline was due to a 2½-mill decrease made in the city tax rate at the beginning of the year.

SCRIP THREAT LOOMS

The situation is so alarming, according to the communication from the Mayor's committee, that unless immediate steps are taken to slash the payroll, the city will be forced to pay its employes in scrip before the end of the year.

With the earning power of the taxpayers reduced 56 per cent, immediate steps should be taken to reduce the salaries of city employes to a level comparable with those who pay the taxes, the letter stated.

The Mayor's finance committee includes a number of the business and financial leaders of Pittsburgh. Since the receipt of their letter, City Hall has been humming with activity as department heads have sought to build up arguments to protect their own departments. If carried out in its entirety, the cut would remove the jobs of more than 360 city employes.

The payroll eliminations and other savings suggested by the committee total $1,307,833.

Following is the program:

Departments to be eliminated and estimated saving:

City Planning Department	$ 18,216
Shade Tree Division	5,934
Art Commission	1,948
Bureau of Smoke Regulation	12,210
Bureau of Handicapped	4,910
Bureau Traffic Planning	113,675
Asphalt Plant (temporary shut down)	194,233
Temporary employes, Treasurer's Office	19,089

Departments to be cut in half:

Department of Assessors	$ 31,622
Bureau of Building Inspection	52,032
Street Cleaning	161,001
Schenley Park employes	12,000
Schenley Golf Course employes	4,500
Schenley Conservatory	14,992
North Side Conservatory	6,989
Highland Park employes	12,022
Highland Park Greenhouse	2,154
Highland Park Zoo	9,089
Riverview Park employes	10,230
West Park employes	8,821
Carnegie Lake Swimming Pool	8,064
Bureau of Parks Grounds and Buildings	15,000
Women's and Children's Recreation	17,000
Men's and Boys' Recreation	12,000
Temporary employes at swimming pools	10,800

Bureau to be transferred:

Bureau of City Property to Public Works Department	6,648

Appropriations to be eliminated:

Balance Emergency Relief Appropriation	$254,906
Chartiers avenue improvement	100,000
General repaving appropriation	41,957
Digest fund	8,050

A reduction of 20 cents per hour in the wages of all temporary employes was also suggested, offering an additional possible annual saving of $254,000.

OCCUPATION TAX LONE HOPE FOR STATE RELIEF

for tax purposes. The maximum tax would be $500.

Machinery is set up for hearing appeals by wage earners claiming to be improperly classified. Exonerations can be made by the board, apparently to eliminate as taxables unemployed citizens. Estimates of possible revenue, admittedly open to challenge, are $12,000,000—the amount of the Talbot relief bill.

It is assumed the money would be distributed by the board on the basis of unemployment in the several counties, which would make the share of Allegheny County slightly over $2,000,000—using the allocation of the former $10,000,000 Talbot bill as an index.

Sentiment in the House is sharply divided on the bill. Its proponents advance as a strong argument, that it runs but for one year and will fall on those best able to pay. From the smaller counties, where members claim their is little need for relief, there is antagonism. If the bill passes the House Monday night it must run the gauntlet in the Senate, where sentiment thus far has been against any tax legislation.

MARTIN OPPOSED

The Governor, who has asked for $45,00,000 of the $300,000,000 federal relief loan fund is to return to Washington tomorrow for a further conference with the federal officials.

Accompanying the Governor on his visit will be Senator James Boyd, president pro tem. of the Senate; Speaker C. Jay Goodnough, of the House; Senator Harry B. Scott, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee; Representative Philip Sterling, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Secretaries Alice Liveright, of the Department of Welfare; Clyde L. King, of the Department of Revenue, and Attorney General William A. Schnader.

As a result of his visit to Washington yesterday, the Governor said he was more convinced than ever that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, before granting loans to states, would have to be convinced that all efforts of the states themselves toward relief were inadequate to meet demands of the coming winter.

A direct income tax bill is on the House calendar, but it is to be sidetracked for the occupational tax proposal.

Children Won't Oppose Marriage Of Squire, 79

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—When a man gets to be 79 years of age he's old enough to decide whether to marry.

This seems to be the opinion of the children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Justice of the Peace Samuel Harrison, the 79-year-old marrying judge.

They are reported to have been opposed to the judge's plan of marrying Mrs. Emma Christensen next Saturday, but later to have changed their minds.

Hence the judge, who has married nearly 17,000 couples himself, will not have to elope, as he threatened to do if necessary, with his red-haired bride-to-be.

Girl Rows 30 Hours Through Sea Storm

NICE, France, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—A remarkable feat of endurance by a Swedish girl of Viking strain, Anna Cederblom, who rowed a boat for 30 hours in a storm, was reported here.

In a tempest on the way from Calvi to Nice, the small boat on which she was making a trip around the world, shipped water. Stopping the engine, she rowed until the boat was taken in tow by the steamer Cyrnos, 30 miles from Nice.

GOVERNOR ASKS $10,000,000 AT ONCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Early relief for the 1,250,000 unemployed in Pennsylvania out of the $300,000,000 fund of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation set aside for that purpose, was in sight today following a personal appearance before the board of directors of the corporation by Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who asked for $10,000,000 "as soon as possible." He will ask for loans totaling $35,000,000 at a later date.

Emerging from the conference room after his session with the board yesterday, Gov. Pinchot said he had presented a strong case in picturing the imperativeness of Pennsylvania's needs.

He told the board that there are 1,250,000 totally unemployed persons in Pennsylvania and 800,000 on half-time work, and that together, these constitute more than half the working population of the state. He told the directors:

"We have 8 per cent of the population of the United States, and 10 or 12 per cent of the unemployed.

"I have estimated that it will take $40,000,000 to care for the unemployed between August 1, this year, and the first of next April. That would mean just keeping these people alive—that's all."

After an hour's interview with the board of directors, Gov. Pinchot departed and said he would return Thursday morning. He said the board had "invited" two members of the State Senate and two each of the House of Representatives and the administration to appear at the Thursday meeting.

The Governor was provided with a questionnaire which is to be distributed to all governors outlining the procedure to be followed in obtaining relief loans from the R. F. C. This questionnaire was drawn up yesterday by Fred C. Croxton, assistant to the board of directors.

Gov. Pinchot said the need of Pennsylvania for federal aid to relieve unemployment distress is especially urgent in view of the fact that under the state's constitution it is limited to obtaining loans of only $1,000,000 at a time. He said it would take approximately two years to carry through a constitutional amendment that would lift this restriction.

Headed State Police, Now Guard at Mill

WEIRTON, W. Va., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Harry L. Brooks, deposed last year as superintendent of the West Virginia state police, has begun work as a night patrolman at the coke plant of the Weirton Steel Company. Before becoming state police head Brooks was chief of the Weirton Police Department.

Health Record Set Despite Hardships

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Whatever hardships and privations the American people suffered in the past year, their health today appeared to be on the highest level reached, according to statistics compiled by an insurance company.

The death rate of industrial policy holders the first half of 1932 was only 9.2 per cent, the lowest ever registered for the first half of the year. Decreases in tubercular, pneumonic and virulent influenza cases was noted.

Hay Fever Attacks Not Entirely Due to Pollen

About 6,000,000 people in the United States (or 5 per cent of the entire population) suffer from either hay fever or asthma, or both, according to official estimates. Although both diseases are classed as non-fatal, both cause a degree of suffering beyond the imagination of people who have never been afflicted with them.

For years it has been the common belief that dust and pollen were the underlying causes of Hay Fever. But more recently investigators have been asking, "If that is true, why do not all people living in weed-infested areas have Hay Fever?" The belief is growing that dust and pollen are merely aggravating factors, and not the true cause.

It has also been shown that about 70 per cent of the children born to parents who have both Hay Fever and Asthma, will at some time in life have symptoms of these diseases. This, too, seems to indicate that something more basic than pollen must cause Hay Fever.

This belief is further borne out by records, made in recent years, of thousands of cases successfully treated for a cause existing within the system of the individual.

HAY FEVER CAUSE DISCOVERED

Those who suffer from hay fever or bronchial asthma, will be gratified to learn that at last science has succeeded in discovering the basic cause of these two maladies.

Fortunately for all who suffer from these diseases a way has also been found to overcome this basic cause in the individual instead of merely treating the surface symptoms, as has been done in the past.

Full information and an important booklet on the discovery of the cause of hay fever and bronchial asthma will be sent free to readers of this publication. Simply write Dept. 8456, The Fugate Co., 126 S. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind.

This ends the argument!

75 SCIENTIFIC TESTS PROVE OLD GOLD THE COOLEST, THROAT-EASIEST CIGARETTE

Next time you listen to an argument as to which is the best cigarette, you can chip in with something more than an opinion.

You won't have to say: "I think the tobacco in OLD GOLD is purer and finer." Instead, you can say: "I KNOW OLD GOLD is better; it's made of finest natural flavored tobacco. Science has proved it!"

As surely as Science can assay pure gold, so it can tell which cigarette is basically the choicest. It did that with 4 leading brands. It made 75 tests of 4 competing cigarettes . . . and found the smoke of an OLD GOLD definitely cooler . . . indicating its superior tobacco quality and purity.

"Coolness" is the clue to cigarette quality. Only the finest and purest tobacco burns "cool." That's the tobacco in OLD GOLDS. The choicest Turkish and domestic leaf; free of heat-making flavorings.

Evidence, not adjectives. If you welcome this change in a cigarette advertisement . . . you'll welcome a change to pure-tobacco OLD GOLD.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

The Verdict of Science

This is to certify that in 75 repeated cool tests made of the 4 leading cigarette brands . . . measuring the heat content of each cigarette in B. T. U./lb. with the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter, it was shown that:

Old Gold averages 112 B.T.U's. Cooler than Brand X
Old Gold averages 155 B.T.U's. Cooler than Brand Y
Old Gold averages 156 B.T.U's. Cooler than Brand Z

SEEK WALTERS IN SLAG HAUL INQUIRY

County detectives today were hunting Roy Walters, secretary to the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, to subpena him for testimony before the grand jury in the investigation of Watson Bowser's $200,000 county airport slag hauling contract.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said the inquiry cannot be closed until Walters is questioned before the jury. He was sought yesterday without success. Park said he did not think Walters would try to evade the summons.

Park subpenaed County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and former Commissioner E. V. Babcock yesterday, going in person to their offices with the summons as a courtesy, rather than send detectives for them. Both responded. Each was questioned for nearly an hour.

Witnesses also included George Chalfant and A. A. Reed, the latter a salesman for the Duquesne Slag Company, who which Bowser hauled slag to the airport. The president of this company, A. R. McKenzie, has been questioned several times by the jury.

M. C. Conick, auditor, was before the jury, checking over figures in the hauling contract.

ENJOYING 'NATIONAL KIDDIES DAY'

YOUNGSTERS AT WEST VIEW PARK AS GUESTS OF THE PARK AND THE SUN-TELEGRAPH

CHILDREN JAM PARK; COUPONS GOOD FRIDAY

Nothing has happened in Pittsburgh this summer that created quite so much excitement among boys and girls as the celebration of National Kiddies' Day at West View Park yesterday.

The youngsters, furnished with free tickets by the Sun-Telegraph, swarmed the rides and amusement devices by the thousands. In many instances entire families attended, taking lunch baskets along. It was really one of the biggest "kiddie" days that Pittsburgh has ever known—almost too big in numbers for the unrestrained enjoyment of the youngsters. They were all supplied with strips of free tickets.

The demand for tickets has been so great that many youngsters were unable to redeem their coupons, as the supply became exhausted Monday night. For all who were disappointed, however, another party has been arranged for Friday of this week, and holders of coupons, by going to their nearest exchange station, may get the new tickets for Friday's party for their coupons.

Tickets are also exchangeable at the downtown branch of the Sun-Telegraph, Fifth avenue and Market street, or at the Sun-Telegraph main office, Telegraph Square.

These thousands of youngsters who attended yesterday's celebration are indebted to Manager F. L. Danahey of West View Park for both of these parties, the Sun-Telegraph co-operating.

SUSPECTS HELD IN ROBBERIES

J. B. Thomas, 17, of Winston Salem, N. C., who, according to city detectives, admitted robbing stores Downtown and on the North Side, selling the loot and then stealing some of it from the purchasers to sell again, was being held in Central Police Station.

Thomas was returned here from Wheeling, W. Va.

Accused of stealing sugar valued at several thousand dollars from the Terminal Warehouse, South Fourth and McKean streets, Louis Magrini, 29, of 457 Natchez street, a truck driver, and Joseph Sawyer, 42, of 626 Arlington avenue, warehouse employe, were held for arraignment in South Side Police Court.

John Sarako, 19, of 1213 Muriel street, was held today by South Side Police in connection with the theft of shoes, socks valued at $2,000 from the Ruffenbach

TOWN HALL FEE UMPIRES NAMED

Three arbitrators, Attorney Wilbur L. Austin, Harry E. Leety, of the Fidelity Title & Trust Company, and Attorney William Secrist, selected to pass on the $150,000 commission claim of Alderman John J. Verona for the sale of the Oakland town hall site to the county, will meet in a day or two, it was said today.

Verona brought suit against the Schenley Farms Corporation, of which F. F. Nicola is the head, to obtain his commission. The arbitrators were selected yesterday in the office of Prothonotary John Vogt. The three were selected from 15 names presented by Vogt.

Butterfly Hordes Block Auto Travel

LASSEN NATIONAL PARK, —Cal., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Orange-winged butterflies by the millions invaded Lassen Park and the surrounding country today. The insects were so numerous as to hinder motor travel, obstructing the vision of drivers and clogging up radiators.

Park officials believe the butterflies are migrating towards the Sacramento Valley.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

A. C. Blumenthal, associated with the late Florenz Ziegfeld in the revival of "Show Boat," and who assumed management on the death of Mr. Ziegfeld has announced that the musical play will continue in New York until November, after which it would make a road tour. In memory of Mr. Ziegfeld the show will be closed for one day, but he announced no date, the possibility being that it will be when the body of the late producer arrives in New York. It is planned, too, to have some public tribute on that occasion.

York and King, veteran vaudeville artists, whose "Tintypes" used to make us laugh in the good old days in the Davis, last week appeared for the fifty-second time in a bill in the Palace, New York, which was the goal of all variety people in the times when two-a-day aristocrats used to boast if they ever got to that stage. Though veterans, York and King showed their class by topping the bill.

Norma Shearer still occupies the dressing room she had on her first day on the "lot" . . . Paul McGrath, former local stocker, is a member of the company of the summer theater in White Plains, N. Y., which this week is presenting "The Bachelor Tax," a new play, prior to its New York opening . . . Maureen O'Sullivan seldom receives fan mail from Ireland, her native land . . . His backer having proved to be that, and to have found a way out, Phil Baker has stopped where he was on his plans for a debut as actor-producer, but he is looking around . . . Jean Hersholt, swell character actor of the films, has celebrated 10 of his birthdays on a train . . . Paul Muni is growing a beard for his role in "I'm a Fugitive," and the whiskered scenes will be shot first, barefaced ones later . . . Karen Morley never wears a hat except in pictures . . . Beth Merrill, former Belasco star, will end a lapse of several years from the stage when she appears in "Exit the Queen," in Atlantic City, August 15, prior to the New York showing of the play . . . For his part in "Rain," Walter Huston had to get himself a permanent wave . . . The last business act of Florenz Ziegfeld was to give rights for the production of "Whoopee" as a presentation in combination houses . . . Speaking of combination houses, there has been no intimation as to when—or if—stage shows are coming back here . . . Lionel Barrymore, it is said, writes and composes in his spare time between pictures.

Fairbanks Visit Leper Colony

Among the places of interest visited by Douglas Fairbanks while making his new feature, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," was the leper colony on the Island of Tahiti, where 150 adults and 25 children afflicted by this dread malady are confined. This disease, Doug discovered, is infectious but not contagious. In the colony the patients are permitted to marry. When children are born, however, they are immediately removed from the station, and thus protected from infection they grow up free of the disease, according to medical authorities who have them in charge.

Doomed

Busiest Leading Man Assigned Role

Joel McCrea, Hollywood's busiest leading man, has been assigned the leading role in "Sports Page" by David O. Selznick, executive vice president in charge of RKO Radio production. McCrea, who but a few days ago finished the lead in the Merian C. Cooper-Ernest B. Schoedsack production, "The Most Dangerous Game," will assume his new role within the next two weeks.

Marie Dressler Never Attended School

Marie Dressler has never been inside a school classroom. Until she was 13 years old, her mother taught her at home. After that time she was traveling in various theatrical companies, studying her lessons from the daily newspapers and from books borrowed from members of the company.

The Wise Man

STANISLAUS MARCEWICZ was indeed a wise baby. At the tender age of 2 he could tell when his mother was slipping him goat's milk instead of the cow brand. At 3 he could sing the Polish National Anthem by heart, and at 4 he could lift a coin from his father's trousers as neatly as a chorus girl could lift the mortgage on an old homestead which never had a mortgage and never was an old homestead.

Oh, yes, Stanislaus Marcewicz was a smart kiddo. The poor folk in the Polish village where he was born expected great things from him when he was little more than a child.

They admitted that he absorbed more knowledge at the village school than Walter Winchell did at the same age. Of course, that's not saying much for Stanislaus, but back in those days Poland was in constant trouble with her border-rivals and a knowledge of the working of a rifle meant much more than a knowledge of something silly like grammar.

When the kid was 14 he spoke of going to America. And inside of a year he had the village half crazy with visions of vast wealth and luxuries to be found in the New World.

He was about 17—I am led to believe—when he showed them how really smart he was. He called most of the poor folks together one day and unburdened himself of the following speech:

"Fellow citizens," he said, "lend me your ears. Also lend me what money you have. I have made up my mind to go to America. I shall start a business there. I shall make many American dollars. After I become established, I will send you money to follow me to the new land. We will all make many American dollars. Are you with me?"

They were. The men of the village hated to part with their hard-earned money, but the boy, they knew, would make good in a very large manner. No doubt about it.

Stanislaus took their money gladly and gave them a slip of paper in return for it. What the slip of paper said the villagers hadn't the faintest idea. What different did it make? They would all be very wealthy in a short time . . .

When the boat docked in New York, the boy jumped ship. He went up to the Yorkville section of town and made himself known to the Polish speaking natives there.

So far, so good. He didn't know a word of English, but, within a year, spoke the language fairly well. Long before that time, however, he had found a job tearing up Eighth avenue with a pick and shovel at $5 a day.

Of course, he had no intention of sending for the villagers. He had no intention of returning their money, either. Yessir, Stanislaus Marcewicz was indeed a wise baby.

The first thing he learned was our currency system—which is something I haven't got wise to yet. He knew just how many dimes and nickels were the equivalent of a dollar, and just how many cigar store coupons would get him the gorgeously enameled cuspidor in the window.

Now don't get the idea that Stanislaus was tight. He wasn't. He may have squeaked a little. He may have held on to his nickels until the Indian jumped on the Buffalo's back. He may even have inserted strips of cardboard in the soles of his shoes after they wore out. But he wasn't tight.

Out of his $30 weekly salary he paid $3 for a room. That left $27 to go gay with. Out of that he had to pay for meals. So, in the morning, he bought a pint of milk. That cost four cents. For luncheon he bought a cup of coffee and a hot dog with mustard and sauerkraut. Ten cents. For dinner at home he bought a stale loaf of bread and 10 cents' worth of bologna.

That totaled up to 28 cents per day, or, if you're in the mood for higher mathematics, $1.96 per week. And, deducting that from his remaining $27, left him $25.04 to save.

But Stanislaus didn't really save that $25.04 each and every week. Sorry as I am to report it, he squandered 10 cents every day for carfare, and sometimes was known to spent 10 cents of a Sunday on tobacco.

Thus he saved an average of $24 each and every week of the year. Every night he ate his bread and bologna. On rare holidays, such as Easter and St. Michaelmas Day, he would get reckless and abandon the 10 cents' worth of bologna in favor of 10 cents' worth of liverwurst.

After 15 years of that, Stanislaus read his favorite book and discovered that he had saved slightly over $18,000. Now that isn't such a bad sum for a guy who has been existing mainly on bread and bologna over a period of years.

Stanislaus decided to take the money, set sail for Poland, and start a business there where, he had heard, one could attain vast wealth if one had the dough to set one's self up in business.

Sadly, he quit his job and bade farewell to Eighth avenue, which was still very much torn up. Sadder still, Stanislaus withdrew the $18,000 from that charming bank that paid such swell interest. And, saddest of all, he ate his last loaf of bread and devoured his last slice of bologna on the night before he sailed for good old Poland, where the villagers were still scratching their heads in perplexity.

As you might expect, he booked passage the cheapest possible way. Tourist, they called it, and Stanislaus wanted to know how much they'd take off the cost if he promised not to look at the ocean.

The liner was just a few miles beyond Ambrose lightship when a buffet supper was served. Stanislaus pushed his way into the dining room first, though he was forced to slap on old lady down to do it.

The steward approached him. "What will you have, sir?" he said politely.

"A loaf of bread," said Stanislaus, "and 10 cents' worth of bologny." Then an amazed look overspread his face.

"Wait a minnit!" he yelled after the waiter. "Om gonna order somting diffrant. It don't cost nuttin', does it?"

The waiter smiled and said no.

"Okay," said the delighted Polack. "Get me soup, an somma dat rosa biff, an' som chicken wit toikey on de side, an som wegetables, an som brat, an big piece pie—an den com back. I'll tal you som more den."

Stanislaus ate until he looked like a stuffed owl. He never had so much to eat in all his life. Bologna? Bah. That was something dead and forgotten.

It grieves me now to give you the sad ending, but it cannot be avoided. His $18,000 did him no good whatever. He should have stuck to his bread and bologna. For in the morning the poor fellow was dead—of indigestion! . .

Female Tarzan Film To Be Made

A female Tarzan picture is to be produced by Columbia.

It will be called "Fury of the Jungle" and will feature the life and struggles of a beautiful white woman against the dangers of the primitive wild. A terrific jungle storm will be one of the highlights of the production.

Manners to Compete With Barrymore

HORNSBY MAY LEAD BROWNS

SPORT COMMENT

By Harry Keck, Sports Editor

Bill Dickey Back. Yanks Need Him. Majors to Trim.

FIRING OF HORNSBY NO SURPRISE

TOMORROW WILL BE a red letter day in the season for the New York Yankees, for it is then that Bill Dickey, star catcher of the club, gets back into harness, his suspension for having broken the jaw of Carl Reynolds, of the Senators, being lifted at that time.

The Yankees did a bit of floundering while Dickey was on the sidelines and it was well for them that they had piled up a big early-season lead. In addition to his suspension, Dickey was fined $1,000, a severe sentence, but one considered necessary for the good of the game.

BILL DICKEY

THE TIP IS out that the major leagues will trim down their player limits from 23 to 20 next winter, which will be a break for the extra men on the staffs. The limit formerly was 25. With only 11 spare players around, including pitchers, all of the clubs would find themselves in the position of this year's Pirates, whose reserves have been helping out in such fine fashion in the team's pennant drive. Extra players are of little value sitting on the bench. It is only by being given an opportunity to play that they can develop and deliver.

BILL CARR, who defeated Ben Eastman twice in Olympic trials, is 5 feet 7 inches tall and has a stride of seven feet. Eastman is 6 feet 1 inch tall and his stride measures 7 feet 4 inches. Does Carr run faster than Eastman, or does he merely get their quicker?

SPEAKING OF BASEBALL again, as we are, wonder if the minor leagues will remember when times get normal again that the major leagues told them, through Commissioner Landis, that they were sorry, but there really was nothing they could do for them in the year 1932, when things were tough and the little fellows were popping all around and about in real Fourth of July fashion?

THEY'RE GOING TO broadcast football games again this year in California, where they draw the largest crowds of any section in the country, thanks to the influence of radio. Meanwhile, it's thumbs down on the broadcasts in the East, where they envy the ability of the Coast elevens to pack 'em in.

FRANKIE WALLACE, Cleveland featherweight, who showed fine form in winning here a few times, now is a stablemate of Billy Wallace, the Cleveland lightweight, his idol, whose ring name he adopted, his own being Frankie Angelora.

Two years ago, a Kid Chocolate-Jack (Kid) Berg bout in New York drew $160,000. When they met again, recently, they attracted all of $16,589. That, fundamentally, is what is wrong with the boxing game now.

DAVE SHADE needs only six more bouts to bring his total of ring battles up to 450, making him one of the busiest boxers of all time.

THE WISDOM OF supplanting the off-form Frank Shields with Wilmer Allison for the singles in the Davis Cup Challenge round was demonstrated by the manner in which the Texan came through in his match with Jean Borotra in the final day's play, when only a few bad breaks prevented him from winning the five-set struggle and giving the United States victory and the cup. On the whole, the showing of Uncle Sam's young team of Allison, Ellsworth Vines, Jr., and Johnny Van Ryn was praiseworthy. Beaten in the first two matches, in which Allison bowed to the great Henri Cochet and Vines was unexpectedly downed by Borotra, the challengers rallied and came through to win two of the remaining three matches, coming as close to ultimate victory as possible without actually winning the series.

BOXING FANS MAY be pardoned if they look with skepticism upon the report from New York that Billy Petrolle's lightweight championship match with Tony Canzoneri, scheduled for next Monday night, is indefinitely postponed because Petrolle is suffering from a chipped elbow. It has been no secret that Petrolle has been encountering difficulty getting down to the class limit of 135 pounds. He scaled 146½ when he began to train, and it is doubtful if he could enter the ring at 135 pounds for a 15-round bout and do himself justice.

FOLLOWERS OF AMATEUR sports are wondering why John T. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the Allegheny Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., is not in Los Angeles as an official at the Olympic Games. This is the first time in the last six Olympic Games that he has not been invited to participate in some capacity. Where is the Ethiopian in the woodpile?

THERE ARE BASEBALL players and lefthanders. They tell a story about an American Association player who complained that he was having trouble playing night games under artificial light. He said the lights were not properly focussed and were handicapping him when he had to look into them. An electrician was assigned to rectify the trouble. The player told him two of the lights were shining directly upon him and blinding him when he tried to play his position. The electrician climbed one of the towers and the player stationed himself at his post and directed him in his work. Suddenly the player announced that everything was o. k., and pronounced the change a 100 per cent improvement. Whereupon the electrician clambered back down, mystified, for he hadn't made any changes at all.

ROGERS HORNSBY'S passing from the major league scene, deposed as manager of the Chicago Cubs, with the club in second place in the pennant race, comes as a shock, but if hardly can be said that it is a surprise, for the Rajah's career has been filled with sudden sensational twists. He's been up oftener than down, and at all times he's been a colorful figure. As a player he was a batter beautiful to behold, but a mediocre fielder. He has been known for his fiery temperament and lack of diplomacy. The Cubs' announcement that he was dismissed "for the best interests of the club" would indicate that this lack of tact brought about his downfall at the scene of his ascension over Joe McCarthy.

THE ELEVATION OF Lefty Grimm, former Pirate first baseman, to succeed Hornsby as manager of the Cubs, should prove a popular move with the fans in Chicago, as it is here. However, his friends will await developments before they decide whether to congratulate him or console him.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—World athletics not only have "turned the corner" but galloped in full cry down the middle of the road on the basis of today's evidence that the greatest Olympic boom in history is now assured.

Within only three days, nearly 200,000 spectators have paid to see the assorted thrills of this international sports carnival. Of these 155,000 have witnessed the track and field events in the Olympic stadium. An additional 105,000 looked at the formal opening ceremonies.

Four years ago it took eight days at Amsterdam to attract 130,000 customers into the main stadium.

RECORDS SET

With only three of the eight days of track and field competition so far completed—today being the fourth—new Olympic records have been set in 11 of 15 events, four of which have not been completed.

Before California's astonishing Olympic show is completed, it will not be surprising to see the aggregate paid attendance pass 500,000 and the present track and field record output at least doubled.

Americans no doubt would have liked to have had big Ben Eastman in his best event, the 800 meters, when the Olympic finalists toed the mark for yesterday's dramatic final. It is doubtful, however, whether the Stanford star at his peak could have beaten Tom Hampson, the British school teacher, who roared down the stretch to a new world record of 1:49.8 and a two-foot victory over gallant Alex Wilson, of Canada and Notre Dame.

HAMPSON SENSATION

Hampson's marvelous performance, the feature of the third day's track whirl, kept Britain's Union Jack flying highest in this middle distance classic, dominated in the past two Olympics by the famous Douglas Lowe. They knew beforehand that Hampson was good, but no one had any idea he would make a show of Sera Martin's world mark of 1:50.6. Eastman's unofficial record of 1:50, as well as lop two full seconds off Lowe's Olympic standard.

It was one of those races of a

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE 40-YEAR-OLD PENCIL—Mayor Murphy, of Somerville, Mass., while attending a recent official dinner, was asked to give a short talk. He wanted to jot down a few notes, but didn't have a pencil, so he asked Police Superintendent Crowley, of Boston, for one. Crowley, after a long and arduous search, finally produced from the recesses of his clothing a one-inch stub of a pencil, remarking: "There, that's been my police pencil for 40 years." And it was true! In 1892, Patrolman Crowley received an issue of one police department pencil. He cut the pencil in two, one piece lasting him 20 years, and the other half—although down to a one-inch piece—is still doing service, and has seen him through his gradual rise from patrolman to superintendent of Boston's "finest."

RAJAH FIRED, GRIMM GETS CUBS JOB

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Rogers Hornsby, dismissed as manager of the Chicago Cubs, may become manager of the St. Louis Browns next season, according to reports current here today.

Hornsby's home is in St. Louis and he is a close friend of Phil Ball, owner of the Browns. Ball, it is said, long has wanted Hornsby for a manager.

Fired by Veeck

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Rogers Hornsby, stormy petrel of baseball who in his time has usurped his share of managerial jobs, was himself supplanted today by another man, Charley Grimm, as manager of the Chicago Cubs. Announcement to that effect was made on the arrival of the team in Philadelphia late last night, but this was largely an aftermath. The climax of two months of bickering between Hornsby and President William Veeck was reached here yesterday afternoon when the Cubs lost to the Brooklyn Club through doubles by Hack Wilson and Danny Taylor, former Cubs, in the eighth inning. This, it is said, precipitated Hornsby's dismissal.

The hits in question were made against Warnecke, young star of the pitching staff, but they say that Hornsby has been using the old McGraw system of pitching for his pitchers, Warnecke in particular, and that Veeck felt he had reached his limit of endurance when the ball game was lost. He also has been at odds with Hornsby over the selection of players, Veeck having a great fondness for Barton and Moore, young outfielders, and Hornsby having none. It is intimated, too, that the club president has never been entirely happy over the dismissal of Joe McCarthy from the management and the elevation of Hornsby some two years ago, a move initiated by the late William Wrigley. Since Wrigley's death, Veeck has been almost supreme in the councils of the Chicago club.

SCRIBES CALLED IN

His action last night was abrupt and to the point. He first had a conference with Hornsby behind closed doors. Then newspapermen with the club were called in and informed that Hornsby had decided to resign "for the good of the club." His contract, one of the biggest in baseball, will expire on December 31 of this year and he will be paid in full by the Wrigley estate. Whether Grimm, the team's first baseman, will remain as manager next year depends a great deal on the showing of the club for the remainder of the season. The Cubs' defeat yesterday, while the Pirates were losing their fourth straight, left them five games behind the league leaders.

Hornsby, one of the great right-hand hitters in all the history of baseball, practically is through as an active player and perhaps as a manager, too. He has had several teams under his charge, but only one success, the world champion Cardinals of 1926. This was

BUCCO-DODGER GAME OFF

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Rain prevented the first clash of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Dodgers scheduled for this afternoon at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. The home management, in calling off the contest, stated a doubleheader would be staged tomorrow. Friday is an open date on the playing cards of both teams.

The Pittsburgh diamond stars came to New York last night immediately following their fourth straight defeat in Philadelphia at the hands of the troublesome Phillies. Despite the series of reverses sustained by the league leaders while performing in the Baker Bowl, they were able to show a lead of five full games over the second-place Cubs today. The Quakers, on the other hand, moved to within six games of the top as a result of their sensational push.

The final clash of the Pirates and Phillies was a fine slab duel between Jim Elliott and Larry French, two lefthanders, until the late innings when the Quakers proceeded to change everything. The score was 11-6. The Pirates were leading by two runs after batting in the sixth, but the home team opened up on French in the home half. They took the lead by scoring three runs and then added two more in the seventh. With Bill Harris on the slab in the eighth the Phils piled up four more markers to put the game on the ice.

Adam Comorosky was the feature of a home-run drive that crested at seven round-trippers. Comorosky hit for the circuit twice, P. Waner, Mallon, Klein, Lee and Heathcote also belted the rocket for homers.

Hammer Advances To Jeannette Finals

JEANNETTE, Pa., Aug. 3.—Roger West, of Jeannette, was eliminated by Theodore Hammer, Greensburg, in a semi-final round of the Westmoreland County tennis tournament yesterday, 6-2, 6-3.

Mrs. Sam Webb, of Youngwood, won a semi-final match in the women's singles by defeating Jean Scheibler, of Greensburg, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. The other finalist in the women's singles is Lucille Shearer, of Jeannette, who defeated Betty McKee, of Greensburg, 6-4, 6-2.

REESE LEADER AT BEDFORD

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Aug. 3.—Match play was inaugurated here today in the annual Bedford Springs amateur championship tournament, with first and second round dueling on the program. The defending champion, Billy Marks, of Kiski and Princeton, who recently won the Western Pennsylvania junior title, and the tourney medalist, Jack Reese, of Johnstown, former Yale star, and favored eventually to clash for the title.

Reese gave notice of his challenge for Marks' crown yesterday in the qualifying round by setting a new amateur course record of 68 and scoring a hole-in-one, sinking his tee shot on the fourteenth hole. Trailing in second place came Marks, five shots behind. The old amateur record was held by Sam Parks, Jr., now pro at the Summit Club, Uniontown.

W. H. Hyde, of Ridgeway, and M. D. Tenny, Jr., of Cumberland, tied for third place with 78s. Only four players were able to get under 80. The pairings for the first round follow:

Jack Reese vs. S. Hulse, Lester Millman vs. Fred Brand, Jr., Jimmy Marks vs. Dr. J. E. McLean, George Gcourich vs. W. R. Hyde, Martin Tenny, Jr., vs. C. F. Dittman, T. M. Taylor vs. Leod Goss, W. Welch vs. Jack Benson, S. Rosell vs. Billy Marks.

Commission's New Secretary Named

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—Patrick J. McKewen, former chief of Philadelphia county detectives and veteran police officer, today was named as the new secretary to the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission after he had been summoned for a conference.

ENGLISH MILER ONE OF BEST IN HISTORY

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Head Coach American Olympic team.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 3.—Long before these Olympic Games began we heard much on this side of the Atlantic about Tom Hampson, the English miler. He was described as not only the greatest racer at that distance in the world today, but the most remarkable in history.

Hampson justified every tribute ever paid to him here yesterday afternoon, and then went a bit farther. He whipped a great field of 800-meter men and in so doing overcame plenty of handicaps and still had enough to cover the distance in 1 minute 49 8-10 seconds—a new world record.

Hampson was away last with the fleet, Phil Edwards leading the field by at least eight yards. The English runner had to circle around the field to gain third place at the quarter mile and he then was still 10 yards from the front. But by use of splendid judgment he stepped around Eddie Gerung who was second and then set after Edwards, catching him 50 yards from the wire.

WILSON CHALLENGES

But the race wasn't over. A. Wilson, of Canada, a student at Notre Dame, came charging after Hampson and the flying Briton had to extend himself to the absolute limit to win by a margin of less than a yard.

Miss Stella Walsh, of Cleveland, competing for Poland, firmly established herself as the greatest 100-meter girl speedster the world has known when she won the final in 11.9, the third time she has turned in this new world record mark in two days.

The results of the 110-meter semi-final meter hurdles makes it seem almost certain that we have this event at our mercy. All three of our men qualified. Jack Keller won his trial in 14 5-10, with nobody close, and George Saling was victor in the other contest in 14 4-10, tying the world's record. His only competition came from his teammate, Percy Beard.

So far the games have run quite true to form. With the exception of Poland's victory in the 10,000 meters which had been conceded to Finland, nothing has happened to startle the onlookers.

Leo Sexton, of the U. S. A., and Dr. Pat O'Callaghan, of Ireland, came through in the shot and hammer throw as was expected. We won the 100 meters finals for men and Miss Walsh took the honors at that same distance for woodmen—both being anticipated triumphs.

STARS PASS TESTS

The trials and semi-finals in the other contests find the real satellites among the survivers and I am quite sure that when the track and field games are done at least 90 per cent of those who rated as champions will be wearing the crowns.

Every indication now is that the U. S. A. will win many more firsts than any other country, but the competition has been keener than ever before. Europe and the Orient sent some fine men into these battles. Their only misfortune is that they haven't had the full seasoning, which has been the privilege of American youths, because of so many competitive chances.

But it is to be noted that all the foreigners are on the improve. Most of them are young and many of them should be really ripe for the Olyinpic duels of 1936.

ERROR COSTLY TO SWISSVALE

Ford City will represent the Western Pennsylvania sector in the tournament slated to get under way at York on Monday for the state American Legion junior baseball championship. The Ford City nine gained this right last evening at Forbes Field, defeating Swissvale, defending state champion, 7 to 6, in the final game for the regional title.

A wild throw in the ninth inning by Mike Garbark enabled Ford City to carry off the victory. Garbark heaved the ball into right field after fielding a bunt, the miscue enabling Micheaux to score from first with the winning run.

Swissvale rallied in the eighth and ninth innings to even the count after Ford City had taken an early lead. The score:

Al Johns defeated L. S. Reid, 1 up (19 holes).
J. Christy defeated H. Carney, by default.
A. E. Wallisch defeated S. R. Kreding, 1 up.

MRS. RILEY WINS

After finishing near the top in practically all of the women's tourneys this season, Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, won both low gross and low net honors at the Alcoma Country Club's invitation event yesterday, her 83-7—76 leading home a large field of feminine stars.

Mrs. Pat Corr, of Highland, took low net honors in the second division with a 73. Mrs. C. I. Wendt, of the Field Club, and Mrs. Frank Campbell, the Stanton Heights star, tied for the second low gross prize, both carding 86s.

PAIR IN TIE

In a special event for Alcoma members, Mrs. W. H. Hochberg and Mrs. T. M. Allen shared honors with 78s.

Vincent Eldred, Pennsylvania State open champion, who added the Bedford Springs open tourney to his bag on Monday, will play in a special exhibition foursome at the Summit Golf Club at Uniontown on Sunday afternoon. Eldred will be paired with Robert C. Hagan, champion of the Uniontown Country Club, and will be opposed by Sam Parks, Jr., professional at the Summit Club, and Billy Marks, Western Pennsylvania junior champion.

Dan Brouthers Succumbs at 74

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Baseball has lost another of its immortals with the death at the age of 74 of Dan Brouthers, mighty slugger with the Baltimore Orioles of a half century ago.

Old-timers insist that Dan could have hit a baseball farther than Ruth if he could have had the privilege of swinging at the lively pellet in use since the war. He didn't hit as many home runs as his contemporary, Sam Thompson, but he walloped them farther.

He led the National League four times in batting, but suffered a bitter disappointment in his best year—1887. He clouted .419 that season and failed to win the league batting championship because Pop Anson finished with an average of .421.

Local Amateur Stars Top Uniontown Team

Amateur ring stars of the Pittsburgh area defeated a picked team of Uniontown mitt wielders in the St. Peter's A. C. show on the North Side last night, winning four of the seven bouts. There were no knockouts. The summary:

FOUR BATTLES ON GREENLEE FIELD CARD

Willie Davies, of Charleroi, meets Nat Litfin, Hill bantamweight, recently returned from California, where he scored 17 knockouts in 37 bouts and lost only two of the battles. They are down for the eight-round semi-final.

Max Elling, of the Hill, boxes Joey Spelgal, Uniontown southpaw welterweight, in the second bout, and Paul Monar, of Homestead, makes his professional debut against Johnny Woods, of Cleveland, a former Golden Gloves champion, in the opener.

Battling Gizzy, of Donora, beaten by Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, and Wesley Ramey his last two times out, is in hard training for his battle with Chico Cisneros, of Cleveland, in the windup at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night. A Gizzy-Charley Baxter bout is in the making, but Gizzy will have to win over Cisneros in order to make it stand up.

lifetime, as thrilling even if not quite as close as Eddie Tolan's two-inch margin over Ralph Metcalfe in the 100-meter final. Hampson ran a perfect race, timing his kick so beautifully that he just had enough left to overhaul and beat Wilson, then collapsed exhausted on the turf.

It was 1-2-3 for the British Empire, with Phil Edwards, of Canada third, and 4-5-6 for the United States as Eddie Genung, Ned Turner and Charles Hornbostel, in that order, completed the half-dozen in the scoring.

The rest of the record-cracking story pointed the way today to a pair of dazzling championship battles, to be run off in quick succession, first in the 110-meter high hurdles and then in the 200-meter dash. There were six record races in these two events alone yesterday.

The 200-meter Olympic record of 21.6 seconds, which had stood for 28 years, was positively manhandled. Tolan and Metcalfe, the two American Negroes expected to fight it out again in the final, ran their quarter-final heats each in 21.5 seconds, for new Olympic marks, but Carlos Luti, Argentine sensation and Arthur Jonath, the hustling German, came right back to click off winning races in 21.4 seconds each. Luti led the third American, George Simpson, and looked the part of a real contender.

U. S. HURDLERS STAR

America's trio of high-hurdling aces looks ripe for a clean sweep, as well as record-smashing final. Two of them cracked the Olympic record of 14.6 seconds in yesterday's semi-finals, Jack Keller romped home in 14.5 seconds, after which George Saling led his teammate, Percy Beard, in 14.4, also tying the world record.

Ralph Hall, the Oregon boy, stamped himself a real threat in the 5,000 meters by running away from Lauri Lehtinen, young Finnish favorite, in the trials. Hill's time of 14:59.6 was not so impressive as the way he outsprinted Lehtinen after the Finn challenged on the last lap.

The American Negro's contribution to the rapidly-mounting point score of the United States was emphasized again, when Edward Gordon, of Iowa, won the broad jump title with a leap of 25 feet, ¾ inch. This fell considerably short of the former and present world record holders, Sylvio Cator, of Haiti, and Chuhei Nambu, of Japan, to fulfill expectations.

Cator failed to qualify among the six finalists and Nambu finished third, with a jump of 24 feet, 5¼ inches.

The Olympic track and field team championship, meanwhile, is virtually all over but the shouting. The United Staes, with eight events concluded, has 81 points. Ireland is next with 20, while Canada has 19, Finland 16, Great Britain 13, Poland and Germany 10 each, Sweden 8 and Japan 7. Today's events figured to shoot the Yankee total well beyond the 100 mark.

WOMEN STARS SHINE

So far as the female of the species is concerned, in track and field sports, it doesn't seem to count unless it's a world record.

World records for women have toppled in all five feminine events in the 1928 Olympics and so far in the present Olympics the streak is unbroken, with record standards surpassed in the first three contests—three times in the 100-meters dash, by Stella Walsh, of Cleveland and Poland; twice in the discus throw, by Ruth Osborn and Lillian Copeland, American girls, and once, in the javelin, by Babe Didrikson, American all-round star from Texas.

Miss Walsh won the 100-meter title in 11.9 seconds, identical with her time in two preliminary races, as she disposed of the world record of 12 seconds.

Miss Copeland threw the discus 133 feet 2 inches, for a new mark, after Miss Osburn, with a throw of 131 feet 8 inches, also had surpassed the listed record of 129 feet 11 9-16 inches.

Miss Didrickson, who heaved the javelin 143 feet 4 inches, undertook her second assignment today in the 80-meter hurdles trials.

Singing Merman On Trained Seals Program Tonight

Singing by Joseph J. Pentek, former local champion swimmer and candidate for the Olympic team in 1924, will feature the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

Pentek is a baritone, a soloist for the Tabernacle Presbyterian

J. J. Pentek Marian Salmon

Church, of the East End, a radio performer and a concert artist. He will be accompanied at the piano by Miss Marian Salmon, pianist for the Seals.

Mixed with Pentek's series of songs will be some sports banter by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and Herb McGee, station announcer. Julius Levin, of the sports staff, also will participate in the program.

Pentek formerly held the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U., 220-yard free style and breast stroke championships and was sent to the Olympic trials at Indianapolis eight years ago. He competed for the Homestead Library, P. A. A., Detroit A. C. and Penn A. C., of Philadelphia.

HORNSBY OUT AS PILOT

his first managerial venture, the club having been awarded to him after a series of bitter, acrid, fault-finding years under Branch Rickey and Jack Hendricks. Hendricks bears Hornsby no light enmity to this day.

Supposedly the toast of the town after bringing St. Louis its first championship, Hornsby was traded overnight to the New York Giants before the following season began. This was understood to have been the culmination of a series of salary disputes with Sam Breadon, but when, as suddenly, Hornsby was transferred from New York to Boston, few knew the answer and none ever was bold enough to make it public. His new boss at that time was Jack Slattery, but the relation of employer and assistant didn't long prevail. Within a matter of six weeks, Slattery was thrown out the window on to the car tracks to die in his own blood and Hornsby was named manager.

BACK IN RANKS

His success was neither immediate nor lasting, so at the close of the 1928 season he was back in the ranks again as an ordinary player with the Cubs, but not for long. The club won under McCarthy in 1929, but was beaten by the Athletics in the world series and finished second in the National League the following season. By that time, Wrigley was becoming a little irked and, they say, used to hold conferences with Hornsby in the mornings preceding games.

Perhaps they were only discussing Aldous Huxley but, anyhow, it wasn't long until McCarthy was out and Hornsby was in. But fate is a perverse and often a usurious creditor. There isn't much more to be added to this story, in fact, except to say that McCarthy today is very much in again as manager of the champions—apparent of the American League and that if Hornsby was only a little further out, he'd be half way home.

GRIMM FORMER BUC

The appointment of Charles J. (Lefty) Grimm as manager of the Chicago Cubs, succeeding the deposed Rogers Hornsby, caused a big stir among Pittsburgh baseball followers. Grimm was purchased by the Pirates from Little Rock, of the Southern Association, in the fall of 1919. He played five full years for the Buccos before he was traded to the Cubs, along with Walter Maranville and Wilbur Cooper, for George Grantham, Victor Aldridge and the late Al Niehaus. Grimm will be aged 33 on August 25.

PARKS RACQUET STARS ATTAIN THIRD ROUND

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Third-round men's singles contests and quarter-final women's frays monopolize today's card in the third annual Pittsburgh public parks net championships as municipal stars battle vigorously for city laurels and possession of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph challenge cups. Beginning with this afternoon's session, hostilities will be confined exclusively to the Frick Park lot.

Sixteen aspirants remain in the man-to-man competition, Al Lazar, former Harvard racqueter, having led the pack into the bracket of eight by trimming J. F. O'Connor, of North Homestead, 6-2, 6-2, last evening, while the North Siders, Sam McCorkle and Ed Plunkett, languish as last pair remaining in Stanza 2. All other performers, including five seeded luminaries, await the gong in Frame 3.

MEYER ELIMINATED

Bob Meyer, Riverview satellite, proved first of the seeded group to encounter the elimination ax, Milton King, putting out the North Hills hope, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

In addition to Lazar, Harry Wald, Pitt ace; Al McCabe, driving Woosterite, and Alex Blumberger, persistent Schenley netman, ran true to seeded form. Wald's steady baseline game kept Bill Reynolds at bay, 6-3, 6-1, while McCabe, flashing considerable improvement over his work of the past couple of seasons, thumped Lester Nolan, husky East Ender, 6-1, 6-2. Blumberger, finishing off a holdover affair with Jack Rosen, Beechview entrant, outstayed his opponent, 6-4, 9-11, 6-4.

Slim Stillwagon, Duke varsity lad, continued his victory march with a 6-4, 6-4 decision over Louis Lazar to crash the third round, wherein he mingled with Frank Broida, defending champion, at 6:30 o'clock this evening.

MRS. ARTZBERGER VICTOR

Mrs. Jean Artzberger, seeking her third consecutive feminine crown, opened her '32 campaign auspiciously with 6-1, 6-1 verdict over Leah Rothman, of Highland.

Today's card calls for festivities from 2 p. m. till dusk. Feminine quarter-finalists must report as early as possible; those failing to appear prior to the dinner hour will face default.

Yesterday's summary:

MEN'S SINGLES

First round, upper half—Edward Brown won from W. J. Minor, Jr., by default; Maurice Parker won from James Trea by default; Floyd Katz won from Roy Heckler by default.

Lower half—Emerson Hess won from Joe Schols by default; George Sobel defeated Emil Stanker, 6-0, 6-2; A. M. Frauenheim won from Irwin Solow by default; William Engemann won from George Gallagher by default.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

DETROIT, Aug. 3.—The National League's one good deed for the week was in talking of canceling that excessive padding for catcher's legs. It got so you couldn't tell whether an athlete was dressed up for the catcher's box or for a goal tender in hockey.

Nick Altrock

In my own league I've seen catchers in their full regalia that looked more like an overstuffed Morris chair than human beings. And maybe those babies can't block a runner steaming into the plate. With the set of armor they've been wearing, a catcher could not only block off a runner streaking for home, but could make 'em bounce right back to third.

I suppose the catchers will squawk. They're practically nudists with their leg pads off, but the National loop sure has the right idea.

S. HILLS GETS W. P. G. A. OPEN

The Western Pennsylvania Golf Association has awarded the 1932 open championship tournament to the South Hills Country Club instead of Edgewood, as was announced previously and the date has been fixed for Monday, August 15. This announcement was made known by George A. Ormiston, W. P. G. A. secretary.

Following the open tourney, the W. P. G. A. amateur event also will be staged at South Hills, getting under way August 17. On the Tuesday intervening, local amateur golfers will engage in a sectional qualifying test for the half dozen places allotted this district in the national amateur tournament, booked for Baltimore. The test will be staged over the Oakmont links.

The city championship tourney, originally scheduled for August 9 at Schenley, has been moved back to September 6, according to an announcement by John Jay Burke. The change was made at the request of a number of Schenley Park players.

DORMONT PLAYS GRAYS; THOMAS GETS CARROLL

After a prolonged road trip, the Homestead Grays are back in town and this evening meet the Dormont club of the City League at the Dormont High School Field.

Billy Fuchs has Lefty Richards groomed to oppose the Posey aggregation. The young South Hills southpaw has been singularly successful against the crack Negro club. The game will be called at 6:15 p. m.

Manager George Falconer, of Dormont, denies that Leo Carroll, the veteran pitcher, was released by the club. Carroll was not dropped by the champions, but asked for his release.

In the game with the Frank Ferris team Monday, Carroll was not going well and Fuchs decided to replace him with Roscoe. Carroll came in from the mound and demanded his release. Falconer talked it over with Fuchs and asked Carroll to reconsider, but Leo refused and his request to be released was granted.

Carroll will wear the colors of the J. L. Thomas team, of Bloomfield, from now on in the City League. The Bloomfielders are leading the league and Carroll will be of great assistance to the club in the pennant fight.

Art Shires Fired By Bill McKechnie

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—With an unconditional release hanging over his head, Art Shires today appeared doomed to some further minor league experience.

The Boston Braves' colorful first baseman, who was benched last Sunday, was fined by Manager Bill McKechnie yesterday when he objected to the pilot's disposal plans. The manager intended to use Shires in a trade with an unnamed minor league club and Art voiced strenuous protests.

ROSENBLOOM WINS

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized as light-heavyweight champion in most quarters, won a decision over Joe Barlow, of Boston, at Fenway Park last night in a 10-round feature bout of the Argonne A. A. Rosenbloom weighed 180 pounds, Barlow 184.

STEERS GET PURDY

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Outfielder Everett Purdy, from Indianapolis, of the American Association, has been acquired by the Dallas Steers. Purdy will replace Clarence Nachand in the Dallas outfield.

FRESH RALLY LIFTS STOCK LEADERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The stock market appeared to have got its second wind today, after yesterday's setback.

Early irregularity in both stocks and bonds was soon superceded by renewed strength, which became pronounced buoyance in the stock market after midday. In stocks, the market turned extremely dull during the first half hour, and bulls concluded that the wave of profittaking had be completed.

Buying spread to virtually all groups of shares and by early afternoon gains of 2 to more than 5 points were registered in such issues as American Telephone, American Can, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "B," United States Steel common and preferred, Case, Corn Products, Consolidated Gas, Coca Cola, Dupont, Johns Manville, International Harvester, Sears, Roebuck, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern and others. Issues up a point or more included Bethlehem, General Electric, Westinghouse, American Smelting, Kennecott, Standard of New Jersey, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio, and others.

Brokerage quarters which had been anticipating a technical reaction had widely advocated fresh buying on declines, so that yesterday's setback, the sharpest since the buying movement got under way, provided the opportunity for which buyers had been awaiting. Some additional short selling, however, was reported in some quarters, presumably based upon the theory that the reaction had not been severe enough, but it was readily absorbed on the way up, and shorts began a rapid retreat after midday.

Although the midweek reviews of the steel industry were somewhat disappointing, the weekly report of electric power production was susceptible to favorable interpretation. Output of 1,440,386,000 kilowatt hours reflected the scant gain of 6,393,000 over the previous week, but the like week of the past two years saw declines, and in 1929 there was virtually no change. The week was 12.4 per cent under the like week of last year, against 13.1 per cent a week previously, and 13.9 per cent two weeks previously.

Coppers reflected further firmness of prices abroad, and reports that metal was scarce at the domestic price of 5¼ cents a pound. Usually well-informed quarters looked for a declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents by General Motors directors after the close. Bulls found considerable ammunition in the stock exchange's monthly report of total borrowings of members, which showed a decline during July of $1,974,352 to a total of $241,599,943, only about 3 per cent of the record level reached in the autumn of 1929. The fact that this decline occurred in a month in which prices surged up more than 30 per cent was regarded as impressive evidence of important buying.

COTTON FIRMS AFTER DIP

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Cotton futures opened steady 4-6 lower in response to lower Liverpool cables and under liquidation and selling by houses with southern connections.

The initial selling was absorbed by a moderate trade demand and covering and by a little buying through brokers with Wall street and Liverpool connections. This steadied the market, and after selling off to 5.99 at the start, December was holding around 6.02 at the end of the first half hour, the general list showing net losses of 2 to 7 points.

Houses with Liverpool connections were continued sellers during the first hour, but pressure from that source subsided after the close of the English market and prices steadied later. At midday October was ruling around 5.88 and March 5.25, or within a point of yesterday's final quotations, on further trade buying and covering.

MILLIONS AIDED BY INCREASED FARM PRICES

By MERRLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The upturn in farm product prices tends to give relief at the weakest link of the nation's economic structure.

The gains, if held, will expand the purchasing power of millions of farmers, whose distress had been keeping them out of the market place and thus depriving large numbers of factory workers of employment.

Mr. Rukeyser

But the discriminating, temperate observer must make allowance for a time lag between the beginning of a change in price trend whose permanence remains to be demonstrated and the actual increase in farmer purchases. I have consulted some of the principal vendors of merchandise and implements to farmers, and they report that thus far the gains have been sentimental only.

In explaining the delay, one outstanding executive in this field told me:

"So many of the farmers are behind with their taxes and their interest on the farm mortgage that it is rather natural for them to apply the first income on liquidating debts that they now owe.

"In some sections, particularly the State of Iowa, where they depend very largely on livestock feeding as a source of income, the improvement in sentiment has been largely offset by another run of bank failures, which has been rather acute in several sections of the state recently.

"Therefore I cannot say at the present time that there has been any increased buying because of the increase in livestock prices, but there is a distinctly hopeful feeling in those regions that depend on livestock feeding for their principal income. This will undoubtedly develop into a better buying attitude after a while."

BUREAU NOTES IMPROVEMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—An upward movement in the business situation was noted by the Department of Commerce.

In July, it said, there was a cessation of the outward flow of gold and a moderate return movement, a general strengthening of the bond market resulting in improved prices, a halt in the urgent liquidation in the stock market and an advance in prices of a number of important commodities.

While the department made no predictions, business and financial experts pointed out the previous hard times had ended during the summer months when gradual upward movements had started in commodity prices, industry had begun to manufacture and sell at a profit, even if slight, and the movement of farm products had brought about an increased buying.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 3.—The market was due to open ½d lower; started 19/1¼d off and at 1:20 p. m. was down 1⅞/1⅝d. At 2:15 p. m. the market was 1⅞/1⅝d lower.

Wheat closed ⅝ to ¾d lower today.

Blondie and Lurline Listen To Larry's Telephone Conversation

CHAPTER IX.

When Blondie entered the bathroom she was speechless from the excitement of coming face-to-face with Larry. Now she was almost breathless from the heavy perfume and sweet steam of Lurline's bath. She looked around through the haze for a moment getting her bearings, then spoke to Lurline lolling back in the huge tub:

"Who's that good-looking fellow? He started to come right in here!"

"Oh, Larry," Lurline seemed very unconcerned as she gently raised and rubbed a shapely leg. "He's incorrigible!"

"Whatever that means. But he's darn fresh . . . he said to me. . . ." But Madelon's entrance interrupted.

"Would you like a cocktail?"

"Not me, thanks."

"Run along—then—you'll be splashed. Madelon must rub me down with 'Night Kiss'."

"Okay" and Blondie opened the door narrowly and slid out into the bedroom.

There was Larry romping on the bed with a tiny Pekinese dog. Her entrance unnoticed, Blondie stood watching Larry. He certainly was handsome, she thought, and he must be full of fun, the way he was playing now. Yes he was fresh . . . look at the way he was tearing up that nice bed. What right had he . . . Blondie's thoughts were interrupted when Larry saw her.

"Hello again, he said, pleasantly. "Look at this!" and he made the dog sit up. "Cute isn't he?"

BLONDIE EMBARRASSED

"Very," Blondie had at last found her voice even if only for one word and that about a dog.

"So are you." Larry noticed her embarrassment now, and made a definite effort to make her forget it by being unusually friendly.

"Thanks." Blondie could feel herself blush deeply.

"Thank your mother . . . thank your father . . ." Larry was half singing and pretended not to see the blush.

Lurline swept into the room in her dressing gown. She stopped short at Larry's words and the familiarity in his voice. She looked at Blondie's flushed face, and her eyes narrowed dangerously. Lurline knew her Larry. But there was no hint of resentment in her voice as she said:

"Oh, really, Larry boy—don't recline on my nice pajamas," and she pulled him up from the bed.

"Say, I want a word with you—alone," he said to Lurline, and glanced smilingly at Blondie.

"This is little Miss McCune—Mr. Belmont," and Lurline was not too cordial making the introduction.

"Oh, we met before." Larry said, quickly. "Come on—I'll get you a drink."

Lurline turned, quickly stepped into her pajamas, and said:

SELF-MADE MAN

"Only Larry Belmont—ever heard of him? . . . stock exchange . . . smart as a whip. . . . millions . . . he's self-made."

"You don't say—I like him."

"Of course you like him—everyone likes Larry." Lurline was combing her hair, thinking rapidly. Suddenly she turned and said:

"Blondie, I didn't know it was so late—I'm going to let you go now—it's so very late—you understand?"

"Yes, thank you, Lottie."

"Lur-line!"

"Lurline then—it's swell up here. Could I come and see you one day when your friends are out?" Blondie asked anxiously.

"Yes—do. Give me a buzz—it's in the book. Lurline Cavendish, C-a-v-e-n-d-i-s-h!" Lurline spelled.

"You can find your way out—right at the end of the hall."

"So long, Lurline. I'm so glad about you," and Blondie's tone showed that she really meant it.

"So long," said Lurline as she gave her a friendly little push toward the door.

"Here, Blondie, come here!" And as Blondie came back inquiringly, she said: "You can't go out like that."

THRILLED WITH GIFTS

Lurline stepped to the wardrobe. Sliding the door open she revealed to Blondie dozens of beautiful gowns, hats and innumerable pairs of shoes.

"Here's a hat," and she handed Blondie a chic Parisian model. Blondie quickly put it on, her face all smiles, her eyes shining.

"Thanks, I'll let you have it back."

"You don't have to," said Lurline a bit patronizingly. "And here's a bit of fur," as she handed Blondie a stunning short fur jacket.

Blondie accepted it with eyes wide and unbelieving. Never in her wildest dreams had she ever thought of wearing anything like this. She dashed to the mirror, throwing on the jacket, and surveyed herself with bewildered admiration as she primped and fussed over the new apparel. Lurline, putting on her diamond bracelets, pretended not to notice.

"You're not going to give me the fur, are you?" Blondie asked incredulously.

"Yes—I'm through with it," said Lurline. Then suddenly her voice changed. "Hurry up," she snapped.

"Okay," replied Blondie, but she couldn't seem to drag herself away from the mirror. She looked at herself in utter surprise. How she had changed, she thought. Then she could contain herself no longer.

"Oh, boy—Oh, boy—I look like Joan Crawford, look!" And Blondie went into an imitation of Joan Crawford: "I'm only a poor working girl—you cannot thrust your riches on me....' Isn't that good, Lurline?"

"I've met Miss Crawford—she's charming—I've never seen her on the screen though—I never go to movies."

ADMIRES SELF

Suddenly Blondie sensed the change the clothes made in her. She felt more self-assured. Her embarrassment and the consciousness of her surroundings were not nearly as great, as she looked in the mirror. At first she had admired the new hat and coat. Now she was admiring herself in them. From somewhere she found the courage to say:

"Lurline, do I have to go? I hate to—it's grand here." Blondie looked squarely into the eyes of her former pal of the tenements. They gazed at each other for an instant, then Lurline said impulsively:

"If I introduce you to my friends, will you promise not to make any—cracks?"

"Me?" Blondie was surprised. "Well, about the store and mother—and uptown—and—"

"Of course I wouldn't if you said not..."

"Let me see," Lurline said reflectively. "I could hardly call you a relative..."

"Why not?" Blondie cut in, anxiously.

"Oh, don't be sill..." Whatever comparisons between them that Lurline might have voiced were never to be mentioned. From the apartment hall came Larry's voice, talking loudly over the telephone.

"Shhh! Quiet!" cautioned Lurline. And both girls stood silent, listening intently. Blondie's face flushed with excitement.

Synopsis

Blondie McClune and Lottie Callahan, friends since childhood, work in the same store. After work one evening, Lottie says she has a date and asks Blondie to join her. Blondie disapproves. Two men wait for them outside the building. When one becomes too familiar with her, Blondie slaps his face and goes home alone, to the poor section of the city. Later the two girls argue about the date and it ends in a rough and tumble fight. Blondie's dress is torn and she decides to get a new one. Looking for some money she had saved, she discovers that somebody has taken it. She greets her ailing dad when he arrives home and learns that he has lost his job. Lottie leaves home in quest of a career. After a few months, under the name of Lurline Cavendish, she becomes the newest sensation of the Follies. She visits the McClunes, but is anxious to get away from the place she once called her home. Lurline confesses that Blondie is her only real friend.

Now Go On

"Run along then, you'll get splashed," said Lurline.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Manager W. C. Dodds, of the Ambridge Theater, where the members of Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meet each Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, reports that the meeting last Saturday was attended by the largest group of boys and girls since the Junior Komic Club was organized.

More than 600 members attended and enjoyed the special "kiddie" entertainment presented for their benefit.

Elizabeth Wolfe acted as mistress of ceremonies and after the pledge was recited and the salute to the flag offered, she called each youngster who had celebrated his or her birthday last week to the stage and presented each with a birthday cake.

The following pupils of Mann's Dancing School entertained the members:

Helen Druziniski .....Song
Francis Gentice....Tap Dance
Marguerette and Dolores Antonilla .....Song and Dance
Jimmy Brown .....Song
Elizabeth Wolfe.....
.....Song and Dance
Marie Simon .....Song

Finale

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You say you don't like to argue and prefer to agree with, or at least be passive with those who hold opinions opposite to your own.

Your excuse is that you feel it to be a waste of time.

Perhaps if the whole truth were told it might be that it requires thinking to put up logical and sensible arguments to refute opposition.

You like to think on subjects that require no especial concentrated effort and no opinion necessary to a solution.

That is about it, isn't it?

Indefinite thought without a goal to be reached one way or the other, suits your make-up.

In all your life you have given your mental machine very little exercise and so it is flabby and weak as muscles would be.

This combined lack of will power and physical energy is bound to make a failure of anyone.

Your brain is the biggest earning asset you have.

Even if your line of effort is in the main physical, yet mental activity is needed to make yourself useful to yourself and others.

If you don't think you don't win.

UNSUNG HEROES OF THE OLYMPIC GAMES

It's all very well to clap hands and shout for the athletes who sprint on the cinder tracks, or swing the Indian clubs. But why not give a Chautauqua salute for J. Thomas Teetlebaum, above? He may be only a Los Angeles real estate salesman, but every medal represents a sale—and in each and every case he had to run 100 meters to catch the prospect by the coattail. Then he had to wrestle to obtain the buyer's signature to the contract.

Fair Rates Nearer

The Senate Should Aid by Confirming Pinchot's Appointees to the Public Service Commission.

With the resignation of Public Service Comissioners Collins and Ainey the outlook for fair public utilities rates in Pennsylvana becomes brighter.

There now remain on the Public Service Commission only two members of the body that was assailed so vigorously by Gov. Pinchot for its unfair decisions, only two that have upheld the monopolistic Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company in its monopoly and its exorbitant 25-cent bus fare.

The remaining members of the old board are now in the minority; so there is likelihood that in contests between the people and the public utilities the Public Service Commission's decisions hereafter will not be so uniformly in favor of the utilities.

There is a fly in the ointment, however, in the fact that the Senate has not seen fit to act on Gov. Pinchot's appointments to the commission.

For political reasons the appointments have not been confirmed. The motive is the hope that, by refusing to act, the way will be paved for the appointment, by the governor succeeding Pinchot, of commissioners more acceptable to the Republican machine.

It is jeopardizing the gains that are being made in the fight for fair rates.

Notwithstanding Chairman Ainey's resignation the Senate owes it to the people of Pennsylvania to inquire if and to what extent public utilities companies and officials have been extending financial or other favors to members of the Public Service Commission.

If such favors have been extended, they cannot have failed to influence the commissioners in decisions affecting the bribe-givers.

The time is opportune, and the charges of official misconduct filed against Ainey furnish a good excuse, if one is thought to be needed, for thoroughly investigating the public utilities situation and the fairness of the rates.

Pittsburgh's Claim

There Are Several Good Reasons Why a Federal Home Loan Bank Should Be Established Here.

Senators Davis and Reed have submitted to President Hoover Pittsburgh's claim for selection as one of the cities in which a Federal Home Loan Bank should be established.

Included in the data was a statement from the Chamber of Commerce in regard to the population of this district, the industries, freight traffic, banking resources and the like.

President Hoover, as a former head of the Department of Commerce, hardly needs information concerning Pittsburgh's greatness as an industrial city. If our greatness in that respect is sufficient reason to warrant giving us one of the new banks, there should be no question of our receiving it.

Unfortunately, however, a city's fitness for a federal institution is not always the dominating influence with the administration at Washington.

Pittsburgh had an excellent claim for selection as headquarters for the Fourth District Federal Reserve Bank; but it was given by a Democratic administration to Cleveland.

It might have been expected that we would have been the recipients of many favors from Republican administrations; but that has not been the case. Consider how many years passed, after the need of a new postoffice was officially admitted, before provision was made for building one.

There are those who think Pittsburgh has been slighted by Washington, and will continue to be slighted, because, no matter how much it has been snubbed and slighted, it has always gone Republican.

On this theory there would be more hope of our getting a Federal Home Loan Bank if there were a strong likelihood that the city would go Democratic in November.

Camps and Health

Concern has been expressed lest the lack of sanitation in the "Bonus Expeditionary Forces" camp at Johnstown lead to an outbreak of pestilence. It is reassuring to learn that the State Health Department has sent inspectors.

The subject of camp sanitation is an important one in the Pittsburgh district right now, for thousands of persons are living in camps, and the protection of the public demands that healthful conditions be maintained at them.

Sidney A. Teller, director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, read a paper on the subject recently before the Pennsylvania Public Health Association which is worth the attention not only of health authorities and social workers, but of people generally.

Teller has been in charge of the Emma Kaufmann Camp for 16 years, and is enthusiastic over the possibilities of improving the health of children and others by having them live in carefully regulated fresh-air colonies in the country for a few weeks every summer.

Teller adds, however, that many camps in the Pittsburgh district do not meet minimum health standards.

Insanitary camps are a menace to the community. Therefore all camps should be inspected regularly by public sanitary inspectors and made to comply with the requirements of health.

The Pennsylvania Dutch

They Are Not Likely to Remain Many Years Longer As A Distinctive Element in the State.

From Punxsutawney comes an invitation to a great picnic, to be held on August 25 under the auspices of well-known persons. The whole world is invited, says the dispatch telling of the arrangements, but the Pennsylvania Dutch will be particularly welcome.

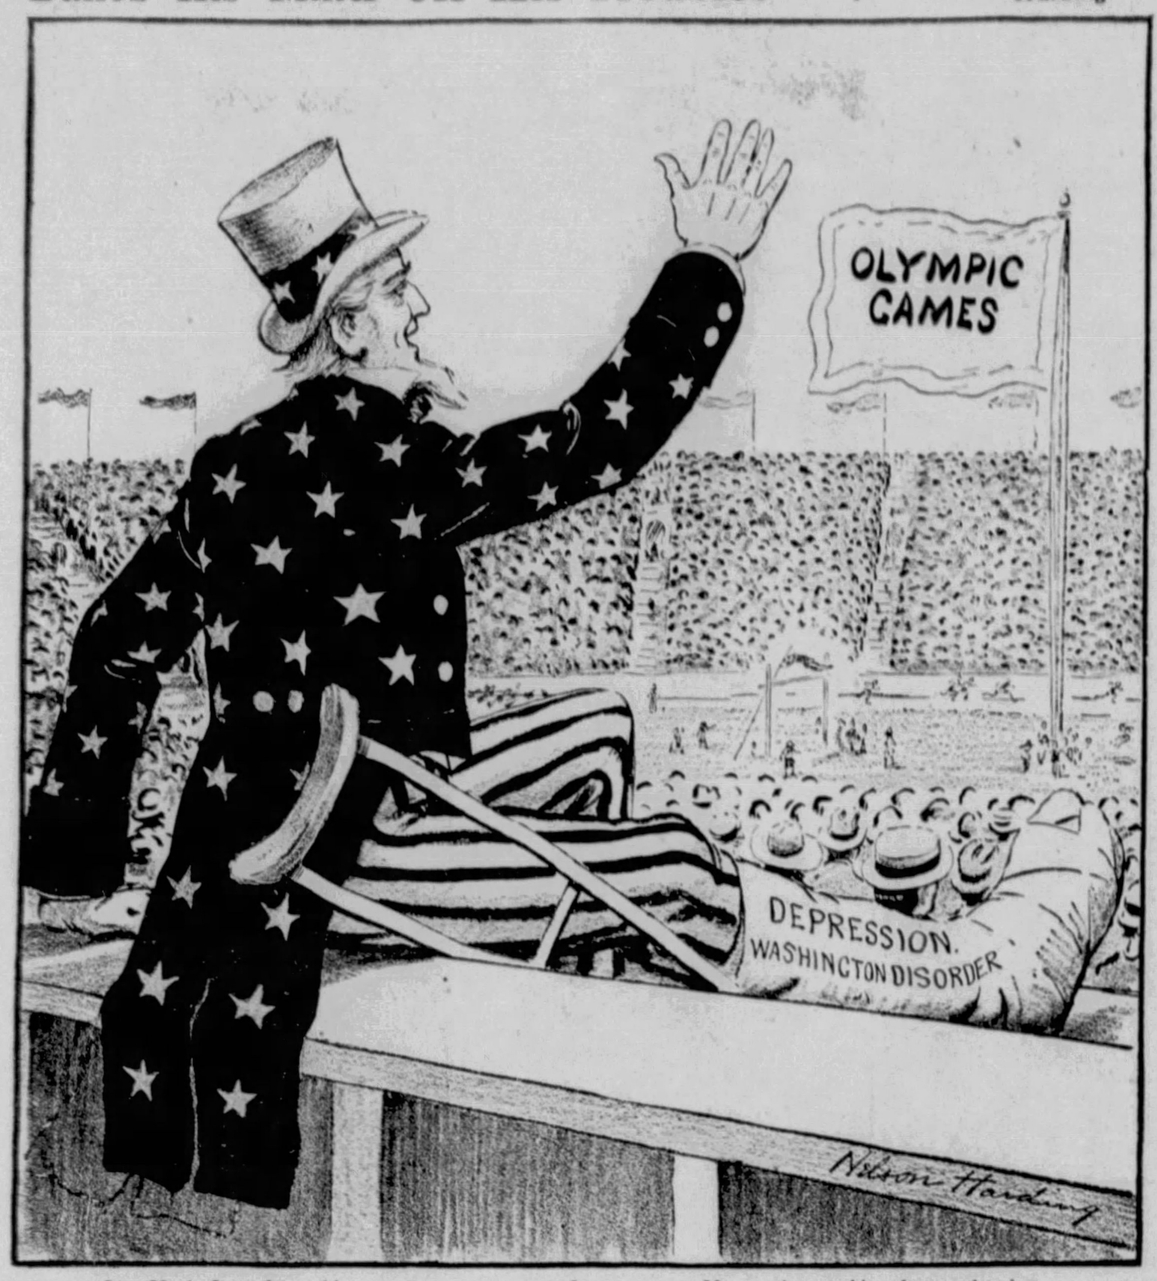
The Pennsylvania Dutch are not likely to remain as a distinctive element in the population for many years longer. Automobiles and telephones and radio sets and movies are doing away with the quaint speech and customs of the Pennsylvania Dutch, as well as of other strange sections of the people, and making standardized normal Americans of them.

So it is well to make the most of the Pennsylvania Dutch while we still have some of them remaining with their original character not yet totally effaced.

Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, publisher of the Altoona Tribune, now serving as United States minister to Bulgaria, is rendering a useful service in compiling a lexicon of Pennsylvania Dutch words and phrases.

We trust the Punxsutawney picnic will be a huge success.

Takes His Mind Off His Troubles -:- By Nelson Harding



Let Uncle Sam forget his crutch
And sore spots for a while
As all the world's athletic youth
In ranks before him file.

He can ignore his aches and pains
And troubles for a spell.
The Games may help him to forget
That he's not feeling well.

"Women and Elephants"

Woman does most of the forgiving, in this world—man does most of the forgetting.

The average man is such a naive, credulous creature, with such a well-trained memory and such a perfect "forgettery," that he is always astonished when he discovers that a woman not only remembers something he said or did five, 10 or 20 years ago, but still sees red, when she thinks of it.

He forgets that priceless warning of Dorothy Parker's—in her book, "Death and Taxes"—

"Show me a love that was done and through,
"Tell me a kiss escaped its debt!
"Son, to your death you'll pay your due—
"WOMEN AND ELEPHANTS NEVER FORGET."

A woman may forget how to spell a word, where to sign a check or who discovered the South Pole.

But she never forgets a tribute to her charms—or a blow to her vanity.

She may forget her first trip to London or her first view of the Arc de Triomphe—but she never forgets her first kiss, her first love, her first heartache or the dress she had on the first time her husband met her.

* * *

She may forget—and forgive—another woman's attempt to steal her laurels, her jewels or even her cook. But she never forgets or forgives another woman's attempt to steal her MAN!

When a man shakes hands with a rival, it means that the fight is over; but when a woman "kisses-and-makes-up" with a rival (who has done her dirt), it means that the battle has just begun.

A man has the most accomodating, trick-action memory in the world. It can be shut off or tuned on at will, like a radio. It will curl up and go fast asleep, like good little Fido, when he wants to forget anything; and then spring up and rush to his rescue, when he needs it for self-defense.

* * *

That's why he can never understand a woman. Long after she has forgiven his little deflections—and he has forgotten them—she will go back and dig up the bone of contention and flourish it in his face.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—While the richly furnished restaurants luxuriate in despair, a flood of cheaply constructed places have opened all over mid-town. In these, diners-out who patronized the Venetian and other palazoos are riding out the storm.

Too, the boom-time cafes were being debauched by a barbarian frenzy. Singing gypsies threaded the aisles. Ladies, in brief grass, hula-hulaed. Brooks bubbled in colored lights and faked skies were atwinkle with stars. One could not eat for looking. Or blushing.

Some 200 such eatries are shuttered. In their stead came barren spots inelegantly known as The Shanty, The Log Cabin, The Clean Kitchen and The Food Hutch. One, indeed, is called The Cooling Bench. The tables are pine topped and without cloths. Coffee is in thick cups.

They are remindful of those hastily constructed "Ptomaine Tommy" lunchrooms, dotting California roadsides. Menus offer dishes of plebian popularity, soupy hash, black bean soup, dip pudding and pan dowdy. The gastronomic mood is for an evening of candle light and a world shut out.

A friendly cop on an upper beach of the Gold Coast was handing out summonses to owners of unmuzzled kiyoodles. He was obeying instructions with little zest, but a Sig somebody-or-other was writing the commissioner and newspapers. There's one in every police district! I went on wondering what would happen to similar complaints about 100 or more speaks in the area. A dog owner, at least, has a license.

* * *

Torch singing becomes a faint smudge. It was a lament over thwarted love and hot-cha in the havens of illegitimate vintners. A successful exponent was Ethel Merman, who went from a stenographic post to holding a long, wavering note at $1,000 a week. Also, the sloe-eyed lady—Frances Maddux. The originator, who also coined the term, is Tommy Lyman a brooding young man with fever-bright eyes.

Tommy, self styled "tubercular tenor," immaculately dressed, and the pasty white of a flounder's belly, began entertaining in table closeups at Jimmy Kelly's on Houston street. This was a backwash of late Broadway night-life in rear of a plumbing shop in a choking beehive of tenements. Since then in thin whisper, he has sung on Broadway, in London, Paris, Palm Beach. Outside of cabarets, he wanders alone in glum self effacement. He gives the impression nothing matters. That life is only a wobbling negative!

I breakfasted with several others as guest of one of the last of the aristocrats, the sort who sits in the window of a conservative club in the late afternoon, dresses for dinner, plays billiards afterward. I was told the past year had been devastating to his fortune, yet he was particularly agreeable. It was only in strolling out of his walled-in garden after coffee that he gave hint of his dilemma. Along the walk was one of those familiar sculptings of a deep-breasted woman carrying a horn of plenty: Ceres and her cornucopia. Tapping it lightly, he observed: "That thing is beginning to annoy me."

* * *

As a product of the humble plains, I have wide-eyed admiration for city blueblcods. Their superiority makes me suddenly all knuckles, Adam's apple and teeth. I feel they know instinctively I once lived in a frame cottage with a sour cistern and hob-nobbed with "Shine" Bell. I approach them as the inferior might a combination of the Royal Family, the Shah of Persia and perhaps Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks. There is reason for their suspicionings, too. On a week end at a Long Island estate, the lord of the domain came upon me in the stables playing seven-up with the 'ostlers.

Aubrey Eads was taking an after-dinner walk to console an unfortunate who financed a totally empty building on Madison. In the grip of this meandering megrim, they happened to pass the deserted spire. The owner pointed to it with a shaking head. "They do seem to avoid it," Eads murmured "I'll say," he gloomed. "Even the window jumpers won't give it a tumble."

* * *

Speaking of high windows, I watched Neal Andrews sit on the ledge of one opening on the twenty-eighth floor at a tea, talking casually of nothing in especial. I controlled a full setting of jittles by closing my eyes and winding both legs around my chair. And I'm still edgy.

SHOULD THE MISSIS TAG ALONG WHEN POPPA'S DOING BUSINESS?

Now, mind you, I've nothing against wives per se, nor do I object to them as business associates—when they're qualified. But do you, or don't you, mind mixing with the missis when you're trying to put over a deal with the old man?

For example, this morning I needed to buy a pair of shoes in a rush. Went into my favorite shop on the way to the train. Well-known shop. They've always had snappy service. But today, who should barge up but a fat, amiable old dame of around 56, who looked as if she'd spent her life mixing ginger cookies. Wasn't there a regular clerk? Yes, indeed; but she was managing ladies' shoes now, she assured me.

Well, you know how it is. You don't want to hurt people's feelings. So I told her quickly what I wanted, said I'd have to hurry and sat down. And she began to flutter and putter aimlessly around the shoe shelves.

Minutes passed. Trains don't wait. I fidgeted. Seeing this, the proprietor, a friendly old chap of 60, ambled over.

"It's the missus," he smiled, half apologetically, but evidently sure that this explanation would fix things jake. "She thinks she's going to make a shoe clerk of herself. You see, it's lonesome for her now, since the children have grown, so she likes to stay around here with me; and she says it makes her happier to be doing a little something."

At this moment the old lady trotted over with a pair of shoes. Outside of the fact that they were the wrong size, last and color, they were swell dogs.

"Yes, I know they aren't exactly what you said," she snapped, "but I thought they'd look real nice on you."

I didn't argue the point. Time was up, and I departed new-shoeless, leaving an aggrieved pair of old faces staring after me. Now, why had I been so rude and fussy? Wasn't she doing her very best to please me? Yes, she probably was. But I ask you—

SHOULD POPPA HANG A NUISANCE LIKE THAT ON AN OLD CUSTOMER JUST BECAUSE MOMMA DOESN'T WANT TO STAY HOME WHERE SHE BELONGS?

That's only one case. You could name dozens more. Real estate agents, insurance men, young lawyers, automobile salesmen—you drop in on them, or they drop in on you, and there's the Missis.

Yes, I know the argument. He's a swell guy and she's a swell girl, and he thought he might as well bring her along for a little ride, and isn't it great to see a young couple so fond of each other? It is, indeed. But what has that to do with business?

He'd "trust her with anything he knows"? That, too, is delightful. But how about YOUR feelings?

But he had to bring her along to keep peace at home? Then that's his bad luck. And if he's that spineless about managing his affairs has he gumption enough to manage yours?

Personally, I doubt it. And my idea of men who can't do business without their wives tagging along is just one more of those things my editor won't print.

However, maybe you can talk nicer. So if you have an opinion on this subject, send it in. A lot of peeved papas and mad mammas will want to read it.

Text for Today And the Lord said unto Moses, Go, get thee down; for thy people, which thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt, have corrupted themselves.—Exodus, xxxii:7.

Bolder Lending Policy By Banks Justified After Long Deflation

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

The theory which was advanced to justify the use of public funds to support private institutions was that they are invested with a public interest.

Now that the position of the stronger banks has been eased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and by Federal Reserve expansionist policy, it is up to these very banks to vindicate the assertion that they are quasi-public institutions.

In the circumstances, it will not be enough for the banks to seek shelter from the economic distress in storm cellars.

It behooves the banks to prove deserving of the public generosity by carefully and sensibly resuming normal banking risks as lenders, turning away from the hurtful fashion of abnormal liquidity.

Economic recovery, which appears to be near at hand, could be facilitated by widespread recognition on the part of bankers that it is unusually safe to lend when prices are greatly deflated, and when the volume of production has been so low as to create widespread potential shortages.

The usual margins on both security and commercial loans give added protection at a time when the threatened decline are behind us, instead of ahead of us.

IF banks are to be socially useful, the time for them to become super cautious and ultra restraining is toward the latter stages of boom, when security and commodity prices tend to become inflated, and when the volume of activity is abnormally large in relation to the ten-year averages.

For example, if in boom times, when the hazards, though hidden, are very large, a bank insists on a three to one ratio of quick assets to quick liabilities, it would be prudent after widespread deflation to make loans on a two to one ratio.

Yet bankers do not exercise this ordinary common sense in their lending policy. All too many of them are lax and careless in boom periods, creating dangerous situations by ghastly overlending. Conversely, after the storm when the risks have been exhausted, bankers are sometimes influenced by unreasoning pessimism to retrench unduly in their lending. Moreover, some strong borrowers are needlessly fearful of going into debt in the latter stages of a period of prolonged depression.

One prominent banker, in describing the situation, indicated: "Bankers are naturally inclined to be more particular in the granting of credit in times like these than during times of prosperity."

Unfortunately, that test is usual, but it is not rational.

It contributes greatly to bank troubles and also exaggerates the peak and the trough of business cycles.

IT is high time for the banks to reciprocate to a country which has been generous in supporting the banks.

If the Reconstruction Finance Corporation lending to the banks is justified historically, the banks must forthwith begin to pass along the benefits to business men and farmers, who are good credit risks.

Is it not possible that the clouds of pessimism and hindsight blind them to the quality of credit of some of the smaller would-be borrowers, who have survived the depression and who may be on the verge of a renewed period of prosperity?

The hesitancy of lending institutions is not only hurting their own earnings, but is retarding a rebirth of normal business conditions.

Perhaps the latest episode of confidence in the security and commodity markets will assure conservative, cautious bankers that America is a country with a future.

MOTHER TO BLAME

By Winifred Black

The little boy was in the beauty shop, waiting for his mother to have her hair marcelled.

He was a good-looking little boy, with big dark eyes and a mop of curly dark hair. He was very carefully dressed, and it was easy to see that he brushed those strong white teeth of his three times a day, and scrubbed his little boyish paws very carefully.

He was intelligent, too, and spoke very good English, indeed.

Yes, it was plain to see that the little boy had a well-to-do father and a loving mother. He rode up and down the beauty shop on a very smart little tricycle, and as he rode he sang, and then he whistled, and then he talked.

He spoke to an old lady who was having her white hair shampooed.

He spoke to a pretty girl whose nails were being manicured.

He spoke to a middle-aged woman who was in the drying-room, getting her haid dried.

All of these people answered the little boy very pleasantly, at first, but the little boy was really rather personal in his remarks.

He asked the young woman in a loud, penetrating voice, "What makes that old woman laugh so much?"

He asked the middle-aged woman whether she had any little boys at home; and if she had, did they ride tricycles, and were they as good as his. The middle-aged woman was thinking about something else, and she did not reply at once. The little boy stopped his tricycle and shouted belligerently:

"Answer me! Tell me! Answer me!"

Around the shop he went, getting as close to people's toes as he could, and turning the whole quiet place into something closely resembling a bedlam.

"My goodness!" said the young girl who was being manicured, "what a fresh kid you are!"

"I'm not fresh at all," said the little boy. "You're fresh yourself," and away he went at top speed to his mother.

Mamma was having a lovely marcel, and she was quite cross at having the little boy come in and bother her; but when she heard what the little boy had to say, mamma was not angry—not with the little boy.

When he told her what the young girl had said to him, mamma was so indignant that she almost pulled her hair out of the marcel apparatus.

Yes, I'm very sorry for that poor little boy. The world is going to give him a terrible spanking, some day.

I wonder if he will know enough to lay the blame for his misery, his failure and his unpopularity right where it belongs—on the mother who told him he was "sweet," when she should have taken him over her knee and given him a good old-fashioned spanking.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Match correctly:

1. "A Farewell to Arms"	Moore.
2. "Sister Carrie"	Conrad.
3. "'Twas the Night Before Christmas"	Milne.
4. "Victory"	Hemingway.
5. "When We Were Very Young"	Dreiser.

Do you know:

6. What American poet has three times received the Pulitzer Prize for his work?
7. What is a loganberry a cross between?
8. On what island is the Statue of Liberty?
9. What is another word for sleep-walking?
10. What instrument does a baolaika resemble?
11. What is a caterpillar tractor?
12. When did Congress formally adopt the Stars and Stripes as the national flag?
13. What is Hudson seal?
14. What is novocaine used for?
15. In aeronautics, what is a pancake landing?

1. Hemingway. 2. Dreiser. 3. Moore. 4. Conrad. 5. Milne. 6. Edward Arlington Robinson. 7. Red raspberry and blackberry. 8. Bedloe's Island. 9. Somnambulism. 10. Guitar. 11. It travels on two endless belts. 12. June 14, 1777. 13. The fur of the muskrat, dyed the color of seal. 14. A local anaesthetic. 15. A landing made abruptly, with little forward movement.
